D. C. Rent Control Asked for Year More

Young Cites Warning by Cogswell of Sharp Hikes

'Acute' Demand for Housing Reported By Administrator Told to Congress

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Washington's Commissioners yesterday urged Congress to give the District another year of rent control, but to end controls on furnished non-housekeeping rooms here June 30.

This dual recommendation, presented in a letter by Commissioner John Russell Young to John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), House District chairman, was based on advice given the Commissioners by District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell.

With their report to Congress, the Commissioners sent to the Capitol Cogswell's report to them.

Cogswell's Warning

Cogswell warned that ending rent controls here this year would mean sharp increases in most types of housing now subject to rent control. He based this prediction on what he termed "acute" demands for many types of housing accommodations, where the supply is still short—including apartments for those of moderate and low income, unfurnished houses renting up to $125 a month, and light housekeeping rooms.

District rent controls exist under law separate from that for the rest of the Nation. Both the national and District laws expire June 30.

The Commissioners' recommendations were given in reporting on the District rent control extension bill of Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) a member of the House District Committee. It calls for extending the District law to June 30, 1951, but does not touch the question of decontrolling non-housekeeping furnished rooms. What would be accomplished by an amendment the Commissioners joined with Cogswell in saying should be added to the Klein bill.

Tough for Wage-Earners

Language of the amendment makes clear decontrol would apply only to single rooms, but not to suites of two or more rooms.

Cogswell's letter to the Commissioners declared that it is a "foregone conclusion" the end of rent control here this June would push rents up to a point "where most wage-earners will find it impossible to pay the rent demanded."

But if District rent controls continue another year, Cogswell said he is firmly convinced "the situation in relation to rental apartment units will tend to level off in the same manner as the booming house situation has begun to adjust itself in the last four or five months."

He said he believes the leveling off will be brought about because rentals on new construction in apartment buildings, both of the elevator type and nonelevator

Australia to Seek Anti-Communist Law

Canberra, Australia, April 26 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies announced he will introduce legislation in Parliament Thursday to outlaw the Communist Party in Australia, as he promised in his campaign platform.

The measure will call for dissolution of Communist organizations and will disqualify Communists from holding some offices.

Nats Beat Macks, 5 to 3, As Evans Bats in 4 Runs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, April 26. — The Nats' battery contained an assault weapon tonight, the same being Catcher Al Evans who lifted his working partner, Sid Hudson, to a 5-3 victory over the A's with a three-run homer blast.

Evans' swatting, in fact, totaled up to four runs when he delivered a productive single later in the game. All of this was happening while Hudson was holding the A's tight in the grip of his seven-hit pitching.

The Nats were home-run minded tonight, to the dismay of 6303 Shibe Park fans who, like Pitcher Bobby Shantz, were jilted by lead-off man Eddie Yost in the first inning. Yost set Hudson up in an immediate 1-0 lead by walloping a massive homer onto the left field roof.

Evans' smack dispatched Left Hander Shantz from the scene before he could get anybody out in the second inning. Carl Scheib cooled the Nats off from that point, allowing only one run, but Hudson clung bravely to his lead despite spells of wildness that saw him walk six, hit one.

Five Members of Youthful Gang Admit Three Robberies

By Jean Reiff and Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporters

Five youthful members of the "Pimple Faced Gang" were rounded up early yesterday in Washington and nearby Maryland.

Police said the gang had admitted these recent holdups:

At headquarters of Local 102 of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, 1017 K st. nw., March 30, with $1000 reported taken.

At the office of N. W. Martin & Brothers, Inc., sheet metal works, at 1429 N. Quincy st., Arlington, Va., March 31, where a $3887 payroll was grabbed.

At the ninth floor treasurer's office of the Fruit Growers Express Co., 1101 Vermont ave. nw., April 12, where they pistol-whipped Carl G. Romer, 43, the treasurer, and fled with $349.

The five youths, all held for action of the grand jury on charges of armed robbery, are Joseph C. Danner, 26; Albert J. Mozzone, 18, and William Lee Mason, 18, all of 1208 Evarts st. ne., and Byron E. Heslop, 22, and Wilmer D. Campbell, 21, both of 4800 68th ave., Defense Heights, Md.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held Mason in $50,000 bond, Campbell and Mozzone in $40,000 bond each, and Danner and Heslop in $25,000 bond each.

Police officials said the roundup climaxed weeks of intensive investigation by Detective Sergts. William L. Sparshott and Wilbur R. Coffey of the robbery squad, who kept their ears tuned to whispers from the underworld and were finally rewarded with the names and then the address of the suspects.

Monday night Sparshott and Coffey learned the gang had rented a $115-a-month furnished bungalow in Defense Heights, Md. A search warrant was obtained and Washington and Prince Georges County police set up plans to raid the house.

The raiding party of 18 men was well prepared for resistance, carrying shotguns, riot guns and tear gas when they surrounded the bungalow in Defense Highway at 5 a. m. yesterday.

Police battered open the rear door and burst in with guns drawn. Not a shot was fired. "Bad Man" Campbell was pulled from under a bed, naked and trembling. Heslop was just sitting up in bed, sleepy-eyed, and surrendered meekly. A 22-year-old sailor who was in the bungalow was released after questioning.

In on the raid for Metropolitan police were Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police supejrintendent; Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of

House Group Backs 5-Day Police Week

A bill to start Washington police on a five-day work week here July 1 was unanimously approved by a House District subcommittee yesterday.

It applies to Metropolitan Police, White House Police and Park Police.

Heads of these organizations could suspend the two days off in emergencies requiring continuous police duty.

The subcommittee action was announced by Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.) author of the five-day week bill. Police here now work a six-day week. Davis introduced the bill as one result of the investigation he led into District crime problems.

He said the only change made in the bill was to strike out a requirement that the two days off for police be consecutive. Royce L. Givens, president of the Policeman's Association, said his group would not object to the change.

Next move is for the Davis bill to be considered by the full House District Committee at its meeting Monday.

Subcommittee approval was voted in an afternoon executive session after witnesses headed by Commissioner John Russell Young, including top officials of the three police services affected, had testified for the bill.

Davis said questions raised about where the million dollars a year would be found to cover the cost of the 300 additional men needed for the Metropolitan Police working a five-day week had been left undecided by the vote on the bill. But he said it was the general feeling of the subcommittee that the District would have ample revenue to cover the expense.

For the White House police force, the five-day week would mean about 23 more men at an annual cost of about $87,000, all in Federal funds. For the Park Police would be required 33 more men, at an annual cost of $112,000, of

Employes Pledge Customers To Make Up for Pay Raise

Baltimore, Md., April 26 (Spl.)—In what was described as a demonstration unique in labor-management history, employes of a Baltimore dairy last night gave officials written promises to obtain enough customers to make up losses under a recent union contract.

At a dinner to management, approximately 400 workers personally presented to company officials pledges to each obtain at least 15 new customers within the next three months, thereby accumulating additional income to compensate the dairy for $120,000 involved in strike cost and contract benefits.

The dinner was given at the Southern Hotel to James Ward, sr., and James Ward, jr., heads of the Green Spring Dairy, and in Washington of the Embassy Dairy.

Speakers hailed the occasion as ushering in a new era of cooperation between labor and management which would demonstrate to all the Nation what could be accomplished by men of good will.

Circumstances which led to the dinner were outlined to the guests by M. Belmont Ver Standig, Washington advertising man.

Ver Standig spoke frankly of ill feeling which followed unionization of employes and granting of a contract after a weekend strike last month. He said he had felt that the organization could be brought to work together in harmony again.

"The idea was to show the officials that nobody was sore at nobody," Ver Standig said.

Harry Ryan, assistant sales manager, union organizer and shop steward, said the company had signed the "best" contract granted in the industry. Turning to the Wards, he announced: "We are going to give back to you every penny that unionization cost you."

Maragon Found Guilty On 2 Counts

John Maragon, one-time White House hanger-on and former friend of Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, was found guilty by a Federal Court jury yesterday of lying to Senate "five-percenter" investigators and was sent to jail immediately.

Convicted on two counts of a three-part perjury indictment, the former Kansas City bootblack faces a sentence of 2 to 10 years on each count. If he gets the minimum and the sentences run concurrently, he would be eligible for parole in eight months.

Maragon, 56, who was referred to by his attorney as "the little fellow" and a "peanut vendor among princes," slumped in his chair as the verdict of the nine-man, three-woman jury was announced. His face was flushed as he was led from the courtroom.

Speedy Appeal Planned

No date was set for sentencing. Defense Attorney Irvin Goldstein first announced he would ask for a new trial within 14 days. But when Judge Jennings Bailey refused bond and remanded Maragon to jail, Goldstein said he would appeal sooner.

Maragon was convicted of lying to the Senate committee last summer when he testified that:

He had only one bank account—that one in a Washington bank—in 1945 or 1946.

He had quit his job with a Chicago perfume company when he went on a mission to Greece for the State Department in 1945 or 1946.

The jury acquitted him of the charge that he lied when he told the committee he negotiated no Government business for private firms and received no fees for such business from 1945 to 1949.

Tales of "Gifts"

The hearings themselves titillated official Washington for weeks with tales of "gift" deep freezers to prominent persons, alleged perfume oil smuggling and alleged pressure on Government agencies for contracts for favored firms.

The subcommittee subsequently issued a lengthy report which sharply criticized Vaughan for permitting his name to be used for such purposes and calling for action to stamp out the alleged practice.

A fourth count in the indictment was dropped by the Government at the trial's opening. The trial lasted just nine days.

In his 22-minute charge to the jury, Judge Bailey took up charges by defense and Government attorneys that each should have called General Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, to testify.

Bailey said the jurors could conclude that, since neither side called the general, his testimony would have been favorable to neither.

The judge also emphasized that Maragon was not charged with any "misconduct" in his business deals, which are not illegal under present law. The charge against him, Bailey stressed, was that he lied to the Senate committee.

Installers Turn Down Picket Plan

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

An area-wide work stoppage at Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. offices and exchanges was averted last night when striking Western Electric installation workers rejected a move to establish picket lines around C&P buildings today.

Responding to the pleas of their national and local leaders, the strikers—who belong to Local 96, Division 6, CIO Communications Workers of America—voted unanimously to refrain from setting up picket lines for the rest of the week.

The 250-man union unit also voted, however, to throw up picket lines throughout metropolitan Washington on Monday morning, should their strike not be settled by then.

Permits Entrance

Meanwhile, by withholding the picket lines, the Western Electric strikers permit some 5500 other members of the Communications Workers to enter the C. & P. central offices and plants, and to continue on their normal daily jobs.

A group of militant rank-and-filers had demanded yesterday that the local Western Electric installers disregard the request of Joseph A. Beirne, CWA president, and of Ernest Weaver, who heads the union's Division 6, for maintaining their strike on a no-picketing basis.

The local Western Electric workers walked out last Monday morning, along with 10,000 other W. [illegible] men around the country, in a strike [illegible] accumulated grievances against the company.

The Western Electric strike broke out two days before a scheduled general strike of some 250,000 communications workers against the entire Bell Telephone System over the issue of a new work contract. Both Western Electric and Chesapeake & Potomac are subsidiaries of the Bell System.

Strike Called Off

The general strike was called off by the CWA a few hours before the Wednesday morning deadline because of "developments" in negotiations, but the Western Electric installers continued their grievance strike.

The local Western Electric unit, meeting in emergency session at Pythian Temple last night, decided to place "observers" at C&P buildings today to dissuade "a half dozen" nonstriking installation men from staying on the job, but these "observers" will not be "conspicuous," and are not to constitute a picket line, unit leaders said.

Meanwhile, both here and in New York there were expressions of optimism from union leaders that a settlement was near at hand, perhaps by the week's end.

Negotiations were under way in earnest, however, with Federal mediators for the most part standing aside to let the 25 bargaining units of the Bell System and the Communications Workers carry on direct collective bargaining.

Browder Called to Testify Today in Senate Red Inquiry

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Earl Browder, former head of the American Communist Party, will testify before a Senate investigating subcommittee at 10:30 this morning regarding assertions that Owen Lattimore was a Communist.

In New York, Browder said yesterday Louis Budenz's statement that Browder told him Lattimore was a Communist agent "is false as a whole and in detail."

Browder also said in a copyrighted story in the New York Daily Compass that he had never known Lattimore but was convinced he did not have Communist leanings.

The ousted former general secretary of the U. S. Communist Party, said Budenz's whole testimony before the committee was "incredible" and "vague to the point of vacuity."

Meantime, the subcommittee has yet to make up its mind what to do about its "missing witness" of Tuesday night, who turned up in New York yesterday with a story that he had "blacked out."

U. S. Probes Record Deals In Soybeans

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Recent market operations in soybeans that reached the highest volume in history this week are under investigation by the Commodity Exchange Authority.

More than 28 million bushels changed hands on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, to set an all-time high. Soybean prices have jumped from less than $2.15 a few months ago, to nearly $3, in the face of a surplus supply. Margins were ordered raised in Chicago yesterday from 20 to 30 cents a bushel.

The sharp jump in soybeans that has attracted CEA also has relieved the Government's price-support program, not only for soybeans but for other crops such as wheat and cotton that have gone up in company with them.

Government supplies of soybeans that totalled around 10 million bushels have all been liquidated, at well above what was invested in them. At the same time the Commodity Credit Corp., which operates the price-support program, revealed that almost one third of the cotton on which price-support loans were advanced has been redeemed. In other words, loans have been paid off on 982,000 bales out of 3,172,000 bales under Government loans.

(The average loan on cotton was 27.23 cents a pound. Additional costs, such as storage, etc., raised that 1.25 cents to about 28½ cents a pound. May cotton closed on the New York Cotton Exchange last night at 32.7 to 32.72 cents.)

Wheat also is above the loan rate. The average loan was $1.95 a bushel. Carrying charges add about 16 cents, making a total varying throughout the country from $2.10 to $2.20 a bushel. May wheat closed last night at $2.29½.

Corn, although stronger recently, is just about at loan level.

The Nation's commodity brokers were called upon March 27 to furnish CEA with the position of

Admission Tax Is Cut in Half By Committee

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday voted another 240 million dollars in excise tax cuts by halving movie, theater and sports admission levies and slicing taxes on sundry other items.

Coupled with previous cuts totaling 335 million dollars, yesterday's round of tax slashing brought the aggregate loss to the Treasury to 575 million dollars, with more cuts to come.

Untouched as yet are some 505 million dollars in reductions recommended by the President in wartime excises on transportation (freight and passenger) and communications (telephone and telegraph).

There were indications the committee may cut more deeply than the President asked on these just as it has far exceeded the 190-million-dollar limit Mr. Truman placed on reductions in other fields.

Even in the event the committee adheres strictly to Mr. Truman's limit on the transportation and communcations rate slashing, the over-all excise tax cut would total $1,080,000,000.

The committee hopes to make up part of the loss by plugging loopholes and compromising with the President's call for new taxes on corporations but prospects were dim that increased revenue would offset the losses. Mr. Truman has served notice he will veto anything short of a balance.

The committe yesterday voted to cut the admissions tax from 20 per cent to 10 per cent but exempted completely from the tax charitable, religious and nonprofit ventures, county fairs, symphony concerts and municipal swimming pools.

Activities of elementary and secondary schools were also exempted but college athletic events, as well as professional sports, were made subject to the reduced 10 per cent levy.

Brokers or scalpers who sell tickets at rates in excess of the regular admission prices, and box seat lease tickets, were left subject to

Defense Fund Boost Voted Quickly by House Group

$350 Million Chiefly For Aviation; Vinson Switches Stand, Asks Retention of Draft

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A 350-million-dollar increase in the 1951 military budget to keep pace with cold war developments was approved yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee 30 minutes after it was recommended by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

In a companion development, House Armed Forces Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) called for a two-year extension of the draft law in the face of "worsening world conditions."

Johnson based his request on an appraisal of recent events abroad, including the Russian atomic explosion and deteriorating relations with the Soviet.

"None of this presents a happy prospect," he said, "but the cold war is not a happy circumstance."

Request Is Surprise

The Secretary and the Joint Chiefs of Staff delivered their surprise request for additional funds before separate closed meetings of the House and Senate appropriating groups. All they asked was in line with previous recommendations by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The House committee acted immediately, approving 200 million dollars additional contract authority for the Air Force, 100 million dollars more for Navy aviation and 50 million dollars for operation and conversion of surface vessels for anti-submarine warfare.

Johnson also recommended restoration of the 203 million dollars previously trimmed from the defense budget by the Appropriations Committee, terming it "of vital importance, particularly in view of the present world situation."

Action Held Up

The Appropriations Committee for the time being did not comply with this request. Representative George H. Mahon (D., Tex.), defense subcommittee chairman, said his unit would "further explore" that phase of Johnson's request.

Vinson, who previously had opposed the President's request for continuation of the draft law, expiring June 24, called a meeting of his committee next Tuesday to open hearings on the legislation. The Georgian saw no immediate need to draft manpower but said the authority should be there "for fast use in an emergency." There have been no draft calls since January, 1949.

Vinson, meanwhile, dropped his fight for a 583-million-dollar addition to the defense budget for more

Costello Will Be Heard Today In Senate Gambling Inquiry

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Frank Costello, the almost legendary figure of the gambling world, is due to appear today before a Senate Commerce subcommittee to pull back the veil of secrecy on how he and his friends operate.

He will appear voluntarily in a tiny Capitol committee room without benefit of movie kleig lights or television cameras. The other two of the Nation's reputed big three gamblers, Joe Adonis and Frank Erickson, are expected to testify later on.

Chairman McFarland (D., Ariz.) said, in announcing the call to Costello, that the committee was calling the trio "as people with an intimate knowledge of how gambling operates."

McFarland said he hopes his committee will wind up hearings by the end of next week on proposals before it aimed at stamping out interstate transmission of gambling information, chiefly information flowing across State lines to horserace bookmakers.

He said again yesterday that "we're not interested in a crime probe as such." Later he told reporters he thought the Senate eventually will approve such a probe. But Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) yesterday was blocked by Senator Connally (D., Tex.) when he suggested taking up the long-delayed matter during a lull in the debate on Connally's ECA bill. Connally said there would be plenty of time later on to consider the Kefauver resolution.

Poles Quit FAO, Blaming U. S.

Poland pulled out of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization yesterday, with a blast that FAO was under the influence of the United States.

"The past activities of FAO," said a letter delivered to Sir Herbert Broadley, acting director of FAO, by Polish Ambassador Josef Winiewicz, "have shown that it could not withstand the pressure of the policy of the United States Government, which opposes all initiative endeavoring to make FAO a true instrument of international cooperation in the realm of food and agriculture and strives to use its position in the world food market for its own imperialistic ends."

New Wing Fuel Tanks Extend Jet Radius to Over 1000 Miles

New York, April 26 (NHT).—The United States Air Force, in a move of tremendous strategic importance, has boosted the range and combat radius of its jet fighters far beyond the performance of its outstanding escort fighters of World War II, it was learned today.

As the result of the addition of new underwing fuel tanks to those already attached to the wing tips, the standard Air Force F-84-E Thunderjet fighter being produced by Republic Aviation at Farmingdale, Long Island can fly escort for bombers attacking targets more than 1000 miles from their bases without aerial refueling.

In the event of a sudden emergency, this would allow jet fighters already in general use to escort bombers of the B-29 type from existing Middle East bases to the vital Baku oil fields of Soviet Russia on the Caspian Sea. A majority of the petroleum supplies consumed by the Soviet air force, army and navy comes from Baku, No. 1 strategic target inside the Iron Curtain.

Thanks to pioneering work by Col. David C. Schilling, a fighter ace of the recent war, the United States now has a tried-out technique for moving large numbers of jet fighters rapidly to bases in Europe, North Africa and the Middle East, and probably will demonstrate this soon.

The Air Force also has prototypes of new "penetration fighters" with even better long-range flight characteristics than the F-84 Thunderbolt, but these still are being tested.

Wanderlust Hits Talking Parakeet So He Takes Off

Eleven-year-old Barbara Gough stayed home from school yesterday—she just couldn't sit in a classroom knowing that "Butchie," her talking parakeet was wandering around somewhere away from home.

"Butchie," a voluble bird who knows 150 words and calls each member of the Gough household by his name, flew away yesterday morning.

"Butchie" is blue with gray and white wings and is wearing a leg band numbered 579.

Barbara hopes that anyone who sees "Butchie" will notify her mother, Mrs. Edwarta Gough, at 5502 Grove st., Chevy Chase. The phone number is WI. 3365.

An extremely personable bird, "Butchie" will respond to his name and may offer some such remark as, "How's your cough?" or "Where're you going?"

Remington Hearing Reopening Is Asked

In Libel Suit

Adler Tells Jury He's No Communist

LARRY ADLER
Libel trial plaintiff

Hartford, Conn., April 26 (AP).—Larry Adler, harmonica virtuoso, told a Federal Court jury today that a Greenwich, Conn., housewife's charge that he was pro-Communist was untrue.

Taking the stand in a $200,000 libel suit which he and dancer Paul Draper have brought against Mrs. Hester R. McCullough, the Baltimore-born Adler denied that he was a Communist, Communist sympathizer or traitor. The denial came under questioning of his attorney, Frederick Wiggin.

Adler told the jury of eight women and four men that, as a result of Mrs. McCullough's charges he and Draper "are as of this moment unable to obtain work in the United States."

Throughout the afternoon court session, Wiggin questioned Adler on Mrs. McCullough's allegation that he and Draper "openly supported" more than nine Communist-front organizations.

Adler, whose legal residence is Beverly Hills, Calif., said he became a sponsor of the American-Soviet Music Society, an affiliate of the National Group Council of American-Soviet Friendship, at the invitation of Serge Koussevitsky.

He said he favored promoting "intercultural relations between Soviet and American musicians." His only contribution to society was an album of his recorded works to be sent to Russia, he said.

The musician also said he did shows for the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee whose aim, he testified, was to help refugees from General Franco's Spanish regime.

Adler said he appeared at committee-sponsored shows to raise funds for hospitals in Mexico and France, and at a benefit at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles in June, 1946, to benefit the committee's milk fund.

Chairman John S. Wood (D., Ga.) yesterday said the House Un-American Activities Committee had unearthed new "evidence" against William W. Remington and demanded that his loyalty case be reopened.

Remington, a $10,000-a-year Commerce Department official, immediately retorted through his attorney that he was being persecuted. He accused the committee of being "far more concerned with politics and publicity" than with his loyalty.

Remington was suspended from his Government job in July, 1948, on the basis of charges made before Congress by Miss Elizabeth Bentley, self-admitted former courier for a Communist spy ring. He was later cleared by the top Government loyalty review board and reinstated in his job.

Wood said in a letter to Chairman Seth Richardson of the Loyalty Review Board, however, that the Un-American Activities Committee had been conducting a "quiet investigation" of Remington for some time and had new facts that warranted reopening his case.

No Hint of Nature of Evidence

He gave no hint of the nature of the "evidence," but offered it to Richardson's board for study and evaluation.

Remington's attorney, Joseph L. Rauh, jr., said Wood's effort to force a reopening of the case "is a typical example of persecuting a man who has been thoroughly cleared of irresponsible charges after exhaustive investigations and hearings by the Government."

He noted that a libel suit brought by Remington against Miss Bentley after she repeated her charges on a television program was settled out of court "for a substantial sum." Remington was reported to have received $10,000.

"The House Un-American Activities Committee," Rauh added, "appears to be far more concerned with politics and publicity than with the grave question of whether a man is a loyal citizen and Government employe."

Wood said the "evidence" against Remington was furnished to his committee staff by "highly confidental sources."

Richardson told reporters he had not yet received Wood's letter and had "no comment." He added, however, that normal procedure for reopening a loyalty case calls for submission of evidence to the FBI, which relays it to the departmental loyalty board concerned rather than the top-level review board.

Wood also announced that Remington soon will be summoned before the committee for questioning. No date has been set, he said, adding that the committee had originally planned to hear Remington on May 11.

"But in view of recent developments in the matter, he will be requested to appear at an earlier date," Wood said.

Council of Europe Aide Quits Newspaper Post

London (Thursday) April 27 (AP).—Lord Layton, noted liberal peer, gave up his job today as chairman of London's two leading liberal newspapers, the Star and the News Chronicle, to do more work in the Council of Europe.

He was succeeded in the chairmanship by L. J. Cadbury, vice chairman of the Star and News Chronicle companies.

Truman Meets Press Today Under New Rules

President Truman will hold a news conference at 4 p. m. today under new rules and in a new location.

The meeting will take place in a conference room in the old State Department building, instead of in the White House. Reporters will be seated, instead of standing in a semicircle around the President's desk.

The new rules require that before a reporter can ask a question he must stand up and identify himself and the publication or radio outlet he represents.

Senate Red Probe Calls Browder up, though under subpena, to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee.

Early yesterday morning he went on a telephone spree from midtown Manhattan, twice phoning his wife in Mount Vernon, N. Y., once to the Associated Press, once to his hometown newspaper and once to a former FBI associate.

But in all those calls all he said was that he was tired and exhausted by tension and pressure, that he must have blacked out, that he couldn't say how he got from Washington to New York but that he was going away for a month "to get away from it all."

The subcommittee had hoped to hold a meeting yesterday to determine the next step with respect to Huber. But it was unable to convene. The question of whether Huber will be scheduled for an appearance on some other date, or penalized for failing to comply with the subpena, remains unanswered for the moment.

Browder, in such financial straits that the subcommittee had to advance him rail fare for his appearance today, will be heard in connection with Senator McCarthy's key case of alleged Communist infiltration—that of Lattimore, Far East expert and Johns Hopkins professor.

Louis F. Budenz, former Communist and former editor of the Daily Worker, has testified that when he was a member of the Red apparatus Browder commended Lattimore's Communist efforts in his, Budenz's presence, and decided on Communist missions for Lattimore to perform.

Browder Denied Story

Immediately after Budenz gave that testimony, Browder issued a categorical denial from New York that he ever made such references to Lattimore and added that he did not think he ever had mentioned Lattimore's name in any conversation.

Browder was expelled from the Communist Party after the war, on charges of having been a "collaborationist" with non-Communist movements during the war.

In addition to the Browder hearing today, the subcommittee may hear in secret session Frank Bielaski, former agent of the Office of Strategic Services, who in 1945 raided the offices of the magazine Amerasia, illegally in possession of Government documents.

The subcommittee has also set a tentative open hearing for tomorrow at which the "millionaire Communist," Frederick V. Field, is to appear. Budenz testified to hearing Field discuss Lattimore as a Communist worker.

Field, like Browder, has denied this and is expected to repeat the denial under oath.

JOHN J. HUBER
. . . "Came-to" in New York

If he and Browder do as expected, the conclusion can be drawn that either they or Budenz has committed perjury, and the question may be, against which ones an indictment should be sought.

According to Lawrence Kerley, a former FBI agent and now specializing in Communist matters on the editorial staff of the New York Journal-American, the missing witness, Huber, was prepared to testify that he had seen Lattimore at a party in Field's house in 1946. The event was allegedly a ' 'ly for the Committee for Democratic Far Eastern Policy, named as subversive by the Attorney General.

Kerley, on the witness stand Tuesday night before the subcommittee, had testified to this much before he was interrupted and a call issued for Huber. The latter was not to be found.

Yesterday it was learned that Kerley, Huber and Senator McCarthy had all come down from New York together by plane Tuesday morning. The two witnesses-to-be had spent the morning in McCarthy's offices. About lunch time, Huber disappeared.

Kerley testified that since 1947, soon after both of them quit FBI work—Kerley as an agent, Huber as an undercover informer—Huber visited Kerley a dozen times or so in the offices of the Journal-American.

He was presumably giving Kerley information for news stories. Senator Tydings (D., Md.), subcommittee chairman, questioned Kerley sharply on the propriety of Huber's divulging to a newspaper writer material gathered while he was working for the FBI.

Yesterday Kerley said he thought Huber's failure to appear was because of his fear of the ordeal of testimony in open session of a Senate committee.

Huber has had considerable practice, however, in testifying in closed session. In December, he gave extensive descriptions to a Senate Judiciary subcommittee of all manner of Communist activities.

Most exciting of his stories had to do with the alleged organization by the Communists of an "SOS" group, or "Sweethearts of Servicemen." This organization of girls with "no morals whatsoever," who "went to any extremes," was used to trap GIs into the Red fold, Huber said.

He also testified to attendance at many parties such as the one at Field's house he presumably would have talked about. His role in these affairs, he said, was usually that of amateur but expert drink mixer.

Compromise Reached on Science Aid Bill

Senate-House conferees agreed yesterday on a bill to set up a National Science Foundation and provide a 15-million-dollar a year program of Federal scholarships, fellowships and research.

The final draft must be approved by both houses of Congress and accepted by President Truman before it can become law. Mr. Truman vetoed a science bill in 1948 because he disapproved its administrative provisions.

The present compromise measure would create a 24-member national science board and a $15,000-a-year director to administer the Federal science program. They would be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

Compromise on FBI Role

The bill would authorize $500,000 for fiscal 1951—the first year of operation, and up to 15 million dollars a year thereafter. In addition, other Government departments could transfer their research funds to the foundation for specific rese(arch projects.

The conferees resolved by compromise a dispute over a House-approved security section which would have required the FBI to give a "clearance" to all persons in the science program. The FBI protested against handing down judgments on its own investigations.

The compromise calls for an FBI check on all employes who handle restricted information but provides the foundation shall evaluate the FBI data and give the actual security clearance.

Other security provisions provide that the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Defense Establishment shall apply their own security regulations to any foundationresearcher s who handle agencies. The foundation also may information restricted by those establish its onw security safeguards.

Every scholarship and fellowship holder will be required to:

File an affidavit stating that he does not support any organization which advocates the overthrow of the Government by force or violence.

Maneuvers to Test New Air-Attack Idea

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Camp Mackall, N. C., April 26.—America's airborne forces will open a bag of new tricks in the large-scale maneuvers getting under way here designed to test the feasibility of sustained invasion from the skies.

Leaders of the 60,000 troops getting ready for D-Day Friday of Operations Swarmer disclosed some new equipment and techniques in airborne operations they will spring.

The glider—a mainstay of wartime aerial drops—is almost totally absent. Only two are scheduled for use. Instead, the emphasis is on a rapid build-up of men and equipment by transports after paratroopers seize and engineers repair an old airstrip.

The men of the Eighty-second and Eleventh Airborne Divisions will have the help of heavier weapons in their initial assault. For the first time in war maneuvers, a 90-millimeter anti-tank gun will float down with them under three 100-foot chutes.

¾-Ton Truck Drop

Another test will involve drop of a ¾-ton truck, while two batteries of 105-millimeter howitzers and a host of jeeps also will be parachuted. Heavier artillery—155-millimeter howitzers and two ½-ton trucks—will be flown in by Fairchild C-119 Pacers.

Army Transportation Corps forces under Brig. Gen. Paul F. Young have developed some of the most interesting of the innovations from lessons learned from the Berlin airlift.

They are using modified children's playground slides to get troops quickly out of Douglas C-54s—the doors of which are 13 feet above the ground. Turned upside down, with cleats nailed on, the slides serve as ramps to embark on these Air Force versions of commercial DC-4 transports.

Still other equipment aimed at speeding up the "turn-around" of transports are adjustable ramps mounted on 2½-ton trucks and a quickly assembled light ramp for unloading at the airhead.

Operation A New Concept

But the greatest departure in Operation Swarmer over prior war or peace airborne operations is in its general concept. Heretofore, airdrops and aerial supply projects have been limited in scope or surroundings.

The former counted on a quick outcome—such as a line-up with advancing ground forces or speedy defeat of the enemy (as at Crete). In the latter—the Berlin lift or the China "Hump" operation, for example—there was little or no opposition.

In Swarmer the Pentagon high command seeks to determine if an airhead can be captured and continuously supplied and expanded by air alone. Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, USAF, the operation commander, emphasized this in his "briefing" this morning.

"This concept has not been tested in peace or war before to determine whether it can be done on a sustaining basis," he said.

22,600 Trops to Be Airlifted

According to General Yount, a total of 22,600 troops and 20,000 tons of supplies will be airlifted into the airhead during the 10 days the exercise is underway.

Troops of the Eleventh Airborne will make the first drop on the abandoned airstrip at Camp Mackall. This is their first return since the division was trained here in 1943. After the airfield is taken from enemy forces, the airhead will be built up and airborne troops will move overhead against Fort Bragg. Aided by another airdrop, Pope Field there will be seized, under plans of the airborne forces.

The situation is assumed to be as follows: Nation "Aggressor" has seized Florida and gained a foothold in North Carolina by airborne and sea forces. It is organizing for an assault on Washington and Winston-Salem, when United States forces strike back.

Fifth Corps Sent In

Containing the invader around the perimeter of his territory we send in the Army's V Corps—two airborne divisions and the simulated Third Infantry Division—and keep it going indefinitely to tear the invading forces to pieces.

The American forces have air superiority over Aggressor. Of the some 675 planes involved, 225 are transports on the United States side. The remainder are divided 125 for Aggressor to 325 to the American forces. Aggressor has a regimental combat team supported by tanks defending on the ground.

Top Defense officials expected here tomorrow include the new Secretaries of Army and Air Force, Frank Pace, jr., and Thomas K. Finletter, and those services' Chiefs of Staff, Gens. J. Lawton Collins and Hoyt Vandenberg.

Szakasits Resigns Top Hungary Post

ARPAD SZAKASITS
Social Democrat Is Out

Budapest, April 26 (AP).—Arpad Szakasits, 62-year-old Social Democratic chairman of Hungary's presidential council, resigned today, giving ill health as the season.

Budapest newspapers said another Social Democrat, Shandor Ronai, now Minister of Foreign Trade, would be nominated to succeed Szakasits. Ronai also is a member of the Politburo of the Hungarian Workers Party, a merger of Socialists and Communists.

Szakasits, who resigned in a one-sentence letter to Parliament, succeeded Zoltan Tildy, a member of the Smallholder Party, as President of Hungary in August, 1948. When the new constitution went into effect last summer the post of president was abolished and he became chairman of the substitute presidential council.

He had been secretary-general of the Social Democratic Party since soon after the First World War, and led that party into its merger with the Communists in 1948.

Ronai has been a minister in the government since 1947 when Communists took over control of the country from the Smallholder Party.

Allies To Stay In West Berlin, Acheson Feels

Secretary Acheson expressed confidence yesterday that the Western powers would still be in Berlin after the threatened Communist demonstration there at the end of May.

Last Saturday a high official told reporters that the Western troops in Berlin would use machine guns if necessary to repel a mass invasion by Communist youth organizations from the Soviet-controlled eastern sector of the city.

Yesterday, at his press conference, Acheson declined to say just what the troops would do in the event of trouble. But he said it had been made quite clear already in London, Paris and Washington that the Western powers intended to be very firm indeed.

Asked whether the three powers might send a joint note to Russia to head off the demonstration, Acheson answered that the West was not going to reveal all its intentions. The Communists will discover our plans, he said, when those plans are carried out.

When all the commotion dies away we will still be in Berlin, he added.

The mayor of Bremen and 15 members of the West German parliament were in the Secretary's audience yesterday. They are here as guests of the Government.

U. S. Can Expect Cold War Losses, Matthews Warns

New York, April 26 (AP).—The United States can expect casualties in its cold war with Russia, says Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

Addressing a group of reserve officers last night, he declared:

"The recent incident involving the loss of the Navy patrol plane in the Baltic is proof that our posture of firmness cannot be maintained without casualties."

The Secretary added:

"The four officers and six enlisted men who were lost in that cruel tragedy are as truly fallen airmen of the United States as the heroic officers and men of all the services who died during the war."

Peron Promotion Asked

Foodstuffs Bound for Berlin . . .

HELPING HANDS—Admiral Richard E. Byrd (left) and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former chief of the U. S. Military Government in Germany, lend a hand as food gifts, part of shipment of three million pounds of foodstuffs, are loaded aboard the freighter American Clipper in New York. Funds for the cargo's purchase were raised through an appeal by Admiral Byrd, General Clay and former Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles to counteract the threatened blockade in Communist threats to seize Berlin in May

U. S. Diplomats to Leave China

Hongkong, April 26 (AP).—The last 50 United States State Department employes still in Red China will leave Saturday along with 800 or more other foreigners, a United States consular official said today.

They will point for Tientsin in North China.

Thus, suddenly, weeks of effort to bring out an estimated 2000 foreigners stranded in Red Shanghai began to show results. Two previous attempts fell flat.

It was estimated the Gordon will bring away at least half of the foreigners wanting to leave Shanghai.

A private report from Shanghai indicated the Reds finally have let down the barriers against foreign businessmen leaving the city.

Foreigners are "leaving at the rate of 30 to 40 daily," the report said.

Defenders of Chusan Warned to Be Ready

Hongkong, April 26 (U.P.).—The Nationalist defenders of the Chusan Islands have been warned to prepare for a Russian-supported Communist attack "at any moment," Nationalist officials in Taipei said today.

The Chusans, 90-odd miles southeast of Shanghai, are expected to be the next Communist invasion target after the Reds complete their occupation of Hainan Island.

Tinghai, naval and air base for the Nationalist blockade of Shanghai, is in the Chusans. Planes and ships based there would threaten the flank of any attempted attack on Formosa.

Communist and Nationalist reports agreed today that some fighting is continuing on Hainan, but there was no indication the Red mastery of the island was threatened.

Maj. Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, son of Nationalist President Chiang Kai-shek, said he had warned the Chusan defenders to gird for a "life and death battle . . . A great number of Soviet planes, together with Soviet military technicians and advisers, have joined the Chinese Red army."

Schuman Favors Super-Council

Paris, April 26 (AP).—French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman proposed today the creation of a new executive machine to coordinate political, economic and defense policies of the Western world.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of provincial editors, Schuman referred to the various international organizations formed since the war for military, economic or political reasons.

"These organizations must be brought into harmony," he said.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Schuman is thinking of a new agreement among nations which now belong to the North Atlantic Pact, the Council of Europe, the Brussels Pact and the Marshall Plan.

This, he said, means that west Germany, Austria and Switzerland, for example, would be brought into the proposed new organization. The Germans the Austrians and the Swiss participate in the Marshall Plan, but not in the others.

Schuman spoke of a supreme Atlantic council, first suggested a week ago by Premier Georges Bidault.

But the spokesman said Schuman's idea is actually a development beyond Bidault's original proposal. He added that the two are in full agreement on the new idea.

The spokesman said Schuman believes the present structure among the Western nations is too complicated:

U. S. Hits Back At Romania by Closing Office

NYNT News Service

The United States requested the Communist Romanian government yesterday to close its office of commercial attache, 26 W. 56th st., New York.

By this action, which retaliated for Romania's order to close the United States information center in Bucharest—the United States sought to disrupt a "racket" by which the Romanian government collected several hundred thousand dollars a year in prepaid customs duties on packages to Romania.

To obtain these dollars, the Communist regime in Bucharest imposed such heavy duties on relief packages that Romanian recipients were unable to pay the amount of lei (in Romanian currency) demanded. Often these duties amounted to several times the value of the packages. Romanians were therefore obliged to request relatives in the Unted States to send the packages with duties prepaid. This gave the Romanian government a chance to harvest dollars.

In a note delivered to the Romanian Legation, the United States requested "final and complete closing" of the New York office by May 9. The note declared the activities of the office "constitute an unauthorized extension of the consular function of the Romanian Legation at Washington." It added that the United States had never consented to the establishment of a Romanian consulate in New York.

It was disclosed that the New York office has been operating illegally since 1946. A foreign government must apply for permission before opening a consular establishment, and Romania never requested such permission. Had Romania done this, the United States would have countered by asking Romanian permission to open a consulate in Constanta, on the mouth of the Danube.

The State Department published the text of an American note delivered yesterday at Bucharest rejecting in sharp terms Romania's explanation of its USIS closure order. This declared that the information service delivered only legitimate news and gave a "balanced picture of America." It declared Romania had brought "completely baseless" charges against USIS employes, supporting them in manipulated testimony in purge trials.

"The Romanian government's persistently unfriendly behavior toward the United States and its lack of cooperation in promoting international enmity give a hollow tone to its voice in the Communist 'peace offensive'," said the United States objection.

Great Powers Pact Proposed By Czechs

London, April 26 (U.P.).—Czechoslovakia's Communist government presented a plan to Great Britain today for "a peace pact between the great powers" to end the cold war.

The proposal was received somewhat coldly at the Foreign Office because it demanded that the Western powers stop making armaments, including atomic weapons, and stop alleged preparations for war—but said nothing about disarmament of Communist countries.

Czechoslovakia submitted the proposal in a note, saying a resolution incorporating the plan had been passed by the Czechoslovak Parliament. Czechoslovakia asked that the plan be presented to the British Houses of Lords and Commons.

Foreign Office sources said it was "highly unlikely" that the resolution would be presented to Parliament.

Notes are to be sent to all other governments with which Czechoslovakia has diplomatic relations, including the United States, Czech officials here said.

Observers believed the note was a propaganda move in anticipation of the meeting of the United States, British and French foreign ministers here May 8.

The resolution it contained demanded that "an end be put to the existing tension in the world by the conclusion of a peace pact between the great powers within the framework of the United Nations, which must again take up its original mission."

It charged that "imperialist" powers led by the United States and Britain, and aided by the Vatican and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia were preparing for a war to save capitalism.

Girl, 3½, Is Killed In Elevator Accident

New York, April 26 (U.P.).—Angela Geissler, 3½-year-old great-great-granddaughter of Publisher Horace Greeley, was crushed to death today in a self-service elevator.

Her mother, Mrs. Caroline Geissler, said she put the child in the elevator to send her to a day nursery. Police said the elevator caught Angela's foot and crushed her between the car and the wall.

Attlee Wins 2 Tests on Budget, Each by Margin of 5 Votes

London, April 26 (AP). — The Labor government survived by five votes today the most serious challenge to its existence since it came to power in 1945.

It forced through Commons by identical votes—304 to 299—two tax proposals in its 1950-51 budget against the united opposition of Winston Churchill's Conservatives and the Liberal Party.

One of the government measures doubled the gasoline tax, from 9 pence (10.5 cents) to a shilling and a half (21 cents) a gallon. The other placed a 33 1/3 percent purchase tax on trucks.

Had Prime Minister Attlee been beaten on either issue he would have been expected to resign and ask for a new election.

Minutes before the first of the two showdown votes, the Laborites received the news that their majority in the House had been increased to eight by victory in a Scottish by-election.

The triumph came in the Dumbartonshire West division. Tom Steele, Laborite insurance agent, won from Conservative Robert Allan by 293 votes—20,367 to 20,074—after a recount.

Every able-bodied man on both sides of the House who was not excused because of official duties took part in the two votes today.

All nine Liberals voted with the Conservatives. This strengthened rumors that they have talked over with Churchill the possibility of joining him in a coalition government if Attlee's cabinet should fall.

War Minister Emanuel Shinwell was taken ill with stomach pains, but remained for both tests. His ailment later was diagnosed as a slight attack of food poisoning.

Senate to Act Today on ECA Aid to Spain

The first Senate action on the foreign-aid bill will come today on an amendment by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) to lend up to 100 million dollars to Franco Spain.

After almost a week of languid debate over foreign aid, Senators agreed yesterday to allot two hours to the McCarran proposal and to vote on it at 2 p. m.

McCarran would add a new section to the $3,366,000,000 bill, which already includes aid to Korea, Formosa and Arab refugees, as well as third-year funds for the Marshall Plan in Europe.

The amendment would let Paul Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, issue notes "from time to time" in the next fiscal year "for assistance to Spain on credit terms." This is the same procedure now used for loans to Marshall Plan countries.

McCarran would exempt Spain from the cooperative obligations that now apply to the 18 countries in the Marshall Plan. Still, the Administration strongly opposes his proposal on the ground that the Marshall Plan is a cooperative venture and that the western Europeans themselves should decide whether to admit Spain.

Senator J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.) said yesterday that the foreign-aid debate had been "listless" because nobody really believed the Marshall Plan was the answer to Europe's problems. He said the plan had discouraged the unification of Europe up to now, but the United States could not abandon it.

Bitterly critical speeches came, as in past years, from Senators William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) and George W. Malone (R., Nev.). Jenner attacked the "utter hypocrisy" of John Foster Dulles, who was sworn in yesterday as a consultant to Secretary Acheson, and both Senators warned that Republicans who followed bipartisanship did not represent their party.

GSA Opens Bids For Office Rental Of 2 Agencies

General Services Administration yesterday opened nine bids for rental of office space to accommodate the National Capital Housing Authority and the Displaced Persons Commission.

Contracts will not be awarded until all bids have been studied, an official said.

Included among the low bids were one by Michael Walsh & Sons, 12,220 square feet for $8400 a year at 49 T st. nw., without services, and another by Commercial Construction Co., Inc., 14,500 square feet for $12,000 a year on I street between 3d and 4th sts. nw., without services.

$350-Million Defense Increase Quickly Voted by House Unit

Air Force and Navy planes, and got behind the Johnson air items instead. He said the Johnson increases covered 60 percent of his own proposed boost.

Blow to Economy Drive

The 350 million dollars added by the committee increased the total for defense in the 29 billion omnibus appropriation bill to $14,261,127,300 and dealt the biggest jolt yet to the GOP's congressional economy drive.

The House to date has refused even to cut nondefense items below the total recommended by the committee. Through yesterday it had already voted a net nondefense increase of $67,300,000.

Economy minded Republicans nonetheless promptly swung behind the defense increase. House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.), told newsmen:

"While we are for economy, we have always made an exception of National defense. We must keep our defenses strong. We have to rely on what the Joint Chiefs of Staff think is necessary."

Other Defense Steps

In addition to new funds for planes and antisubmarine defense, Johnson announced arrangements for these other defense steps, to be financed "by means of economies elsewhere in the budget:"

Marine aviation to include 16 marine air combat squadrons, instead of the 12 squadrons contemplated when the budget was submitted.

Transfer of 24 million dollars to help speed up research and development of certain weapons, particularly antitank etquipment.

"What we need today is hardware," he told the committees. "This program is addressed exclusively to the procurement of hardware."

In one paragraph Johnson 6summed up the cold war developments influencing the reappraisal of defense needs.

"The events to which I allude," he said, "include the Soviet atomic explosion, the fall of China, the serious situations in southeast Asia, the break in diplomatic relations with Bulgaria and deteriorating relations with other satellite countries, the Soviet assumption of control over the armed forces of Poland, Soviet naval expansion, the recent attack on a navel aircraft in the Baltic, and the recent Soviet demands relative to Triests."

He said work already done by the Council of Foreign Ministers, the Council of Defense Ministers and the Chiefs of Staff of the North Atlantic Pact nations has presented for the first time "a fairly clear picture of the collective military requirements of the North Atlantic Community of Nations."

As a result of the reappraisal, he warned that appropriations in excess of those asked this year may possibly be needed for some years to come, not only for our own military program, but for the military aid program. He said our North Atlantic partners may be "required by the force of events" to take similar action.

Johnson praised testimony presented earlier by General Eisenhower, following a New York speech voicing concern about our defenses. The Secretary said other Eisenhower proposals either have been carried out or are planned.

Political Punishment Of Business Charged

By The Associated Press

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corp., made a bitter attack yesterday on "powerful" groups in Government that he said seek to dismember American business.

Declaring that all American industry is on trial "because it has served the public too well—because it has pleased too many customers and has built the geratest industrial nation on the face of the earth," Fairless said:

"Successful service to the Nation now strangely seems to be the signal for the political punishment of those who performed it."

He said those people intent on "dismembering business" are "the most dangerous reactionaries of this twentieth century."

Before Monopoly Probers

Fairless' views were presented to a House Monopoly Subcommitteee investigating the steel industry.

His statement was one of the strongest to be made before congressional critics of big business. Fairless told the committee that U. S. Steel "is successful, it is profitable, it is efficient, and it is a large enterprise."

"These are the simple facts and I am proud of them."

But he declared there are within the Government "powerful agencies and groups which hold that all this is wrong. They hold that there is something inherently vicious in bigness, and growth and success."

Some of these groups, he said, would break up successful business enterprises "even though the high quality of their service to the public is unquestioned."

Others would put arbitrary limits on business size, he went on. And some would subject business to utility regulation by Government bureaus.

"By dismembering business, they would turn back the clock to 50 years or more ago, and would try to squeeze a modern, dynamic, efficient America once more into the puny production patterns of industrial childhood.

"Or, by subjecting American productive enterprise to the deadening hand of political regulation, they would borrow from the Old World the dismal economic philosophies that have led most of Europe to desolation and despair.

"They would substitute governmental regulation for competition, and political pressures for government control."

Fairless said the Nation needs big business as well as small business. They are interdependent, he declared, despite the attempt of "statistically minded theorists" to create economic class distinctions.

He called "a myth" the charge that United States Steel possesses monopoly powers enabling it to restrict competition.

"The fact is," he told the committee, "that when United States Steel was created in 1901, it produced 66 percent of all the steel then made in America—twice as much as all of its competitors put together. Today it produces only 33 percent of the Nation's steel.

"True, U. S. Steel's production has grown greatly during the half century, but its competitors have grown nearly four times as much," he added.

Testimony to Justice Department

After Tuesday's session, Chairman Celler (D., N. Y.) announced he was referring to the Justice Department testimony imputing to J. H. Hillman, jr. of Pittsburgh, a dual directorship in two steel companies.

Celler said a violation of the Clayton antitrust law might be involved if Hillman were on the boards of both the Alan Wood Steel Co. and the Pittsburgh Steel Co., as stated by Securities and Exchange Commissioner Donald C. Cook.

Fast Time to Affect Timetables

Train, bus and flight service in and out of Washington will be affected by the beginning of daylight-saving time Sunday in many cities of the Nation.

The changes are so numerous that prospective travelers shouldn't rely on old timetables. Most of the transportation facilities are issuing new timetables to become effective Sunday.

The Pennsylvania Railroad said most of the trains will be operated an hour earlier than the current Standard Time schedules.

The Pennsylvania Railroad also announced that the running time of its major passenger trains will be reduced.

The Liberty Limited, Chicago to Washington, will be speeded up to arrive here at 8:35 a. m. EST. The Pennsylvania Limited, Washington to Chicago, will be 40 minutes faster.

Publishers Hear Attack on U. S. Spending

New York, April 26 (AP).—Pyramiding "chaos and waste" in the Federal Government must be checked, if a sound economy is to be preserved, American newspaper publishers were told today.

Oveta Culp Hobby, publisher of the Houston Post, said the Government has become so increasingly complicated that the people can't understand it and officials can't administer it efficiently.

She told the sixty-fourth annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association that the whole complexity of Government has led to an "overplanned economy, an overgoverned Nation and an overspent budget."

The means must be found for eliminating wastes, cutting taxes and simplifying Government, she said, "if venture capital is to be free to provide an expanding economy in the United States."

The attractive, wartime WAC commander pointed to the Hoover Commission's recommendations on Government reorganization as offering a "blueprint for getting better government, for less money."

But, she said, no reforms can be achieved "unless public interest is not only aroused but sustained."

The publishers, meeting on the second day of their three-day convention, also heard a plea from Edwin S. Friendly, ANPA president, for a newspaper crusade against sex crimes.

"The depraved sex criminal has replaced the kidnaper as a threat to the peace of mind of the parents of America," he said.

Court Disbars Durant, Gem Theft Figure

Former Army Col. Jack W. Durant, who was convicted of the million-dollar Hesse jewel theft in Germany, was disbarred as a lawyer here yesterday in District Court.

In obtaining the disbarment, the court's grievance committee mentioned the fact that Durant is serving 14 years for the offense.

Durant who practiced law here before the war told the court that his "crime" did not involve moral turpitude since "numberless" other soldiers engaged in similar acts without punishment.

District Court in another proceeding suspended the practising privileges of lawyer Joseph A. Brown, 1330 U st. nw., for nine months. Brown was charged with failing to remit a settlement to a client until six months after he received it. The client, under the contract with her lawyer, was to get half of the $450 settlement, with Brown and another lawyer splitting the other half.

Pump Rates Reflect Gasoline Price Rise

Pump prices of gasoline here yesterday began to reflect the nine-tenths of a cent wholesale boost ordered this week by nearly every large supplier here and along the East Coast.

D. C. checks showed that the retail increases ranged from nine-tenths of a cent to a full cent.

The Esso Standard Oil Co. announced its wholesale price hike Tuesday and Shell, Gulf, Texaco, Sinclair, Amoco and City Service followed suit yesterday. Sun Oil Co. officials here have not yet received orders to invoke a similar boost, but expected it last night.

A spokesman for Gasoline Retail Gasoline Dealers, Inc., here said many District filling stations began charging the extra nine-tenths of a cent in sales at noon yesterday and expected nearly all others here to absorb the increase within the next few days.

Present pump price on regular gasoline ranges from about 23.8 to 25.1 cents a gallon.

Chief Orders Police To Stop 'Wolf Calls'

Maracaibo, Venezuela, April 26 (U.P.).—The chief of police ordered members of the force today to stop "wolf-whistling" at girls or face a 30-day jail term.

When a similar edict applying to the entire male population was issued last year, women organized a protest demonstration and the measure was repealed.

3 Reappointed To Posts With Court Agencies

The judges of District Court yesterday announced the appointment of four persons to court-supervised agencies.

Vincent Saccardi, 4815 17th st. nw., was reappointed to the District jury commission for a three-year term beginning May 17.

Reappointed to a four-year term as chairman and lawyer member of the Mental Health Commission was Thomas Gillespie Walsh.

Reappointed as a physician member of the commission for a four-year term was Dr. Albert E. Marland. A new appointee to the commission for a four-year term is Dr. Dorothy D. Dowd.

Wheel From Plane Identified by U. S.

Stockholm, Sweden, April 5 (AP).—The still-bright wreckage of a retractable landing gear, scarred by what may have been bullet, appeared to be the most important clew yet to the disappearance of a United States Navy Privateer plane.

The United States has charged the plane was shot down by Russia over the Baltic April 8. The wrecked landing gear, pulled from the Baltic yesterday in a Swedish fisherman's net, carried the name of a Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturer.

Wilfrid Fleisher, press attache at the American Embassy, said lettering on the landing gear "indicates it belonged to a plane of the same type as the missing Navy Privateer."

American and Swedish sources pointed out that the missing Privateer is the only plane of that type known to have been lost in the eastern Baltic in recent years.

Comdr. Stellan Hermelin of the Swedish naval staff said the position of the find indicated the gear had plunged into the Baltic about 40 miles directly west of Polanga, Lithuania, or 28 miles beyond the 12-mile limit of territorial waters claimed by Russia.

The American Government has declared the four-engined patrol plane was unarmed.

(Copenhagen police reported finding another possible clew, an overall-type yellow rubber suit with zippers and a jacket wrapped up in a brown cloth, which was washed ashore on the Danish island of Langeland. The suit is being turned over to the American Embassy.)

New Revolt Flares Up In Indonesia

Jakarta, U. S. I., April 26 (AP).—Amboinese authorities declared the South Moluccas independent today. A radio message told of this fourth revolt in four months within the United States of Indonesia.

The Moluccas, once-renowned spice islands now in a commercial backwash, dot the sea between Celebes and New Guinea. Amboina is the name both of one district and the capital.

Military sources in Jakarta said Indonesian troops of the Netherlands Indies army joined the rebellion. A battalion is garrisoned at Amboina. These are among troops who have been awaiting demobilization or transfer to the U. S. I. federal army since the Netherlands gave Indonesia independence last December. The federal government has no soldiers in the Moluccas.

The revolt, like the others, appeared to stem from efforts by Premier Mohamed Hatta's central government to junk the federal structure and make a single state of all the islands based on the Indonesian Republic, which led the fight for independence.

This move was in the background of a short-lived West Java rebellion of Capt. R. R. P. "Turk" Westerling, a previous flare-up among Dutch-trained Indonesian troops in Amboina and seizure of Makassar, the East Indonesian capital, by Indonesians newly transferred from the Dutch to U. S. I. army service. All were put down.

ONLY 12 OUT of 100 CATTLE
Acceptable for GIANT TopNotch Beef!

ARMOUR AND COMPANY
GENERAL OFFICES, UNION STOCK YARDS
CHICAGO 9, ILLINOIS

April 20, 1950

Giant Food Department Stores
P. O. Box 1804
Washington 13, D. C.

Dear Sirs:

Your specifications for GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef are most rigid, and a lot goes on behind the scenes to produce and select the small percentage of cattle that will meet your exacting specifications.

BREEDING Only certain pure strain breeds of cattle will efficiently convert corn and other feeds into GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef.

FEEDING It takes many months of scientific feeding on a diet principally of corn to produce GIANT TOP-NOTCH quality.

BUYING It takes qualified livestock buyers, with years of experience, to recognize GIANT TOP-NOTCH quality in cattle on the hoof.

PROCESSING Extensive facilities are necessary for converting these cattle into GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef to retain all of the quality and goodness that the producer has painstakingly built into the cattle with many months of careful feeding.

SELECTION To the eye of the expert beef grader, who makes the final selection of GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef, this quality is indicated by "marbling", "covering" and "finish" — referring to the distribution of fat through the red meat and the texture of the meat.

We selected our Omaha and Sioux City plants as the primary source of supply for GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef as these plants are located in the heart of the corn country and, throughout the year, their receipts of the best grades of cattle will be more consistent than other markets.

Proof of the rigidity of your specifications for GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef is best indicated by the fact that, in the total production of cattle at Omaha, only 15 out of every 100 would be acceptable for GIANT TOP-NOTCH selection; at Sioux City, only 14 out of every 100 would be acceptable. OF THE COMBINED PRODUCTION AT ALL ARMOUR PLANTS, ONLY 12 OUT OF EVERY 100 WOULD BE ACCEPTABLE FOR GIANT TOP-NOTCH.

Our 80 years of experience in the beef business is an insurance policy that underwrites the quality of every cut of GIANT TOP-NOTCH Beef produced in Armour plants.

Yours very truly,

GIANT TopNotch BEEF

U. S. Department of Agriculture quotations on western dressed beef show that each grade, whether "good" or "choice," has a wholesale price difference as high as 4c a pound. Therefore, if it is possible to pay as much as 4c a pound difference for the same grade, there must be a difference in the quality! GIANT always pays "top" price to be sure of getting the grade's TOP quality.

detectives; Capt. Robert V. Murray, Bryant's assistant; Lieut. Edgar E. Scott, head of the robery squad, and Lieuts. George Cooper and Otto Fuss and Detective Sergeants Nunzio Bonaccorsy, Edwin B. Crandall, Paul H. Clarke, James Roche and Sparshott and Coffey, all of the robbery squad.

They were joined by Detective Richard A. Pearson, Sergt. E. R. Thompson, Corpl. Roland Seitzer and Policemen Emmett Kay, H. E. King and J. W. Vincent of the county police.

Campbell and Heslop waived extradition and were speedily brought into the District for questioning. They supplied police with the address on Evarts st. where Danner, Mozzone and Mason were staying.

At 7 a. m., detectives entered a third-floor apartment at the Evarts st. address and found Mason and a 24-year-old cab driver who was later released, sleeping. They learned that Danner and Mozzone had just driven off in the hacker's cab.

A lookout was broadcast for the cab and it was spotted 15 minutes later, at 5th and Otthorpe sts. nw., by Motorcycle Policeman Edward Cave. He stopped the cab and held Danner and Mozzone at gunpoint until reinforcements arrived.

In the Evarts st. apartment, police found a .32 caber automatic and something which interested them mightily—the shirt and cap of a Brink's guard, and a Sam Brown belt and gun holster.

Asked about the million-dollar Brink's holdup in Boston, the gang members laughed. They would not disclose where they had obtained the guard uniform. However, police said they were convinced none of the youths was involved in the Boston holdup.

Police also learned that Heslop had been treated April 11 for a gunshot wound in the abdomen at Prince Georges General Hospital. At that time, Heslop told county police he shot himself accidentally. However, local detectives said they now believe "Bad Man" Campbell shot Heslop during an argument.

Police said Mozzone left Washington the latter part of February and headed south. He met Mason while both were hitchhiking in Alabama. Mozzone and Mason, according to police, stole a Mercury sedan in Huntsville, Ala., then drove to Nashville, Tenn., where they broke into a filling station and stole two pistols and gasoline for the car. Their next stop was Washington.

Back in the District, Mozzone ran into Danner whom he had known previously and Danner introduced the boys with the speedy Mercury to Heslop and Campbell.

Police said the gang insisted their first job, the holdup of the sheet metal workers union headquarters, yielded only $397 and not $100 as reported.

Mozzone waited in the Evarts st. apartment while the other four pulled the job, according to police. Mozzone told them, he added $3 from his own pocket to the loot to make it an even $400 so they could make a five-way split of $80 each.

The big haul—nearly $4000—was made the following day at the Martin Co. offices in Arlington. The Mercury was abandoned in Arlington after this job because it was rightfully deemed to be "hot." But the gang had money now and bought a Hudson and a Cadillac.

Police said Mason, Mozzone and Campbell collaborated on the holdup April 12, at the Fruit Growers Express Co. office.

Heslop and Danner were incapacitated. Heslop had been shot in the abdomen, accidentally or otherwise, the previous day and Danner was in Georgetown University Hospital having his nose straightened by a plastic surgeon.

It was Mozzone whose blotched complexion gave the outfit its name of the "Pimple Faced Gang."

Romer, the treasurer who was pistol-whipped in the Fruit Growers Express Co. holdup, appeared at yesterday's hearing before Commissioner Lawrence and identified Mason, Mozzone and Campbell.

He said it was Mason who struck him in the face twice with the butt of his gun but only after removing his (Romer's) glasses.

Police denied that soiled shirts found in the abandoned Mercury led to the five youths. Laundry marks on the shirts, however, were matched successfully with articles of clothing found yesterday in the Evarts st. apartment and Maryland bungalow.

District Officials Ask For Budget Increases

District officials yesterday asked the House District Appropriations Subcommittee to approve $7,250,000 in addition to the District budget.

Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.), subcommittee chairman, said the hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. today. He reported he hopes to wind up by noon. Most of the money is to cover costs of pay raises for District employes voted last year, he said.

The pay boosts include a $330 increase for city employes, a raise in the pensions of widows of police and firemen, hikes for Municipal Court judges and raise for District classified employes ordered by the Federal reclassification law.

Worker Hurt in Fall

Owen H. Harrison, 40, of 1213 M st. nw., was injured yesterday when he fell from a scaffold while painting a house at 5613 Woodway dr., Bethesda, Montgomery County police reported.

Taken to Suburban Hospital by the Glen Echo Rescue Squad, he was said to have a possible fractured right ankle and hip and chest injuries. His condition was listed as satisfactory.

Harvard Graduate, 60, Guilty of Wife Murder

Cambridge, Mass., April 26 (U.P.)—Marshall W. Cox, 60, a Harvard graduate, was convicted of first degree murder today in what he called the "mercy killing" of his wife, Helen, 62. The verdict carries a mandatory penalty of death in the electric chair.

Mrs. Cox was killed with an ice pick and claw hammer as she sat at a piano in her home, playing a Mozart sonata February 21, 1948.

Richitt Affair Action Delayed

The report on the Police Department's Richitt affair—submitted three weeks ago—is still awaiting action by the District Commissioners.

Commissioner John Russell Young has said the report will be made public as soon as the Commissioners decide what to do with it. They have examined it but have been too busy with other matters, such as congressional hearings, to discuss it thoroughly, he said yesterday.

Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, handed the report to Young April 7, five weeks after the blow-up that followed Capt. Anthony Richitt's disciplinary transfer from the Third to the Eighth Precinct.

It presumably deals with reported erasures in Third Precinct records and perhaps other aspects of the differences between Richitt and his chief, Maj. Robert J. Barrett.

Striking At The Source

Justice Jackson raised an interesting point in his lone dissent in the Lee Cassell case. The effect of the court's decision is to free, or to provide a new trial for a Negro who crushed the skull of a sleeping watchman with a piece of iron pipe to carry out a burglary. There was no question as to the defendant's guilt. His conviction was reversed because of discrimination on the part of a Texas jury commissioner in selecting citizens to serve on the grand jury which indicted him. While recognizing the importance of eliminating discrimination in calling citizens for jury duty, Justice Jackson suggests that there is a better way of righting that wrong than setting aside a conviction for technical reasons where guilt is well established.

He points to the law which makes it a Federal offense to exclude persons from a jury because of color or race. The court's decision, he says, means that this law has been violated. Why is it not enforced? Certainly the interests of society would be better served by prosecuting officials who continue to invent new discriminatory practices than by having the convictions of criminals reversed on this ground when cases reach the Supreme Court. Of course, the court must continue to reverse convictions when any element of a fair trial has been lacking, but that only emphasizes the desirability of striking at this evil at its source.

The basic trouble is, of course, that some Southern officials continue to institute new forms of discrimination as fast as old forms are outlawed by the courts. It is high time for them to heed the Supreme Court's command that the color line be utterly disregarded in the selection of jurors. But continued resistance may be expected from some communities. Certainly there would be a saving of judicial energies and an improvement in law enforcement if these devices could be stopped by prosecuting officials responsible for them instead of relying upon the reversal of convictions when they reach the highest bench.

More Military Money

When Defense Secretary Johnson asks for an increase in the military budget, Congress would do well to take heed. Mr. Johnson has been damned from many directions—for the most part unjustly, in our opinion—for "cutting into muscle" with his economy program. Because of his record of squeezing out nonessentials, it is inconceivable that he has succumbed to pressures for more aircraft procurement without being convinced that additions are really necessary. In requesting $350 million more plus restoration of the $203 million cut by the House Appropriations Committee, he reflects the advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. What is hard to understand is why, if the advent of the Russian atomic bomb is one of the reasons behind the change, the request is so late in coming. Both Mr. Johnson and the Joint Chiefs had put their imprimatur on the original $13 billion 1951 budget as adequate for minimum needs. The present move looks like a graceful effort to get off the hook.

This newspaper already has stressed its feeling that a congressional vote for additional Air Force and Navy aircraft procurement must be accompanied by a thorough understanding of what such procurement entails in future obligations. In other words, while additional procurement may be necessary to keep aircraft strength up to date and to maintain an adequate aircraft industry, there ought to be no thought that Congress can vote and then forget the matter. There will have to be more money in future budgets to sustain a higher rate of procurement. Essential to any such program, we believe, is a resurvey by the military of the standards by which plane obsolescence is determined.

Immediately preceding the request for more money, Admiral Sherman testified on what the Navy would like to do to strengthen the antisubmarine program. The Vinson bill would authorize items to be included in the 1952 budget. While the bookkeeping here is somewhat mystifying, it is encouraging that the Navy is embarking more aggressively on antisubmarine protection. Admiral Sherman presented an integrated program for several experimental submarines, mine sweepers, conversion of surface vessels and a guided-missile ship. Although the guided-missile program has proceeded more slowly than anticipated, it has immense potential importance. Added impetus comes from the fact that the Russians are known to be building two guided-missile ships.

The most spectacular, though not the most important, item in Admiral Sherman's list is an atom-powered submarine. If such an experiment works—and it coincides with power reactor development by the Atomic Energy Commission—it will be the first harnessing of atomic power. Weight is not a great factor in submarines, and water is available for cooling—two conditions which are not present, for example, in the adaptation of atomic power to aircraft. Such military use of atomic energy may prove to be the most practical means of developing its immense non-military potential.

Between Two Fires

Senator Taft thinks that the 687 million dollars allocated to Great Britain under the ECA authorization bill is too high because: (1) the sterling area earned a small dollar surplus during the first quarter of this year, (2) Britain's depleted gold and dollar reserves have been built up to approximately two billion dollars and (3) the United Kingdom's budget is balanced.

Perhaps it doesn't make sense, as Senator Kem pointed out, for the United States to be helping other countries to balance their budgets, "internally and externally" while our own debt is "zooming." But our failure to practice what we preach is no excuse for a failure to discharge the obligations we assumed when we embarked on the recovery program, especially if aided nations have tried to follow our advice and met the conditions attached to a continuance of aid. We can guess what Senators Taft and Kem would be saying if the sterling area had a dollar gap as large as that of a year ago, if Britain's gold balances had shrunk to the disappearing point, and if Sir Stafford Cripps had abandoned his budget-balancing policy. No doubt they would have concluded—and rightly—that the recovery program was a washout, so far as Great Britain was concerned, and that the United States ought to cut its losses by refusing further aid to people doing nothing to help themselves.

The British have been urged by ECA officials to intensify their efforts to close the dollar trade gap and condemned for their failure to squeeze inflation out of the British economy by reducing welfare expenditures. So they must feel bewildered by the barrage of senatorial criticism that followed the discovery that they had made some progress along the road to recovery. Instead of regarding these evidences of improvement as an argument for granting the funds that ECA considers necessary to consolidate past gains, Mr. Taft and some of his like-minded colleagues cite the progress already made as an argument in favor of reductions or withdrawal of aid. The British must feel as if they are damned if they do, and damned if they don't.

Of course, such reasoning utterly ignores or misconceives the purpose of the recovery program: to enable aided countries to get along without dollar aid when the program comes to an end. However, the British are not yet out of the woods. The United Kingdom still has a huge dollar trade deficit and is still dependent on dollar aid to finance needed imports. Moreover, the ECA made its estimate of the amounts required by Britain next year in anticipation of an improvement in the balance of trade position of Great Britain and the sterling area. It should also be remembered that the recent marked improvement in the balance-of-payments position of the sterling area is chiefly due to: (1) a seasonal increase in sales of raw materials such as wool and cocoa, (2) a temporary upsurge of buying of sterling area products that had been held up in expectation of currency devaluation, and (3) sharp cuts in dollar imports by sterling area countries.

Since it is our aim to enable ECA countries to become independent of our aid by selling more instead of buying less, it should be obvious that immediate and drastic reductions in the amount of ECA funds allocated to the British would inevitably result in further and correspondingly sharp reductions in purchases of American goods. We do not believe, therefore, that Congress will approve a proposal to cut down the foreign aid program to an extent that would seriously affect our own export industries as well as stall the trade expansion program that we have spent billions of dollars to achieve.

Greek Outlook

Only the sketchiest outline of the program that Premier Nicholas Plastiras has put before the Greek Parliament is available. It is clear, however, that the program encompasses the action that Ambassador Grady had in mind in his March 31 representation. What he pleaded for was fiscal and administrative reform and the kind of self-help which is the condition precedent to ECA aid for economic rehabilitation. Without both the Greek victory over the Communists and the mandate at the polls in the March 5 election would be frustrated. It was not Plastiras himself that needed the reminder, but the party and palace politicians who had been trying to keep Plastiras out of the Premiership. It has always been Plastiras' aim to give the Greek people the square deal to which their 10-year tribulations entitle them.

There is nothing Communist in the makeup of the religious-minded and independent-minded people of gallant Greece. Why they almost lost themselves in the clutches of the Communists was in some part due to the persistent failure of the Greek politicians to attend to the elementary tasks of government. Politics was a game played at the expense of the Greek people. It had undermined representative institutions, and it was allied to profiteering in trade and business. Both combined to keep intact a tax system which left the profiteers untouched and to deprive the localities of self-government. It was for this reason that this newspaper has always coupled American help to Greece with domestic reform. As long ago as August 25, 1947, we saw in General Plastiras the only hope then in sight for decent government in Greece. This is what we said:

> We think the situation calls for drastic measures. It calls for the delegation of responsibility to such men as Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, who appears to have the confidence of all groups except the extremists. Certainly, too, it calls for a new election as soon as order can be restored and sufficient reforms instituted to give the rank and file full confidence that their voice can and will be accurately recorded at the polls. This aspect of the saving of Greece is no less important than the halting of Communist attacks across the borders. For independence and democracy must have a favorable climate in which to grow. Without such a climate, the hope of saving Greece from absorption into the Communist orbit or from domination by other foreign sources would be nil.

When the people, after getting rid of the Communist threat, were able to hold a free and full election, they justified this feeling by throwing their support to the three center parties. It was freely expected that they would be the nucleus of a government. And the three parties of the center seemingly had themselves decided that Plastiras would head a coalition for that purpose. But the King called upon the leader of one of these parties, the Liberal leader, Sophocles Venizelos, who could only have run the country with the aid of the discredited right-wing parties.

The King, of course, was within his rights, and doubtless had personal reasons to frown on Plastiras, who has always been anti-monarchist. However, the choice was a travesty of the popular will, and led to the Grady letter—a letter justified by the prospective hold-up of measures for which ECA money was already earmarked. Mr. Grady, as the representative of a party at interest, had no option but to point out the danger that American cooperation might be withdrawn.

Impostor Witnesses

The two former "FBI agents" summoned before the Tydings Subcommittee at Senator McCarthy's request fell flat on their faces—the one figuratively, the other, it would seem, literally. They left their sponsor looking, if possible, even more shabby and forlorn than before he called them. Their performance deserves scrutiny not only because of their part in the current inquiry but also because of the relationship they claim to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lawrence E. Kerley, the member of the pair who appeared Tuesday evening in response to the subcommittee's subpena, was actually, as he claimed, at one time a special agent of the FBI. It is a point of pride and a part of the esprit de corps of the FBI that very few of the men who have left its employ—and the number now runs into thousands—have traded on their former status. But Mr. Kerley seems to have made a business out of being a former FBI man. He had nothing whatever to contribute to the subcommittee Tuesday night save the information that while serving as a clerk in the bureau he recorded the engagement as an undercover informer of John J. Huber, the man who was to be Senator McCarthy's second witness but who "blacked out" instead of appearing. Of course, Mr. Kerley's information about Mr. Huber was confidential and his disclosure of it violated the spirit of the oath he took when he joined the FBI. It was also a violation of the President's order respecting the confidential character of FBI files.

Mr. Huber is a man who appears to have graduated from stool pigeon to impostor. He is no more entitled to call himself (or to be called by Senator McCarthy) a former "FBI agent" than any other person who may at one time have given confidential information to the agency. Regular investigative employes of the FBI are designated "special agents," a proud title that should not be debased by confusing it with tipsters, finger-men and common informers.

Accident Parade

At first reaction the sirens announcing the Junior Chamber of Commerce accident parade yesterday sounded as if someone had put to the test Secretary Acheson's description of the McCarthy charges and pulled all the fire boxes in town just to see if a fire might turn up. But any annoyance at the screeching soon turned to sober contemplation of the 15 automobile wrecks towed down the thoroughfare for everyone to see. Each of these mangled machines once contained human beings; six of them were death cars. The accident parade was a dramatic way of marking Accident Prevention Week and of emphasizing the horrible toll of speed and carelessness. If everyone who heard the sirens stopped to ponder just one moment that he himself might have been involved, the grisly procession was more than worthwhile.

FUGITIVE FROM WINTER

They try to trap the Summer; dreamers, all,
They flee from Winter; close their eyes and see
Long vines of sunlight on an orchard-wall,
The emerald fretwork of a leaf-filled tree.
Deaf to the roaring wind, the pounding rain,
They shut themselves indoors and dream of this—
Blue, cloudless days forged in a flawless chain,
A petal breaking from its chrysalis.
Wise fugitives from Winter, they ignore
The barren branches whereon no bird sings,
They see behind their tightly fastened door
Dark firelight-shadows change to shifting wings.
Lost in their dreams, unreconciled to snow,
They hold June's hand, and will not let her go!

"Let's Come To Order, Class. The Next Shift Is Waiting"

Pat On Back For Families

By Malvina Lindsay

Turning Tide?

ONE SURE-FIRE method of getting applause or a headline has been to declare that American family life (chiefly because of women) was sinking to a Sodom-Gomorrah stage. That may not work so well in future. For recent inventory on the family indicates a pickup in its stability.

Both markets are bullish, even though marriage rites have declined from their war boom state. Divorce is bearish. Home ownership is higher than at any time since 1900. Education for marriage and parenthood constantly becomes more widespread. Family relations courts aimed at preventing family breakups are becoming more general.

To the surprise of many, marriage and family relations did not follow the same pattern after the last war as after World War I. In contrast to the flaming youth of the 1920s who wanted freedom without responsibility, young people after 1945 showed a great yearning to marry, settle down and rear families.

This, Mrs. Ardis Whitman, of the National Council of Family Relations and consultant on family relations for the Y.W.C.A., calls "a normal rebound from the disintegration of family life in the 1920's." Winding up a recent series of lectures on marriage and family life held by Cooper Union, New York, Miss Whitman ventured into prophecy.

SHE SEES no startling changes ahead for the American family, rather general stabilizing trend. Barring catastrophes, the outlook is bright—less sex antagonism, less rigid division of labor between men and women, a possible decline in marital infidelity and in prostitution, a continuing drop in divorce and a growth of partnership in marriage.

She pointed out that the divorce rate dropped 50 percent from 1946 to 1949 and that 62 percent of all adults in the United States were now married and living together as compared with 54 percent in 1940.

The recent rise in birth rates for third and fourth children and the phenomenal birth rate rise among college women are considered especially significant by students of the family. Family spirit is much more pronounced today among intellectuals than during the 1920s. Not since before the turn of the century when talk of careers versus marriage for women became prevalent has there been such emphasis among the educated on mates and children.

Moreover, in the midst of all the talk about the woman surplus, Miss Whitman finds it encouraging to marriage that there is a narrowing margin between the number of younger men and women. The ratio of boys to girls under 15 is currently increasing, she reports.

BARRING WAR, that should save this country from many of the social ills that countries with large postwar surpluses of women have had to meet.

Yet despite all this optimism on the family outlook, the Jeremiahs won't have to go out of business. For the family does not have a smooth sea in its sail toward stability.

For all the interest in home ownership, for all the widespread longing for roots, moving day in this country is likely to continue an upset to stability for millions of families. Between 1940 and 1947, 70 million persons changed residence. War conditions contributed to this, but a high mobility of population continues and will continue in a country becoming more urban and more industrialized.

Hence the family will have to learn how to become flexible without losing its homogeneity and will have to build roots out of something else than earth, rocks and mortar. That will take some doing.

Then the longtime trend of women who work outside the home put a certain strain on family life. This seems a necessary and permanent economic development and it brings its values as well as its problems to the family. But it, too, means that the strength of the family will have to be built increasingly on human relationships rather than on visible material buttresses.

Loyalty And Birth

In the old days of the Republic, citizens held the origin of their parents to be no concern of the state.

Today, citizens are forced to apologize for their parents. Indeed, a Government employe was charged with having parents who emigrated from Russia. This was not a McCarthy charge. It happened in a proceeding under the President's Loyalty Order. The employe, a young lady holding a nonsecurity job in a nonsecurity agency, explained that her folks had permanently left Russia in 1913 to escape from pogroms. In candor she admitted, further, the bothersome fact that her folks were still alive.

True, security considerations apparently forbade revealing whether proscribed parents include parents who emigrated from Russia in the last century, or are limited to recent arrivals dating from 1930. So, too, we are not yet informed of the loyalty status of mothers and fathers born in any of the now Communist-dominated countries in eastern Europe. The sin of those mothers and fathers may yet be forgiven them.

Census Lament

It sounded very good—$8 or $10 a day for at least two weeks, possibly three. I took the civil service examination. Several weeks later a lady called to say that I'd been "nominated." For four days we learned to untangle the complicated layout of census taking. Then on April 1 we started off in high spirits to earn the promised $8 or $10.

For two weeks I trudged about day and night—in fact, largely at night—in order to catch those who work. Many respondents were most cooperative, but my ears rang with such remarks as "What business is it of the Government how many rooms I have?" "They can look that up in my income tax report." "This smacks of the Gestapo!" "We're playing bridge and can't stop to answer all those foolish questions I hear they ask. Come back next week."

Back and forth, back and forth—I walked a lot—vertically. We did so-called "piecework"—7 cents for each person (completed), 7 cents for each housing unit, and 7 cents for each "sample" line on which every fifth person fell—a purely spot survey. There was the rub. Often a member of the household could answer for one at work, unless his name fell on the sample line. That meant a return call to pick up the form he was to fill out.

Eight or ten dollars a day indeed! I am told that it has been done—in the slum areas, where they have large families of children, fleas and rickety stairs, but mostly it was just hours of simple frustration. Counting up I found that I made in the neighborhood of $50 for my two weeks and the four days of schooling. Small wonder there's a shortage of enumerators. Few people ever do it twice—but of course it will be another 10 years before the Government can lure another crop of innocents. There ought to be a law!

Smoking Out Commies

From the beginning of the McCarthy charges the attitude of some commentators and part of the press has been infuriating to patriotic citizens. One would think that it were Senator McCarthy who is under suspicion or on trial. When we know that there are all shades of Reds, pinks and mauves in our Department of State as well as in other departments, why should any red-blooded American, much less a Senator, whose duty it is to be ever on the alert for anything even faintly endangering the security of the Nation, be ridiculed and regarded askance for making charges of disloyalty there? True, such charges should not be made without good reason. Substantiated evidence is another thing, when evidence is deliberately withheld in this case by an Administration ever seeking to cover up all mistakes, past and present.

After the Hiss case, how can this Administration, any commentator, any columnist, any newspaper dare use the term "red herring" or even imply such motives when a charge of espionage or treason is made? The present Administration hit an all-time low in that sordid case. It is a travesty on everything decent citizens expect in a democratic government that nine years passed before Whittaker Chambers could get anyone in that government to listen to or act upon his charges.

In court a man is innocent until proven guilty, but in our dealing with anyone even faintly smelling of being besmirched with the foul filth of communism and treason we must hold them under stern suspicion until proven innocent, and that certainly not by their own protestations. Let us not be deceived by the so-called "intelligentsia."

In the Department of State there are still those who covered up for and stood by traitor Hiss. The Secretary of State would not disavow him even after he was duly convicted by a jury of his peers. How many more Hisses are there? The whole smelly mess needs cleaning out.

Luciano Deportation

I have always been interested in reading articles by your excellent reporter, Edward T. Folliard. What appeared under his by-line in your issue of April 2 especially caught my eye because, ever since Governor Dewey released "Lucky" Luciano from the penitentiary on the condition that he return to his native Italy, I have naturally wondered why. Mr. Folliard completely exploded the myth that this was a reward to Luciano for his patriotic service to the United States Navy during World War II.

But can Mr. Folliard, or anyone else, explain the motive of Governor Dewey in wishing this "notorious vice lord" upon Italy? Certainly the constitution of the Italian government at the time of this unfriendly and inconsiderate act was not such as to merit such a retaliation. And yet, the cool and calculating Dr. Dewey is not notorious for his impetuosity when his political ambitions might be involved.

For Legal Betting

Congress and the Metropolitan police have been trying to stop gambling in the District, yet horse-race results can be read in newspapers, heard on radios and the races seen on television.

Even President Truman is permitted to bet and collect his winnings on the opening game of the Nats. However, when Mr. Bandia (your April 20 issue) bets on the game he is hauled to court and fined $10. Is it fair, whether President or not, to let one bet, win and not be fined, and to arrest another for doing the same thing? After all, Mr. Truman is in a position of trust and should set an example for the rest of us to follow.

The American people are going to gamble, whether it's legal or not. It is being done in Government agencies and private industries alike. Poker hands are made of pay-check numbers, pots on baseball and football made up. It is a known fact Mr. Truman bet on the opening game of the Nats, and your paper so stated; let's permit the rest of the citizens of the District to bet without fear of being arrested, fined or jailed.

Postal Service Cut

The man with the small income—and probably the one with the larger—would not care to pay taxes for the privilege of having mail delivered to his home twice a day instead of once. Economies such as are about to be instigated in the Postal Department are definitely a step in the right direction. There must be many similar ways in which we could economize. By all means let us earn our luxuries before we enjoy them.

"Acheson Hits Back"

Allow me to thank you for that excellent editorial of April 24, "Acheson Hits Back."

His simile is well nigh perfect, when he compares the smearing campaign to pulling all the fire alarm boxes in the hope that someone might possibly turn up a fire.

JAMES L. SMILEY.

Congratulations to Dean Acheson for his straight-from-the-shoulder orations before the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Both his on- and off-the-record presentations not only exemplify the fine caliber and capability of the man himself, but also portray that our Department of State is cognizant of the seriousness of the present cold war attacks upon our homeland by the Kremlin and is constructively and diligently working toward a solution to bring satisfactory peaceful agreements between this country and the USSR.

In the face of senatorial needling, Mr. Acheson's extreme and well-founded loyalty to his subordinates and their honest efforts to further this solution illustrates most emphatically that it will take more than a Wisconsin windbag to deter the State Department's pursuit of amicable United States foreign relations.

Unfortunately some individuals still believe in the old adage that the proof of the pudding is in the eating. This continuous lack of faith in our diplomatic corps leads to the belief that even Christ, who was the best man God ever created, couldn't satisfy some of our pernicious political heathens.

JOANNE STOWE.
Washington.

It is greatly to your credit that you have taken the sane and decent attitude toward the McCarthy smear campaign. Nevertheless, looking back over the laborious and longtime buildup of this Communist bogey by your paper and almost all others, this McCarthy reductio ad absurdum comes as the payoff and to-be-expected boomerang. Having built up the Russophobia among the American people to a point where they cannot think on any subject with clarity, where the Congress runs crazily round and round the revolving squirrel cage chasing the tail of its obsession, did it ever occur to you all that the weapon you so carefully forged could be turned on our most precious possessions? Certainly there is a goodly portion of nemesis and elemental justice as we behold this knife cutting both ways.

One feels sorry for Mr. Acheson and all others who are wantonly "shot down" by this madman running amok. One feels deep shame and an overwhelming sense of frustration at the sorry spectacle our young country makes before the rest of the world. Nevertheless, McCarthy can well exclaim, "You did it! Never shake your gory locks at me!"

VICTORIA L. MONRO.

Mr. Acheson's "offensive" against the critics of the State Department proves him to be exceptionally courageous. Courage is a conspicuous part of greatness. It is a requisite and sometimes an indicant of genius, that irrepressible gift of the gods. Independent in thought, direct in purpose and frank with his fellow citizens, our Secretary of State has displayed the marks of the best type of American.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A Big Little Muddle

Lippmann

THIS WEEK we have seen the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee reject as "astounding" a "British proposal",—which has not been proposed—that he assumed is embodied in a memorandum—which he had not read. This fine little muddle has to do with a very big subject: the relation between recovery in Europe and development in Asia.

THE MUDDLE is the joint product of the Labor government in London and of the Truman Administration in Washington. What has happened in brief was this: last September at the meetings in Washington which preceded the devaluation of the currencies, there was an agreement by Britain, Canada and the United States to study together the problem of the sterling balances, that is to say the problem of Britain's war debts to Egypt, India, Pakistan and some other countries of Asia. This study, which is of the greatest consequence to the whole world, has been handled with the utmost bureaucratic inertia and clumsiness. Seven months have passed. The mountain has labored. The British have produced a memorandum. The memorandum produced not a considered American comment. It produced a leak in London to a London newspaper. This leak was then followed up here, not by the publication of the memorandum but, by more leaks from American sources. And this resulted in Senator Connally's rejection of the proposal which had not been made.

What should have happened is that in December, not in April, a joint study, not merely a British study, should have been completed. Before Congress met in January the Administration should have had a project for dealing with the development of Asia. Such a project must inevitably and necessarily have taken into account the British sterling balances. Then instead of a postmortem about Chiang Kai-shek, the attempt to invent or discover the master spy and the super architect of the China disaster the Congress would have had something to work on and to believe in which has to do with the future of Asia.

THOUGH the political climate in Washington could hardly be more unfavorable, what with the comeback of the Republican isolationists and the budgetary deficit, the subject is so important that an attempt will have to be made by somebody to put it before the country. That will not, of course, be possible until the Administration makes up its mind what it really does think about the whole problem.

But at least it is possible to clear away some of the prejudices which stand in the way of the consideration of any constructive solution. One way to begin to do that is to deal with the notion, apparently Senator Connally's, that the British have invented a new scheme for making us shoulder their war debts. They have not. They have explained once again what everyone who ever looked at the question for 10 minutes has always known: that they have been making heavy repayments of their sterling balances to India, Pakistan, Egypt and south Asia which they could not have made if they had not received Marshall aid from us. As a matter of fact the figures show that what the British have been paying out to their sterling creditors is a volume of goods very nearly equal in value to the goods they received from us under ERP.

There is no use being astounded because there is a connection between our aid to Britain and Britain's capacity to repay her war debts in Asia. The connection exists and it has always existed. The British could not export to Asia to pay off their debts if we did not make exports to Britain that Britain did not have to pay for.

UNTIL rather recently—until, as a matter of fact, some Americans began to take notice of southern Asia—we have lived with the simple-minded notion that Britain would be better off without these sterling balances, and that just as we cancelled lend-lease, so India, Pakistan and the others ought to cancel the sterling balances. At the time of the British loan everybody in Washington thought that that was the answer. It just shows how profoundly ignorant we all were—and really worse than ignorant, to expect countries which are among the very poorest in the world, which suffered fearfully in the war, to make the same kind of contribution to the recovery of Britain that we were making. Not since Marie Antoinette asked why the starving people did not eat cake has there been anything quite like this notion, which we all entertained once upon a time.

The fact of the matter is that the British repayment of sterling balances to southern Asia has been a great and a necessary contribution to the establishment of India and Pakistan as independent states. Whatever the disadvantages of the operation—and there have been many—the condition of non-Communist Asia would be much worse than it is if this financial support had not been given. The condition would deteriorate rapidly and dangerously if this support were now cut off. The future will be much worse than it needs to be if the British and the Americans do not find a way to continue that support and to enlarge it somewhat.

THAT IS what the shooting is all about. It is not a British plot to make us pay their debts. It is not a British plot to wangle some more dollars. It is really a statement of the obvious and undeniable fact that if southern Asia is to get the help it needs and deserves, that help must come—because it can come only—from the advanced industrial countries of the West. And it stands to reason that the two countries which have to take the initiative in making a plan for contributing to the development of southern Asia must be the two peoples now most involved in the financial problems of southern Asia—that is to say the British who are directly involved through the sterling balances, and we who are involved indirectly through the Marshall Plan.

Disintegrating Asia

By Marquis Childs

Vacuum In American Countermoves

WHILE this divided Government quarrels over the issue of communism here at home, the flames of revolt and impending chaos are mounting higher in Asia. It is perhaps the costliest bit of fiddle-faddling history has ever seen.

Childs

In the Philippines the surface of law and order is perilously thin even in the centers of population. The rebellious Huks control considerable areas where they are unchallenged by the duly constituted government of President Elpidio Quirino.

The economic situation is steadily worsening. In various forms of aid since the end of the war, the United States has put two billion dollars into the Philippines. A good bit of it has disappeared as though absorbed into quicksand. Urgent pleas are being pressed here for more dollars.

In Indo-China no one ventures outside the cities without a heavy armed guard and then only in cars traveling at high rates of speed. The forces of communism, plus banditry, are steadily wearing away the French army of 150,000 that has been holding the line. There is a real possibility that the United States will be called on for military, economic assistance on a scale for which we are totally unprepared. It could be another but far more costly and extensive Greece dropped suddenly into the American lap.

WHEN Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup returned from his inspection tour of southeast Asia, he warned of a factor intangible but nevertheless of first importance in that part of the world. That is the bandwagon psychology that leads volatile peoples to gravitate toward power and success in a period when changes are occurring with revolutionary speed.

This is important to remember in light of the latest disaster to the forces of Nationalist China on Hainan Island. According to the New York Times, Nationalist forces were conservatively estimated at twice those of the invading Communists and the Nationalists had superior sea and air weapons. The Associated Press correspondent on the island reports that the capital fell almost without a shot being fired in its defense as Nationalist armies melted away.

Thus is repeated the tragedy of Tientsin and other cities on the mainland. At Tientsin American military advisers were present and tried in vain to urge a logical plan of defense. There is no reason to believe that the advice of American military advisers would have been any more welcome if they had been present at Hainan as some Senators so insistently demanded.

SHOULD we continue to be obsessed with the errors of the past, we shall end by convincing the peoples of southeast Asia that we are hopelessly encumbered with that past. It will, at last, be abundantly clear that it hangs about us like an albatross.

The time is desperately overdue for tangible and immediate moves that would show we mean what we say. These moves may vary from country to country.

The Philippine government may be encouraged to ask for the kind of American guidance that will mean greater stability in finance and in administration during a difficult transition period. In Indo-China and Burma it might be something as elemental as a few malaria-control projects to demonstrate the good will that is behind our professions of friendship.

One can see few signs that this is happening or that it is in preparation on anything like an adequate scale. The blame? It seems to me there's more than enough to go around.

The State Department points out, and with some reason, that Congress is not in a mood to approve any new programs either large or small. Critics in Congress reply that they have never been consulted about a program. And they ask, with good reason, why the department hasn't gone ahead with the facilities already at its disposal. Over all is the screaming obbligato of McCarthyism, like a distracting blast on a steam calliope.

This is not "cold war." Under present circumstances that phrase becomes a dangerous deception. Cold war implies a steadiness, a resolution, a willingness to sacrifice and at least a degree of unity. Those elements are not written large on the American landscape at this moment.

Labor to Demand Wage Hikes If Rents Go Up, Green Warns

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Organized labor will demand higher wages if rent control is removed and a sizable wave of rent increases follows, AFL President William L. Green warned Congress yesterday.

Green testified before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee which is considering the Administration proposal to extend Federal rent controls beyond June 30.

The AFL chieftain said a Department of Labor survey indicated that if rents are decontrolled, rentals will rise "at least 25 percent."

"This increase in rent," Green said, "is equivalent to a wage cut of 5 percent, or over 6c an hour, assuming a 40-hour week.

"Under these circumstances, the implications for collective bargaining are bound to be quite far-reaching. From my long experience in the labor movement, I know that a widespread wave of sizable rent increases will inevitably be reflected in the demands of organized workers for higher wages."

Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), Administration whip, urged the continuance of rent controls. He told the committee this was not a political party issue, and pointed to the fact that the Republican mayor and city council of Philadelphia favored the extension.

Myers based his argument for another year of controls on the fact that a severe housing shortage still exists in many areas of the United States.

"I cannot understand the reasoning used by those who say the whole thing must be turned over to the States," said Myers. "Are they trying to make us believe, for example, that what happens to the economy of the manufacturing cities of our country—most of them still under control—cities like Pittsburgh—isn't reflected in the economic picture of the whole country?

"Are they so blind to the facts of life that they fail to realize a loss in real wages to a laborer in Pittsburgh will probably be reflected in an attempt at obtaining increased wages at the first opportunity?"

A proposal that rent control be placed under the jurisdiction of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency was presented by Charles Abrams, housing consultant for the Liberal Party of New York State.

Abrams told of finding 25 persons living in a cold cellar in New York. The group included 17 children and the rent was $50 a month, he said.

Michael Mann of the CIO National Housing Committee said that in Chicago rent decontrol would bring about 500 evictions a day, which would mean "a field day for the Communists."

William Boucher III, speaking for Americans for Democratic Action, said removal of rent curbs "would bring about a vast reduction in the purchasing power of American consumers."

Senator Herbert Lehman (D., N. Y.) urged the committee to approve his bill to continue Federal rent control for two years. He said his bill also would "roll back" rents to the March 1, 1949, level and provide for "orderly transition" from control to decontrol in two years.

Yesterday's hearing ended on a mirthful note when two witnesses who said they represented the Chicago Tenants' Action Committee testified: "For your information, already landlords have been killed in Chicago but there was nothing in the newspaper about it."

Not sworn, the witnesses, Victor Ludwig and Earl Abel, were not asked to prove their statements. Chairman Burnet R. Maybank, (D., S. C.) facetiously queried as to what would happen to members of the committee if they failed to report out a rent-control bill. A note from the press table suggested that perhaps it would be kept out of the newspapers anyway.

Col. Geraldine May To Tour British Bases

Col. Geraldine P. May, director of women in the Air Force, will leave today by plane for a 15-day tour of British Royal Air Force bases, the Air Force said yesterday.

As guest of the RAF, she will visit the Air Ministry in London and is scheduled to visit WRAF depots and RAF installations throughout England. She also will attend the annual conference of WRAF officers in London on May 12.

Colonel May also will have an audience with Queen Elizabeth.

Longer D. C. Rent Curb Asked

Cogswell defined a tenement as one with a number of rooms sharing bath or housekeeping facilities.

Cogswell said the District still has a "decided shortage" of two and four family flats. He said their construction here has almost disappeared from the District scene since World War II started.

He said there also is a shortage of single-family dwellings for rent. He said a great many such dwelling have been built here, but most are put up for sale, even though they would not be subject to control if they were rented. He said demand has lessened for "luxury" single family dwellings renting for $250 or more a month.

"Single family dwellings renting up to $125 a month unfurnished ar still very much in demand," Cogswell stated.

As for furnished and unfurnished apartments, Cogswell said, "the demand still is acute despite any and all claims to the contrary."

He cited the large number of elevator-type apartments now going up in the District, but he said the rentals for practically all of them "are so high as to be almost beyond the reach of persons of average income."

He said in one downtown building with about 250 units, there are 115 efficiency units renting for $90.50 a month. Such units, he said, generally include one large room which serves as living room and bedroom, a room which he said is described in real estate circles as a dressing closet, a kitchen and a bathroom.

Rental Prices

One-bedroom apartments in the new buildings in northwest Washington are being priced at $105 to $131.50 a month, he said. In the southeast Washington garden type apartments, he said, the one-bedroom apartment rent range is $71.50 to $85; for two bedrooms $92.25 to $104.75, and for three bedrooms, $99 to $116. He stated some two-bedroom apartments are advertised in southeast and northeast at $77.50, but most of these are in Maryland.

Cogswell estimated rent increases in the District by his office have boosted rent about 11 percent over the level of 1941. He said there have been higher increases, like the 17.5 percent provided large multiple family apartment project by two rent increases. He said it is "extremely doubtful" that any apartment building in Washington has not had some increase.

He said many landlords complain the increases granted are too low, and many tenants have complained that they have had to pay half or all of the cost of redecorating their apartments. He said the tenants' complaint was "justifiable."

He said not all, but most, apartments in Washington have been making their tenants pay redecorating expenses. He said in many cases the expense has ranged from $50 to $300 for the tenant. He said it used to be customary for landlords to redecorate about once every three years here.

He said the practice of shifting redecorating costs to tenants coupled with nearly 100 percent apartment occupancy since 1940 has given landlords more "actual increases" than the face of the record would indicate.

Organized labor will demand higher wages if rent control is removed and a sizable wave of rent increases follows, AFL President William L. Green warned Congress yesterday.

Green testified before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee which is considering the Administration proposal to extend Federal rent controls beyond June 30.

The AFL chieftain said a Department of Labor survey indicated that if rents are decontrolled, rentals will rise "at least 25 percent."

U. S. Accuses Lewis in Appeal

The Government told the U. S. Court of Appeals yesterday that John L. Lewis could have forced his 370,000 soft coal miners to obey an antistrike injunction last February if he had used his "powerful presonality" and "militant leadership."

Welly K. Hopkins, chief counsel for Lewis' United Mine Workers, countered that the miners acted as individuals in staying off the job. He said Lewis acted in good faith and "without reservations" when he ordered them to return.

Government and union attorneys argued the Government's appeal from a ruling by Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech. Keech found the union innocent of contempt of court charges brought when the miners ignored an injunction against the strike.

Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison argued that Keech's decision "casts serious doubt" on the future of industrial peace. He said the ruling supported the union in its failure to observe "the rules of fair play."

Hopkins said the entire appeal was "moot" since the strike is over.

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

11:00 a. m. — Representative Christopher (D., Mo.).

11:30—Fredrick Lawton, Budget Bureau director.

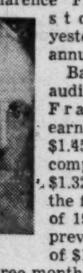
Gen. Foods Net In Period Hits All-Time High

By S. Oliver Goodman

General Foods Corp. enjoyed the best earnings quarter in its history for the first three months of 1950, Chairman Clarence Francis told stockholders yesterday at the annual meeting.



Francis

Based on unaudited figures, Francis said, earnings were $1.45 a share, compared with $1.32 a share in the first quarter of 1949 and the previous record of $1.42 a share in the first three months of 1948.

Francis did not announce the 1950 earnings total, pending an audit. Net in the 1949 quarter was $7,593,797 and in the 1948 quarter was $8,155,176.

He added that the year ahead looks promising, but "competition is getting tougher and tougher every day."

The chairman urged stockholders to work through civic groups "to stop the trend of statism dead in its tracks."

"I'd like to recommend that our President and Congress appoint a commission, of the caliber of the Hoover Commission, to look into this whole matter of government controls, appraise their value and determine at what government level—national, State or local—they can be administered most effectively and wit hthe least danger to our personal freedom.

"Some people may not agree that a subject of this sort should be discussed at an annual meeting. I make no apologies. We know from experience that what happens to the country happens to General Foods."

BOOK VALUE UP: As of January 31, book value of The Hecht Co.'s common stock was $33.69 a share, an increase of 12 percent for 12 months. President Samuel M. Hecht, in his annual report, pointed out that last year the company retained 64.2 percent of net earnings to meet increased working capital requirements. This policy of reinvesting a relatively large part of earnings, he added, has made it possible to meet expansion needs without new equity financing.

6 Sears Managers in Area To Attend Firm's U. S. Parley

Six Washington area officials of Sears, Roebuck & Co. will attend the "Sears Congress of Merchants" in Chicago next week.

They are H. K. Duffield, general manager of Sears' Washington area stores; J. A. Rohrscheib, area sales promotion manager; M. A. Morrison, manager of the Wisconsin ave. store; A. K. Jacobs, manager of the Bladensburg rd. store; L. H. Logan, manager of the Arlington store, and H. W. Bain, manager of the Silver Spring store.

Some 1200 Sears' representatives are expected to attend the Chicago sales meeting, first such held by the company in 10 years.

Parking-Lot Operator, in Red, to Give Up Lease on Municipal Land

While District officials and merchants search frantically for downtown parking space, one veteran operator has had to close his fringe lot for lack of business.

Last December Benjamin Wollberg signed a two-year lease with the District for a lot on Indiana ave. nw. at 5th st. just west of the Municipal Center.

Located on the fringe of the downtown area, it is one block from Pennsylvania ave. and within three blocks of several large department stores. Wollberg, a veteran of more than 20 years in the parking business, agreed to pay the District $5252 a month for the 420-car lot.

Last week he informed the District that because of "insufficiency of business and . . . heavy losses . . . we are financially unable to continue operation." He will give up his lease April 30. The District has already asked for bids on the remainder of Wollberg's lease. They will be opened Friday at 2 p. m. at the Municipal Center.

Wollberg told a reporter that, except for the Christmas shopping season, his lot has been filled to only about 60 percent of capacity.

He attributes his trouble chiefly to two factors. First, he bid so high for the lease that he priced himself out of business to pay rent. He charges 60 cents for all-day parking. The lot might pay if this could be reduced to 50 cents, he said.

Second, Wollberg is convinced people won't pay to park more than a block or so from their destination. "If they have to walk, they'll park free on the Mall and walk from there," he said.

The Motor Vehicle Parking Agency has recommended development of additional District land near Wollberg's lot for parking. MVPA Chairman Charles M. Upham is convinced parking space there will be in increased demand.

U. S. Probing Soybean Deals

every dealer in soybeans on March 31. Since that call, transactions have increased so sharply that these brokers' reports, now pouring into Joseph M. Mehl, CEA administrator, are being given close scrutiny.

Tuesday's operations on the Chicago Board of Trade reached an all-time daily high when 28,207,000 bushels of soybeans changed hands. The previous high was 27 million last October. Tuesday's dealings in wheat, also increasing lately, reached only 19 million bushels. Corn totalled only seven million.

Dealings in soybeans this crop year—from July to March inclusive have reached 2.4 billion bushels; last year they were only 1.1 billion, and the previous record, set in 1948, was only 1.5 billion. The strength in soybeans is puzzling department experts.

The condition of winter wheat is believed partly the cause. Some experts predict winter wheat will fall 250 to 350 million bushels below last year. This would mean big inroads into the wheat surplus. Another cause is the impact upon the world corn market by a near failure in the Argentine. Estimates for Argentina now range between 1.5 million to 2 million short tons, compared with more than three million last year, and wartime production of seven million tons.

Wheat, which sold at $1.85 on June 3, 1949, closed last night at $2.29¾ (nearest future in both cases).

Corn, which sold October 15 t $1.15, closed yesterday at $1.43.

Soybeans, which sold last June 7 at $2.13¾ a bushel closed yesterday at $2.90½. (Soybeans reached $2.99¼ Tuesday.)

Oats, which sold at 56⅛ cents on May 31, 1949, closed yesterday at 80½. (The average Government loan on oats is 69 cents, average carrying charges 11 cents.)

Keefe of Wisconsin Tells House This Is His Last Term

Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) told the House yesterday he is retiring upon expiration of his present term in Congress.

Keefe made his intention known while arguing on the floor for adoption of an amendment to Public Health Service appropriations adding three million dollars for cancer research.

In urging the House to approve his amendment, Keefe said it "means nothing to me personally."

"I'm going to leave the Congress," he said. "This is my last service."

Keefe is now completing his twelfth year in the House.

Man Acquitted In Killing

James R. Crowley, 29, a carpenter, of 6511 Davis st. Maryland Park, Md., was acquitted on charges of manslaughter yesterday by a jury in Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, Md.

Crowley had struck David Fox, 42, retired Marine, when the latter came over to object to remarks Crowley was addressing in fun to the proprietor, John Bowen, in Johnny's Tavern, Seat Pleasant, Md., March 14. Crowley said he thought Fox was about to attack him and turned around to swing at the man. Fox fell to the floor, striking his head, and died the following day in Casualty Hospital.

Airport Opposed By Falls Church

The Falls Church City Council has voted to oppose construction of a metropolitan Washington airport on a proposed site near Annandale, or any other spot within 5 miles of the city.

At its meeting Monday night, the council said the present National Airport is "inadequate in size and dangerous in foggy weather." However, it said, an airport near a residential area "creates a serious noise nuisance."

County Studies 30 New Laws or Revisions

The Montgomery County Council has some 30 proposed new county laws or revisions to consider during its legislative session next month.

Under the county's charter the council may adopt local laws only during the annual May legislative session.

Three matters which have been under study by citizen advisory committees and upon which recommendations are expected are amending the Juvenile Court Act, establishment of a county-wide library system and improving hospital facilities.

Bond Issue to Be Studied

The possibility of an additional bond issue authorization will be studied although present authorizations have not been exhausted. A change in the handling of tax sales is also on the agenda.

The charter also requires that a new code of public local laws be adopted this year and every five years hereafter. Assistant County Attorney Plummer Shearin has been codifying local laws and ordinances adopted since 1920 for presentation during the sessions.

Police heads have requested the council to pass enabling legislation for regulation of use of firearms. Present laws are inadequate, they contend.

Parking on Agenda

Three matters affecting specific areas will also be taken up. These include establishing an off-street parking program for Bethesda, redrafting the boundaries of the Silver Spring business district and transferring part of the Kensington fire area to Silver Spring.

Procedurally, the council drafts a new law, holds hearings and then votes on it. If adopted, it becomes effective on August 15 unless a later date is included in the law or a referendum is asked.

Any bill may be referred to the voters by a petition of 10 percent of the registered voters. Last year in the council's legislative session 38 local laws were adopted. One was later repealed.

70,000 Families Face Apartment Strike

New York, April 26 (AP).—Seventy thousand families in 2000 Manhattan apartment houses face the prospect of climbing stairs in a threatened strike of 18,000 building service workers.

Mediation efforts to avert a strike broke down yesterday and the union president announced that the strike now is "very definite."

Political Economy

Steel Issue Lacks Quality Of Analysis

By Ysabel and Robert Rennie

IF THE LEADERS of Big Steel are suffering from a persecution complex, they have good reason these days. Not only has Senator O'Mahoney's Joint Committee on the Economic Report just issued a highly critical report on their pricing policies, but they are under investigation by the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission. In addition, a House subcommittee is holding hearings that may result in an attempt to break up the steel companies.

Attacks on Big Steel and, specifically, on the United States Steel Corp., are nothing new. United States Steel has almost a third of the Nation's steel capacity. Its critics say that such concentration of power gives it control over prices and output and effectively limits competition.

During this postwar period, the attacks on Big Steel have been directed to two specific complaints: That steel prices are too high and that the companies are not expanding production fast enough to meet the needs of our economy.

Certainly it is true that United States Steel exerts price leadership. The other companies cannot cut prices, they assert, because in any contest with United States Steel they could not hope to win. Nor can they charge more than the leader without losing customers.

This indicates an absence of effective competition in steel, but does it mean prices are too high? Paradoxically, the evidence points the other way.

The wholesale price series shows that since 1940 the price of finished steel has advanced considerably less than the average for all commodities. It has lagged far behind farm products, foods, building materials and textiles, and slightly behind fuel, lighting, leather products and the average for metal and metal products.

Much has been made of recent "exorbitant" profits in steel. Though 11 and 12 percent on investment seems high, the 1947 National City Bank figures on industrial earnings ranked steel forty-third on a list of 45 manufacturing groups. The next year it ranked last on a list of 14. As for U. S. Steel, its average return on net investment from 1929 through 1948 was 3.59 percent.

If you bear these two facts in mind—that long-run earnings are poor, and that even in boom years steel is one of the least attractive investments in the manufacturing field—you will begin to understand the acrimonious conflict over steel capacity.

THERE IS no doubt that since the war we have been in a strait jacket so far as steel capacity is concerned. Steel men consistently underestimated the demands for steel, and have resisted pressure to expand, though they are gradually adding to plant and equipment.

They have testified that it now costs $300 to add an additional ton of ingot capacity, as compared with $75 before the war. To make expansion profitable, they say, steel prices would have to be raised $20 a ton. But public outcry over price rises has made it virtually impossible for them to do this.

We think two facts support their contention that steel has been underpriced.

First, if it had been the enormously profitable investment it is supposed to be, it would have attracted additional capital for expansion. In the second place, the postwar gray market in steel was prima facie evidence of underpricing. While steel was listed at $75 a ton it was selling on the gray market for $295.

The present situation is bad for all concerned: bad for steel, because public harassment prevents it from making the price decisions that would keep it an expanding industry; bad for the public, because we do need greater steel capacity.

WOULD IT DO any good to break up the steel companies? We doubt it.

Without sacrificing efficiency they could never be broken up enough to insure real competition. At most you might get a period of price cutting in which steel sold below average cost of production. Then the companies would find the situation intolerable, and there would be tacit agreement not to compete.

The present situation is an unhappy one because it goes counter to all our professed theories of competition.

The issue needs a quality of economic analysis that to date it has not received. In fact, those who have been most critical have often been the least consistent.

What many people seem to want is a one-way price flexibility. They think steel prices should drop during recessions, but remain completely rigid during inflation. We cannot have it both ways. If we want to hold prices down, we cannot expect new investment in steel plants; and if we want the industry to expand, we cannot demand rigid prices. In the long run, cheap steel of this kind is an expensive luxury for the economy.

Kunkel-Duff Battle Involves GOP Control of Pennsylvania

Gov. Duff

Rep. Kunkel

Harrisburg, Pa., April 26 (AP).—Control of Pennsylvania's GOP organization with all the significance that attaches to the next presidential nomination, is wrapped up in the current tussle for the Republican senatorial nomination. The primary is May 16.

Lined up on one side is the Old Guard leadership which opposes what it calls "handout government." It is backing United States Representative John C. Kunkel, 52.

On the other side is the element which insists the party should break loose from its traditional policies and stand for something that will appeal to "the average guy." It is behind Gov. James H. Duff.

Kunkel's most prominent backer, former United States Senator Joseph R. Grundy, holds that the Kunkel faction also stands for "the average guy."

Kunkel has represented a three-county Central Pennsylvania district in the House for 12 years. Duff advanced to the governorship after being attorney general in the cabinet of former Gov. Edward Martin, now a Senator.

In the background but actively supporting Kunkel are Grundy, long a potent force in Republican politics, and a top Grundy lieutenant, G. Mason Owlett, Republican national committeeman and president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association. Martin also has lined up with Grundy.

The party split first came out in the open at the 1948 Republican National Convention, where the Grundy group backed Governor Dewey and Duff opposed the New Yorker.

Duff has pegged his campaign on what he calls "Grundy-Owlettism." He says if that faction is not rejected at the primary, the Democrats will win in the November election.

By contrast, Duff says his administration as governor has considered the needs of "the average citizen" in its huge improvement program, which included 187 million dollars in construction projects on a borrow-and-build basis.

Kunkel calls for a showdown on spending policies of the Democratic Administration in Washington.

Should Duff win the senatorial nomination, Kunkel adds, there would be "no issue based on principle" between him and Senator Francis J. Myers, unopposed Democratic candidate for renomination on a platform of support of President Truman's "Fair Deal" program.

"It is a case of Duff offering 50 cents with Myers offering a dollar," Kunkel says.

The party split has branched out to include other offices to be filled this year, including a succesor to Governor Duff, who is ineligible to succeed himself.

The Duff choice for the Republican nomination for governor is John S. Fine, who resigned from the State superior court to make the race. The Grundy-Owlett wing endorsed Jay Cooke, Philadelphia investment banker.

Cooke was Pennsylvania manager of Harold E. Stassen's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948. Stassen, now president of the University of Pennsylvania, has maintained a hands-off policy in the primary fight.

While Republican factions fight it out at the primary, State Democratic leaders reached agreement on a slate of candidates headed by Senator Myers and Richardson Dilworth.

the old 20 percent admission levy. The admission tax cuts alone would ring up a revenue loss of 189 million dollars.

The committee also voted to:

Halve the tax on luggage, such as suitcases, trunks and brief cases, from 20 to 10 percent. Having previously eliminated the tax on handbags, purses and billfolds, it added some other items to the exempt list, notably toilet kits, designed to carry such items as cosmetics and bathing suits.

Cut the tax on matches from 3 cents per thousand to 1 cent per thousand.

Business Machines Helped

Cut the tax on business machines from 10 percent to 5 percent.

Repeal the 10 percent manufacturers tax on electric space heaters.

Exempt photographic apparatus, plates and films used for business purposes, and not for resale, from the 10 percent tax previously voted.

The committee picked up some revenue by deciding to tax at retail rates such otherwise taxable items as jewelry and furs sold at auction. Sheriff sales and auctions conducted by legal guardians or executors of an estate would be exempt from the tax.

Florida Doctors To Admit Negroes To State Group

Hollywood, Fla., April 26 (AP).—The Florida Medical Association changed its by-laws today to permit Negro members for the first time in the 76-year history of the medical group.

The decision was made by the house of delegates, policy-making body of the association.

Under the new regulations all Negro doctors licensed to practice in Florida now are available for membership. There are approximately 90 in this classification.

Seed Elevator Burns

Wells, Minn., April 26 (AP).—Fire, believed started from spontaneous combustion in stored flaxseed, today destroyed the Frank Brothers elevator and partially consumed the Musser Produce Co. plant at Wells. Damage was estimated at more than one million dollars.

Tramp Ship Subsidies Hit At Hearing

By The Associated Press

Federal subsidies for tramp shipping should be granted only under definite restriction, a Senate Commerce Committee was told yesterday.

Frazer Bailey, Washington, president of the National Federation of American Shipping Inc., said his organization is opposed to a tramp ship aid bill unless such restrictions are included.

"This federation does not believe your committee would look with favor upon 'opportunists' who would seek traffic at its peak in various trades and who would be able to move from trade to trade as traffic opportunity affords," he said.

Such operations, he added, "would leave the inhabitants of various communities without the regular and dependable service which is essential to sound economic and stable trading conditions."

Bailey contended also that subsidy aid to tramp (unscheduled) services should be provided only when the funds made available by Congress are more than "those reasonably required to provide a merchant marine of the character specified in the policy declaration of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936."

Bailey, whose organization includes all the subsidized lines in addition to a number of others, said he believes the 1936 act is basically sound and should not be changed "except upon the clearest evidence of desirability."

The committee is considering legislation designed to encourage development of the American Merchant Marine through extension of subsidies.

Military Trial Reform Now Up to Truman

The House passed and sent to President Truman yesterday a bill reforming court-martial procedures and giving the Army, Navy and Air Force uniform rules of military justice for the first time in history.

The legislation was drafted as a result of widespread complaints that present military laws are unjust and give officers a better break than ordinary GIs. Committees in both houses of Congress held extensive hearings on the measure.

The legislation would:

Establish a new court of military appeals to review major sentences imposed by courts-martial. The three civilian judges of the court would be appointed by the President for 15-year terms, at an annual salary of $17,500.

Give enlisted men the right to demand that other enlisted men serve on their courts-martial. Only officers are now authorized to be members of military courts.

Wipe out long-standing differences between the services on definitions of offenses, trial procedures, and punishments.

"YOUR HUSBAND LOOKS AT YOU WITH INTEREST"

A Frank Statement about Estrogenic Hormones by Helena Rubinstein

"Estrogenic Hormones are the most effective agents yet discovered for helping women to look younger"

I believe, with all my heart, that Estrogenic Hormones can make you look younger. So I have taken this space to tell women over 35 what they can expect from my Estrogenic Hormone preparations.

While leading scientists have carried out exhaustive experiments with Estrogenic Hormone Cream, I have been using my own skin as a testing ground.

More than 20 years ago I started applying Hormone cream to my own skin. Since then I have observed the effects on thousands of other women. All this time, too, I have kept abreast of hormone studies in universities, and in my own laboratories.

Dramatic Proof

We now have dramatic proof that Estrogenic Hormones can often bring about a decided improvement in the appearance of dry, oldish skin.

One of the many important tests which have contributed to this proof took place recently at a leading university in New England. I think you may be interested in a summary of this test:

1. The hands of twenty-five women between the ages of 35 and 55 were placed under scientific observation for six months.
2. Two different creams were applied to their hands daily. One cream contained Estrogenic Hormones. The other did not. The creams looked identical. Even the doctors making the study did not know which hands received the Estrogenic Hormone Cream!
3. At the end of 6 months the doctors formed their conclusion: "The skin of the left hands (with one or two exceptions) looked fuller, less wrinkled, more youthful."
4. It was then learned by the experimenting doctors, that Estrogenic Hormone Cream was the one which had been used on these younger looking left hands!

Yes, we now have proof that these Estrogenic Hormone preparations can safely give women younger-looking skin.

Important to Women Over 35

If you are over 35, then you must realize that your skin is steadily losing its youth-giving substances.

Estrogenic Hormones are natural substances. And they really work in a very simple way. When gently massaged into your skin, they make your under-skin fill out. This in turn stretches the outer-skin. When this happens, tiny lines become less visible. Your skin, as the doctors reported, looks "fuller, less wrinkled, more youthful."

Works in Two Ways

My Estrogenic Hormone Cream works in two ways to help your skin look more youthful. It works from within . . . as your skin absorbs the natural estrogenic hormones. And it works from without . . . as its rich emollients smooth away dryness, and help you recapture that lovely young look.

But these admirable results don't happen overnight. Even though women have told me they noted an improvement after only one week . . . I always advise them to put my Estrogenic Hormone Cream and Oil on trial for at least 3 months.

But even at the end of 30 days, I am sure you will note a very real change—a younger-looking skin.

A Thrilling Experience

If you are over 35 it is a thrilling experience when you begin to look younger. Compliments come your way. "What have you been doing to yourself?" ask your friends. You yourself are gloriously aware that you look prettier, brighter. You have a new assurance. A new poise. Your husband looks at you with new interest. Life suddenly seems more exciting.

What woman doesn't want to enjoy years of such happy fulfillment? You can keep up the good work by continuing to use my Estrogenic Hormone beauty products.

nature in the gambling world. Contrarywise, he added, big betting is on a "purely competitive" basis with no relationship between the "businessmen" in various cities who conduct it.

That "it is the considered opinion of persons in this business who are in a position to know that there is no connection whatsoever between individuals who are engaged in gambling, bookmaking, accepting bets, brokers, or commissioners and any of the forms of crime which have been the subject of concern to us within recent years."

That as a bookmaker he was not at all dependent on the race wire news services (which would be banned under one bill being considered). He added, however, that service does help to "answer the curious" bettor and "to limit his anxiety" over whether he wins or loses.

Some Testimony in Secret

That taking away a bookie's wire or his phone service would not limit bet making and that therefore the only sensible thing to do would be to legalize off-track bookmaking under control of the tracks in the 28 or so States where the parimutuel system legally operates.

Carroll was accompanied to the hearing by his attorney, Morris A. Shenker, one of the best-known in St. Louis. He frequently answered only after conferring with Shenker and sometimes Shenker answered for Carroll. Shenker succeeded in having the committee question Carroll behind closed doors on the number of his employes on the grounds that the information might be of value to Carroll's competitors.

Carroll said he "wouldn't have any idea" about how much money is involved in lay-off bets (those made to hedge), on how much is daily bet in St. Louis and on a number of other subjects. He did say bookies keep books on their business on the "insistence" of Federal income tax authorities.

He said he couldn't say how many "customers" he had but that he takes bets from all over the Nation, receiving and paying off many of them via Western Union telegrams.

Shenker at one point, answering a question for Carroll, said that "he has names and addresses of many people who may or may not be bookies." Some of them may be people who make wagers themselves, he explained.

Carroll did say he has the wire service of Pioneer News in St. Louis, identified by the Federal Communications Commission as the outlet there of Continental News, the Nation-wide race wire service.

Carroll called himself both a bookmaker and a price maker. After a reform movement in 1942, he moved his office across the river to East St. Louis, Ill. He is generally known as the Nation's unofficial "betting commissioner" and the odds he sets are widely quoted on such sporting events as the Kentucky Derby and the World Series.

Odds on 1948 Campaign

In reply to questions he told of how he handled bets on the last national presidential election. Carroll said he quoted odds of 8-to-1 against President Truman and 15-to-1 on Governor Dewey. Then he said that he set the 8-to-1 odds after determining that he could bet himself at 10-to-1 or even up to 20-to-1, thus assuring himself of a profit by so hedging any bet.

He made it clear he was unconcerned on the outcome of any event, that he merely was interested in turning a profit on the difference between bets taken and bets made.

"It's just a question of profit," he explained.

Bet Commissioner Gives Senate Object Lesson

By The Associated Press

James J. Carroll, St. Louis betting commissioner, told a Senate committee yesterday he would bet 2½ to 1 that Your Host will not win the Kentucky Derby.

On the other hand, he said he would also bet 3½ to 1 that Your Host will win the big Kentucky race. The California entry has been installed as the favorite in the May 6 classic.

The odds were quoted as he told a committee inquiring into gambling operations just how he runs his business.

New Anti-TB Vaccine Held Animal Aid

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Laboratory birth of a new vaccine said to prevent tuberculosis in animals as effectively as the controversial vaccine, BCG, was reported here yesterday.

It has not yet been tried on humans.

The new vaccine, according to its makers, overcomes the doctor's primary objection to BCG in that it is made of dead but once-virulent tuberculosis germs instead of weak, live ones.

Its production was reported to the medical session of the National Tuberculosis Association, in forty-sixth annual meeting here, by Dr. Fred Stimpert, bacteriologist, of Detroit, Mich.

A safe and dependable substitute for BCG vaccine has long been sought for vaccinations of the public against tuberculosis. Approval of general use of BCG has long been withheld, largely because its strength can change in several days to two weeks.

In contrast, Dr. Stimpert reported, the new vaccine, produced from irradiation-killed germs of active tuberculosis, has proved itself stable throughout the several months since it was developed.

The lethal violet rays used to kill tuberculosis germs used in the vaccine apparently do not destroy their activity to cause the body to produce antibodies against live tuberculosis germs, the bacteriologist reported.

This was shown, he said, in tests on guinea pigs. The tests showed that the new vaccine held down or prevented tuberculosis in more than half the animals, a ratio almost paralleling BCG's effectiveness.

The research is being carried out at the Parke-Davis pharmaceutical firm by Dr. Stimpert and his associate, Dr. R. W. Sarber, and at Ann Arbor, Mich., by Dr. W. J. Nungester, tuberculosis specialist.

In another medical report, Dr. D. T. Smith, professor of bacteriology at Duke University Medical School, described the new blood test for tuberculosis, initially developed recently by Drs. Gardner Middlebrook and Rene Dubos of New York.

Duke, he explained, found a cheap and readily available testing material to substitute for the harder-to-get materials of New York research workers.

Experiments at Duke with more than 1000 persons, he reported, show about 90 percent of those with known active tuberculosis record "positive" by the blood test. Moreover, about 95 percent of healthy persons with a negative tuberculin skin test also show up as negative in the blood test, he reported.

The NTA meetings will continue through today at Hotel Statler.

Sexual Peak Of Women Placed at 29

By Alton L. Blakeslee

New York, April 26 (AP).—A preview today of Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey's next report says women reach the peak of their sexual drive at about 29. In men it occurs in the teen ages.

Dr. Kinsey, it says, also finds more homosexuals among women than men. And that the frequency of sexual outlet varies more greatly among women than men.

Dr. Kinsey's new book, to be published next year, is "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female." The prevew is given in Redbook magazine by Morris Ernst and David Loth.

They said they have worked closely with Dr. Kinsey and his associates, and through study of his work "we now are able to indicate the most significant of their findings."

At Indiana University at Bloomington, Dr. Kinsey said he had not seen the Redbook article but that quoted portions seemed to be in line with material in his first report and material he has used in lectures.

The professor added that Ernst, "a good friend of the project," has not had special access to data in the forthcoming report.

Women, said Ernst and Loth, "reach their peak of sexual drive several years after the average age of marriage. Based on what Dr. Kinsey has said, we expect his figures to show that this peak is reached at about the age of 29.

Does Not Decline At Once

"Unlike that of men, it does not decline at once, but rather remains at an average high level, a sort of plateau, for five or six years."

"This peak never is as high as that of men, taking the average of both sexes. But the frequency of sexual outlet is about the same for men and women from the age of 25 on."

Dr. Kinsey, in a lecture, "pointed out that the 'normal' frequency of sexual outlets for males ranges from once a month or less to four times a day averaged over many years.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL 26.

TRIBUTE DEPT.—The death of Bill Alexander—Coach Alex to Georgia Tech men for 25 years—has been properly noted in long obituaries and football men the Nation over are mourning his passing.

His tremendous Tech football teams, including his Rose Bowl champions of 1928, are easily recalled, and from all sectors of the Nation the tributes to his fame have been pouring into the Atlanta newspapers.

POVICH

But I doubt if the supreme tribute to Coach Alex ever saw print until this moment. It was delivered in an off-the-cuff talk by Grantland Rice at Atlanta a half dozen years ago. It was during the war, when Navy's football team moved down to Atlanta for a game with Georgia Tech.

It was the era when Army and Navy were trampling the civilian colleges whose football squads were chiefly comprised of 4-Fs. Rice was addressing high Navy brass at a pregame social fete in Atlanta. They asked him for his prediction on the next day's game.

"I'm picking Georgia Tech," said Rice irreverently. "I agree, that Navy's football team is two touchdowns better than Tech's. But Tech's coaching is three touchdowns better than Navy's." Coach Alex' team won, 17-15.

CONNIE MACK DEPT.—When Connie Mack paid the Browns $100,000 for Third Baseman Bob Dillinger last winter, he held out for one more concession. Would the Browns toss Outfielder Paul Lehner into the deal? They did. Lehner, they considered expendable.

The other day, Connie's A's went into the last half of the fifteenth inning in a tie game with the Red Sox. He sent Lehner in as a pinch-hitter. The last of the fifteenth lasted only one pitch. Lehner belted it for a home run over the right field wall.

In the A's next game, Mr. Mack started Lehner in right field. In four times at bat he drew a base on balls and hit three singles. Going into tonight's game with Washington, the fellow was batting 1.000 for the season.

The fellow the Browns threw into the Dillinger deal as excess baggage now is bulking as a regular in Mack's outfield. Two years ago when Lehner came up with the Browns, Mr. Mack predicted he would be a major league star. He's willing to see it happen now, in the regalia of the A's.

FLEETING FAME DEPT.—In Florida, the impressive team was the Phillies. There was even a suspicion that if Brooklyn didn't win the pennant, the Phils would. They were a dark horse, taking on luster with every succeeding week of spring training.

One of the most imposing factors in the sudden resurgence of the Phillies was their apparent high good luck in coming up with a second baseman from the minors, Mike Goliat. Wrapped up in one package, Goliat, Manager Eddie Sawyer not only seemed to find the solution to his second base troubles, but also added power in his batting order.

And when young Goliat whacked four hits in four times at bat in the opening game, Sawyer's joy was unbounded.

But as the Phillies took the field against the Giants tonight, their second baseman was a fellow named Ralph Caballero, bench-bound while Goliat was setting the Grapefruit League afire. Because, you see, in the Phils' five games since opening day, Goliat wasn't able to buy a hit. Nor even drive a ball beyond anybody's infield.

BALK DEPT.—The new balk rule which has major league pitchers in a dither, isn't a new rule at all, merely the long-neglected enforcement of the old rule which stated a pitcher must come to a stop in his windup before delivering the ball.

One manager who takes a dim view of the moaning by the pitchers is Jack Onslow, of the Chicago White Sox, who declared any pitcher who can count up to three should never have a balk called against him.

"It's simple," Onslow points out. "They're supposed to come to a one second stop before making a throw. I'm telling my pitchers to count three before they deliver. The trouble is, they start counting as they leave the hotel."

Evans Bats In 4 Runs In 5-3 Win ning that carved his lead to the ultimate score, 5-3, but from that point Hudson permitted only two hits and no runs at all.

Three in Row for Nats

It was the Nats' third straight victory, their longest winning streak since their well-remembered nine in a row last May.

To avenge the beating the A's gave him in his first start of the season, Hudson had to pitch himself out of a predicament in the A's eighth when they got the tying runs on base with one out.

After walking Lehner and hitting Pinchhitter Elmer Valo in the back, Hudson was within one pitch of being removed from the game in the eighth. Scheib worked him for a 3-and-2 count, and then the Nat's right-hander got a big lift from his infield. Kozar pounced on Scheib's hot smash to start a fancy double play that was completed by Dente and Robinson, each of whom also turned in a fancy bit.

In the ninth, Wahl opened with a hit against Hudson who then bore down and dismissed McCosky, Fain and Chapman without difficulty.

Evans Lays Into One

Losing Pitcher Shantz scarcely recognized the Nats as the club which had hit a total of one home run in five previous games. After Vollmer singled to left and Kozar walked in the second inning, Evans put one in the lower stands of left field for the Nat's second homer in two innings. Schantz bequeathed a 4-0 deficit to the incoming Scheib.

The A's chipped a run off that lead of Hudson's after Scheib led off the third inning with a gift hit to Dente, who stumbled on a stray glove as he fielded the ball. Hudson filled the bases with walks with one, out, but escaped with only run damage. It scored on Chapman's fly to Vollmer.

The Nats re-established Hudson in a four-run lead in the fourth after Vollmer walked with none out. Kozar singled, through short and Evans duplicated that hit to get Vollmer home.

Fain served notice that it was to be no breeze for Hudson when with McCosky on base by a walk in the fifth. He rammed a Hudson pitch out of the park, over the scoreboard in right center for a 2-run homer that clipped the Nats' lead to 5-3.

It was the A's last productive gasp, though, as Hudson finished up like a pitcher who won more than four games last season.

IN SHORT . . . Bucky Harris crowned his lineup with seven right-handed hitters against Shantz . . . Yost's homer doubled the Nats' output for the season. It was their second . . . When Ferris Fain hit his third homer of the year in the fifth, he equaled his total for the entire 1949 season . . . Shantz was unmoved by the fact that it was Dente's twenty-seventh birthday. He shoved a third strike past him his first time up . . . Clyde Vollmer's stolen base in the second inning was a gift. Dente missed the hit-and-run sign and Vollmer was a dead duck until Guerra fumbled the pitch . . . Joe Haynes with a 12-3 lifetime record against the A's faces 'em tomorrow night. They'll pitch Hank Wyse, who licked the Nats in Washington last week.

Champs Slam McDermott For 4 Runs In 1st Inning

New York, April 26 (AP).—The New York Yankees overpowered the Boston Red Sox, 10-2, today, pounding a quartet of pitchers for seven extra base hits including home runs by Hank Bauer and Yogi Berra.

Young Maury McDermott bore the brunt of the Yankee cannonading as he yielded five runs in less than two innings.

With one out in the first Johnny Lindell beat out a chopper down the third base line to start McDermott on the way out. Bauer followed with a blast into the left field seats. McDermott walked Joe DiMaggio and Berra cashed LiMaggio in with a home run into the rightfield stands. Billy Johnson then doubled, but McDermott got out of the inning by striking out Gerry Coleman and Joe Collins.

The Yanks picked up another run in the sixth off Rookie Gordon Mueller and completed their scoring in the eighth against bonus righthander, Frank Quinn.

The victory was the Yanks' third over the Red Sox in four meetings this year.

Dodgers Win In 10th, 5-4, Phils Protest

Brooklyn, April 26 (AP).—Pee Wee Reese singled with the bases loaded in the tenth inning tonight to give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 5-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Phils in a game played under Philadelphia's protest.

Home runs by Jim Russell, Duke Snider and Roy Campanella accounted for the other Dodger runs. Willie Jones sent the game into our time with a three-run homer for the Phils in the ninth.

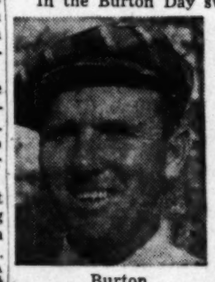
For 18 Years Service

Allan Burton, Army-Navy Golf Pro, Honored at Club

ARMY-NAVY GOLF Pro Allan Burton was feted for his 18 years of service at the club last night after a full day of golf activity starting at noon.

In the Burton Day sweepstakes tourney, R. P. Lipton took the top low net spot with 78-19—59. In a crowded three-way tie for second, Col. C. Smith turned in a neat 70 and his 5 handicap made his net 65. That figure was matched by G. A. Hannegan's 79-14 and Capt. D. L. Day's 83-18.



Burton

F. G. Smith preferred the low gross prize for members with his 70 and Maury Fitzgerald, rotund sportswriter, won guest honors with a lucky 74.

In a special hole-in-one tourney on the par 3, 146-yard twenty-sixth hole, Lieut. Col. D. W. Reed came closest to the cup with a shot that was within 11 feet, 8 inches.

Capt. D. L. Day, sweepstakes runnerup, had to be content with second-place honors again. His shot was 16 feet from the hole—just 5 inches closer than that of Col. B. H. White.

Club members then adjourned for a testimonial stag dinner for Burton, replete with kind words. Tangible rewards included an automatic dishwasher and a silver plate.

Mass. Radio Station Flouts Baseball's New Radio-TV Code

Springfield, Mass., April 26 (AP).—Organized Baseball's revised broadcasting and telecasting code in effect was challenged today by a West Springfield radio station.

A spokesman for Station WTXL said it would continue to broadcast Major League games in disregard of the baseball rule put into effect six months ago.

The code provides that no radio station within 50 miles of a park in organized baseball may broadcast or televise a "foreign" game if a contest is in progress in the park. However, if no game is scheduled in the park, any and all stations may broadcast games.

James S. Bulkley, attorney for WTXL, said he had advised President Lawrence A. Reilly to continue broadcasts of Boston Major League games, even though Springfield Cubs of the International League may be playing at the same time.

"If 'piping' of the games to us is halted," Bulkley said, "then we will take appropriate action. Until then we will do nothing."

Kell, Mullin Single in 10th, Tigers Win, 8-6

St. Louis, April 26 (AP).—The rampaging Detroit Tigers wrested a hard-earned 8 to 6 decision from the St. Louis Browns in 10 innings today to sweep the two-game series and hand the St. Louisans their fifth straight defeat. It was the league leaders' sixth win in seven starts.

After the Browns had tied it up at 6-6, they were held hitless for the last two innings by Paul Calvert, acquired from Washington. It was Calvert's second appearance and first victory with Detroit.

Up to Adviser

Is Justice Wavering?

Charlie Justice will have his mind made up for him about playing football for the Washington Redskins by the acting president of the University of North Carolina, W. D. Carmichael, jr.

That was the word from Chapel Hill, N. C., last night. Justice told Redskin Coach Herman Ball here Saturday that he would reach a decision by yesterday. Carmichael, however, has been out of town and won't return until late tonight. Hence, the Redskins should get the word by Friday.

"If Carmichael says o. k., Charlie will play; if he frowns on it, Justice won't play," said a Carolina official. "The feeling here is that he will play."

Carmichael has been Justice's "adviser" for four years and the great little halfback leans heavily on his advice. It was Carmichael who got Justice the job with the State Medical Foundation.

W. & M. Tennis Team Loses 1st Match in 5 Years

Virginia Beach, Va., April 26 (AP).—William and Mary's sensational skein of 82 consecutive tennis victories was ended today when the University of Miami, Fla., blasted the Indians, 8 to 1.

Thus the end came to a William and Mary streak which began five years ago and Miami extended its own winning record to 46 matches in succession.

So Says Sarazen

Clear Thinking Pays Off in Tourney Play

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, APRIL 26 (AP).—Gene Sarazen still is slim, trim and full of vim, but he has no illusions concerning his ability to win the National Open golf tournament a third time.

And he doesn't blame his 48-year-old legs for the fact he knows he can't do it, although he'll be in there pitching.

SARAZEN

"The legs have nothing to do with it," he says with a touch of resignation. "My legs are all right; it's the gear box." He tapped his head significantly.

"It's the thinking machine. You can't concentrate. You get confused. You ask a caddy what club to use, and he tells you. You might have a different idea, and all during the swing you are wondering whether you made a mistake in the choice.

"Speaking of caddies, I drew a caddy in a tournament who had carried Sam Snead's clubs. Sam had told him not to speak to him during the round. I didn't know that, so I started out asking him what club to use on different shots, and he'd just turn his head away and say nothing.

"Finally I asked him what was wrong, and he said: 'Mr. Snead told me not to speak.'

"When you aren't playing in tournaments regularly you lose something. You have to be around the players, talking golf and thinking golf, to be able to concentrate when you get out there and play."

The affable squire, practically recovered from the mental strain of authoring a book, is a great believer in education. Although he pulled himself up by his own bootstraps to his present high estate, he thinks there is nothing like higher education to prepare a person for a career, whether it is a career as a golfer or a doctor.

"What you do to your mind between the ages of 14 and 22 is what counts," he insists. "Golf is a thinking game, and some great players have failed at crucial times because they weren't trained to think, to concentrate.

"Why was Bobby Jones such a great golfer? Because he was smart, a brilliant student. The same was true of Tommy Armour, a university graduate. Look how fast Cary Middlecoff came up. He's a graduate dentist."

SARAZEN, WHOSE record spots him as one of the really great players, intimates he would have been even better if he had had more schooling.

"I married a fine, smart woman, though," he grins. "She helped me. I wasn't going to the British

Trainer Bedwell Turns Back Calendar With 'Graw Triple

AT HAVRE DE GRACE

DEAR FOLKS

After observing Apprentice Jockey Joe Culmone for a few days I have to admit he appears as rough and tough as the reputation he earned in Florida last winter. At times he rides as if he thinks he is playing football on horseback and it is no wonder that he draws frequent suspensions. There is no denying he has the will to win, however he should develop a little respect for his fellow riders. Big-shot jockeys don't awe young Culmone. In Florida he is alleged to have told Ted Atkinson, "I'll ride you right off the race track." Right now Joe is anxious to hook up in a stretch duel with Eddie Arcaro. "I'd like to hang it on that guy," says Culmone. See you on the rail at Charles Town.—BILL.

Family Pulls $93 Upset In Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 26.—Old timers in a crowd of 8000 scratched their heads and wondered if the racing calendar hadn't been turned back 35 years here today. And not without reason for H. G. (Guy) Bedwell, veteran trainer, saddled three winners on the "get-away" day program here.

The Savage, Md. conditioner, said to have won and lost several fortunes in the game, regained, at least for the day, some of the prestige that made him America's leading trainer seven times during the period from 1909 to 1917.

The old fellow, known as "10-to-1 Bedwell" in his heydey when he was a feared combination of Ben Jones and Hirsch Jacobs, sent Fancy Answer postward to win the second race at $8.20, followed with Trans Egret at $10 in the fourth and completed the triple with Big Bull at $10 in the fifth.

Trained Sir Barton

However, Bedwell, who conditioned Sir Barton for his 1919 Derby victory, had to share honors for the day with his old rival, Danny Shea, who saddled Walter Crismer's Family, a surprise winner of the Havre de Grace Breeders' Stakes, the $5000 feature.

Family, paying a $93.80 mutuel, was making the second start of his career and won the eagerly sought stake by a two-length margin over B Battery, owned by Larry S. (former Yankee) Mac Phail. Third money went to Morton Newmeyer's Golden Gesture.

For Trainer Shea and Jockey Jimmy Lynch, it was two triumphs in the same race in as many years. Last year Shea saddled and Lynch rode Busy Morning, the winner in the best time for the event of .47 1/5.

'Graw Betting Again Drops

Havre de Grace, Md., April 26 (AP).—Havre de Grace looked at its betting for the spring meeting ended today and read therein that you can't beat the weather any more than the races.

The track arranged this year to operate for 16 days before Garden State in New Jersey opened. It's Havre's claim that running the same time in the past has cut betting here.

But the average betting daily dropped below last year anyway. It totaled $11,066,106 for an average $691,631. Last year, the Havre betting averaged $720,618.

The weather that was more like winter than spring probably caused the decline more than anything. There wasn't a real spring day in the whole 16 which were predominantly cloudy, windy and cold—freezing even. Total attendance was held to 149,445.

Melancholy Days, Saddest of the Year—Yanks in 2d Place, Bosox Near the Rear

By Red Smith

NEW, YORK, April 26 (NYHT).—Twenty minutes before accidents began happening to the Red Sox in Yankee Stadium today, Dizzy Dean brought Joe Page over to the mouth of the Boston dugout to receive a hunk of hardware within range of the television camera. While Mr. Dean talked, Mr. Page gazed placidly at a slab of silver designated as the Babe Ruth award, which the New York Baseball Writers picked out for him as the top guy in last fall's World Series.

Red Smith

"Look at him," said a guy on the Boston bench, "he won't even lift it for fear he tires his arm."

"He won that as a champion walker," said Tom Dowd, the Red Sox road secretary. "How many miles do you suppose he covers between the bullpen and the mound in a season? Let's see, say 500 feet or more, sixty tims a year, that's about 30,000 feet. Maybe five miles for the summer."

"I hope," Mr. Dowd said evilly, "he has to walk fifteen miles this year, and collapses."

He sounded like any Boston Irishman speaking of Joe Page, whom they hate worse than King George VI.

"Do you blame us?" Mr. Dowd said. "Up in Boston the other day, he fired one past Bobby Doerr's ear. That's blowing out the candles in a national shrine."

TED WILLIAMS came out of the clubhouse, looking down and sallow after his tussle with grippe. Said he felt weak. It set a fellow to thinking about Joe McCarthy and the merry springtime.

For three seasons now, Joe and his Red Sox have set out believing, along with some millions of other judges, that they could win the American League pennant. Two years ago they couldn't win for losing in the spring. It was the end of June before they came groping and clawing out of the shadowy depths to overtake the Yankees and Indians and carry the struggle into a playoff before surrendering.

On the theory that it couldn't happen again, practically everybody picked 'em for the championship last year. So it did happen again, and again they came thrusting up through the field, overhauling the Yankees with a week to go, and then losing on the last day of the season.

So, of course, it couldn't happen a third time. Not, especially, with a schedule that had them playing 22 of their first 30 games at home. This was the season which would open with a four-game series against New York in Fenway Park, and the Sox would be off flying with a four-game lead over their strongest opponents.

They did get off flying, too. When the season was five innings old, they had a lead of 9 to 0 over the Yankees. When the season was nine innings old, they had knots all over the skull, and the Yanks had the ball game, 15 to 10.

New York won two of the three games played in Boston. Today the Yanks made it three out of four.

Once again, the merry month of May approaches and meets the Red Sox going the other way. Must McCarthy live through another June at the bottom of the elevator shaft?

Caddy Guilty On Charge of Raping Sister

Raymond V. Johnson, 21, a caddy with a criminal record, was convicted by a District Court jury yesterday of raping his 25-year-old sister at knifepoint.

The jury declined to add the death penalty to its verdict, given after an hour's deliberation.

The jury also convicted Johnson of incest in the case. He had pleaded guilty before the trial to robbing the sister, Mrs. Wilhelmina Robinson, 3232 13th st. nw., of $97 in money and clothing.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff set May 5 for sentencing. Under the law, he is empowered to send Johnson to jail for 57 years on the three offenses, which would make him eligible for parole in one third that time.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin demanded the death penalty.

He told the jury that they must not allow Johnson to go forth "on the streets to rape again."

"Death is too good for this man," the prosecutor said.

The court-appointed defense lawyer Charles E. Bord, admitted that his client was "a bad man" and a confessed robber" but that the evidence did not show that he was a rapist.

According to the evidence, after an argument with members of his family Johnson came to his sister's home and demanded some clothing. He then got a knife from the kitchen, pointed it at her throat and forced her onto a bed, the Government charged.

"You wouldn't do a thing like that to your sister," Mrs. Robinson said.

The defendant was quoted as replying, "I have no sister."

Johnson denied the assault charges, saying that his sister ran from the room when he demanded the clothing. He is an ex-convict from Mississippi.

Future Driver Will Have It Easy

In the sweet by-and-by of this automotive age, electronics bumpers will make collisions impossible; rubber-and-asphalt roads will have built-in, toaster-like electric filaments against icing, and radar may replace the traffic light.

"If these ideas," said Firestone Tire Co.'s President Lee R. Jackson, "sound like something Jules Verne or Rube Goldberg have created, please believe me when I say that such devices exist in one form or another right now."

To the Third Highway Transportation Congress at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday, Jackson had some even more startling suggestions of things to come:

"It might be entirely possible some day," he said, "to drive onto a highway, throw a switch or push a lever and have electronic controls take over the operation of your car. All you would have to do is ride the beam to your destination with the steering, speed and braking being done electrically.

"It's even "plausible," Jackson said, to expect atomic energy powering cars, trucks and buses "when industry is given a look-in and go-ahead."

More mundanely, the tire company president expected that the trucks and buses of the future will be "further tailor-made" for specific jobs.

Tires "will last substantially longer than is the case today," Jackson said, and "the day may come when permanent lubricants may be sealed in at the automobile plant and last as long as the vehicle."

Rubber - asphalt road topping "seems almost certain" to gain universal acceptance, perhaps with those electric heating elements imbedded in them "and tapped into the rural electric lines or city current."

To improve the human factor in driving, he strongly suggested compulsory driving instruction in high schools and establishment of driving schools for youngsters who don't attend high chool.

Albert Bradley, chairman of the National Highway Users Conference, sponsor of the congress, asserted that the main challenges facing highway users are: (1) stopping diversion of gas and auto registration taxes to nonhighway uses; (2) removing "unreasonable and restrictive" regulations on movements on vehicles; (3) lowering the loss from highway accidents; (4) meeting the problem of urban-travel congestion and parking.

Bradley, executive vice president of General Motors, was re-elected chairman of Highways Users Conference. Reelected as a vice chairman was Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange. Arthur M. Hill, chairman of the executive committee of the Greyhound Corp., was elected a vice chairman. Hill is president of the National Association of Motor Bus Operators, and was once chairman of the National Securities Resources Board.

Panels were held by the congress yesterday on the role of Government in road development, and progress toward adoption by States of uniform traffic laws.

Man Held on Knife Charge

Terror reigned a few moments at the Labor Department yesterday when word got around that a gun-toting man was prowling its corridors.

First Precinct Police responded and quickly arrested a man on the first floor, near the 14th st. entrance to the building.

Police identified the prowler as Lamar Hopson, 33, of 1234 Montello ave. ne. They took from him an 8-inch switchback knife and booked him for carrying a concealed weapon.

Mrs. Ellen Hopson, 23, a clerk typist in the division of prices and cost of living, gave police this account of her husband's unexpected visit.

"I got a phone call from him and went down to the first floor to meet him. He pulled a knife, said his friend with him had a gun, and if I try to get away they will kill me."

She did manage to reach a telephone and call the police.

Mrs. Hopson explained she has been married to Lamar about five years, but is not living with him. Now Lamar is begging her to return, she said, "and I won't."

You don't have to stop smoking!

Assault Charged to Policeman

An 18-year-old Washington-Lee High School junior has accused an Arlington policeman of assaulting him during a dispute at a baseball diamond last Monday.

The youth who swore out the warrant was Herbert Clellon Bohrer, 18, of 866 N. Frederick st. As a result of the incident, he was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest by Pvt. William R. Horner.

According to Bohrer's attorney, Glen Deem, the high school student said Horner struck him on the forehead while placing him under arrest. Charges against both Bohrer and Horner will be heard May 4 in Arlington County Court.

The dispute took place at a county-operated ball field at Wilson blvd. and N. Harrison st..

Emsweller's Homer Wins For Terps, 5-2

A two-run homer by Gene Emsweller in the eighth inning broke a 2-2 tie, and the University of Maryland went on to defeat Richmond, 5-2, at College Park yesterday.

Until then, Pitchers Nick Panella of the Terps and Bill Mitchell of the Spiders were locked in a tense duel. Although each was touched for nine hits before the Terp rally, tight fielding by opposing infields kept the scoring down.

Wilson Wins 3d Straight in Track

Anacostia Outruns B-CC High, 52 to 38

Anacostia defeated Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 52½-38½ in a dual track meet yesterday at Bethesda-Chevy Chase. Art Sullivan, winning the low hurdles and the 880-yard run, led Anacostia with 10 points.

Eastern Nosed Out Tech On Smith's Broad Jump

Eastern nosed out McKinley Tech, 60-58, in an Interhigh League track meet yesterday at Eastern. The meet was decided in the final event, the broad jump, won by Eastern's Jay Smith with a leap of 19 feet, 10 inches.

Sterman Fans 18

Jim "Fuzzy" Sterman struck out 18 men and pitched a one-hitter as the Alazavon A. C. defeated the Mount Rainier Clovers, 6-0, in the opening game of the Prince Georges County League yesterday at Mount Rainier.

Heurich's Practices

The Heurich's Brewers baseball team will hold a practice session at 5 p. m. Friday at the West Ellipse. Manager Pepco Barry asks all players to attend.

Over Central

Fogarty Fans 19 in 3-Hitter; W-L Wins

Jack Fogarty, 6-foot, 4-inch Washington-Lee righthander struck out 19 as he pitched the Generals to an 11-3 victory over Central last night in Arlington.

Fogarty, a transfer student from Western High, held Central to only three hits. Dick Christian of W-L matched these with a home run and two doubles in four trips. Bruce Hillenbrand solidified the Generals' tenth straight victory with another homer.

GW High Routed As Mayberry Stars

Pitcher Bob Mayberry hit a home run with the bases loaded, singled and hurled one-hit ball to lead Falls Church to a 21-0 rout over George Washington High in five innings yesterday at Falls Church.

Mayberry's battery mate, Lee Houtz, also homered. It was Falls Church's fifth straight win against two defeats.

Episcopal Wins, 7-2

Ten Area Schools in Penn Relays

Greater Washington will be well represented in the Penn Relays which take place Friday and Saturday in Philadelphia. Maryland, Georgetown, Virginia, Catholic, Howard and Navy are sending up 50 athletes, and Ca,rzozo. Dunbar, Phelps and Armstrong Highs are sending up another 30.

Best bet among the area colleges is Georgetown's two-mile relay quartet of Dave Boland, Joe Deady, Dave Smith and Pat O'Brien.

They won the National A.A.U. indoor championship at Madison Square Garden three months ago, beating out Manhattan, Villanova and New York U., the three teams which figure to provide most of the opposition this weekend.

The Hoyas may also sneak through with a victory in the freshman mile relay event with Frank Sowa, Jim Naun, Bob Cusack and Jim LaPiere carrying the baton.

Maryland is expected to make its strongest bid in the 440 and 880-yard sprint relays. Jimmy Johnson, Colin Timmis, Johnny Alexion and George McGowan, all 10-second dashmen, will comprise the Terps team in both events.

Episcopal Beats Western, 11 to 6

Catcher Ames Drummond's home run with one man on and single led Episcopal High to an 11-6 win over Western yesterday at Episcopal.

Episcopal has won three games and lost three.

Earth's Core Called Iron, Not Hydrogen

New studies which show that the earth's core is probably made of iron, not hydrogen as some European scientists have theorized, were reported here yesterday.

It's comforting news to those laymen who may have feared the earth was harboring its own hydrogen bomb, ready to be triggered by some intense stroke of heat.

Dr. Linus Pauling, professor of chemistry at the California Institute of Technology, offered his core theory at closing scenitific substantiating proof of the iron session of the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, here.

He said he calculated from results of the experiments of others that iron compressed under the pressure of four million atmospheres, the pressure at the earth's center, would have about the same density as seismologists have already figured in the density of matter there. Applying the same principles to determine the density of hydrogen at such a pressure, he said that element would be far less dense.

Therefore, he told the assembled scientists, the iron core theory appears to hold up.

Expanded VA Hospital Program Would Call for 20,000 More Employes

Veterans Administration will have to hire about 20,000 new employes if the expanded program is approved.

The House has approved 16,000 additional hospital beds for VA. The expansion bill is now before the Senate. VA has about 3700 beds unoccupied now because of lack of staff.

Incidentally, the cost of construction for the 16,000 new beds would be far greater than anticipated. The House bill would require hospitals now under construction to be enlarged, a most expensive operation.

The President yesterday named Capt. Robert F. A. Studds to be director of Commerce's Coast and Geodetic Survey to succeed Admiral L. O. Colbert . . . The Senate has confirmed Dillon S. Myer to be Commissioner of Indian Affairs . . . Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson will soon announce a reorganization of his top staff. His first step was the promotion of Assistant Postmaster General Joseph J. Lawler to take over postal operations such as the appointment of personnel.

LEAVE: Employes of the Civil Aeronautics Administration are being urged to take a minimum vacation of three weeks. Their officials believe the holidays will pay dividends in improved work by the employes.

GSA: General Services Administration will set up regional offices in these 10 cities: Boston, New York, Washington, Atlanta, Chicago, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco, and Seattle.

The regional offices will be operating units. The different GSA activities in the field will report to their respective regional directors. The regional directors will have authority to make Government-wide purchases, rent space for Federal offices, etc.

WAGE AND HOUR: This Labor Department agency barely escaped deep budget cuts by the House. An amendment offered by Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) to cut Wage and Hour's budget from $9,396,400 to eight million dollars was voted down by a close vote. If it had been approved, the agency wouldn't have had funds to hire 350 new employes to help carry out the new 75-cent minimum wage law.

Earlier, the House, by only a 4-vote margin, rejected a second amendment aimed at Wage and Hour. This amendment, offered by Representative Scrivner (R., Kans.) would have cut the budget for Labor's general counsel from $1,861,000 to $1,425,000. The President's budget provided for 137 new legal jobs, 125 of which would be assigned to Wage and Hour work.

The House Appropriations Committee made cuts in the President's budget for both Wage and Hour and the office of the general counsel.

NOTES: Representative Mansfield (D., Mont.) has in a bill to have Uncle Sam make $10,000 payments to the beneficiaries of Forest Service employes killed while fighting forest fires . . . More than a score of bills have been introduced to prevent the postal economy program from going into effect. It will take money to stop the threatened postal firings; nothing else. And the House shouted down an amendment to boost the postal budget by 22 million to retain the present postal staff.

TOP 400: The critics are continuing their potshots at the Civil Service list of jobs assigned to the three top classified grades.

On the surface, they have excellent reason for their gripes, because a few personnel directors were included, others ignored. The top lawyers such as general counsels were given different grades, and several were passed over. A few budget officers made the list, but most of them were not included. In addition, the charge is made that key management people in Government were not given a fair share of the jobs or high enough grades for those who were included.

This latter complaint may fade out for this reason: the President, in a reorganization plan, has asked the Congress to set up an assistant secretary for administration in each of the departments. If the plan is approved, as expected, many of the management experts will be appointed to those jobs at $15,000 salaries and Little Cabinet rank.

Land Buying Concludes for Watts Branch Flood Project

$1,500,000 Savings Expected From $194,517 Deals For Drainage System

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday announced all needed land has been bought for the long-proposed Watts Branch Parkway flood control parkway program.

The eventual completion of the flood control project in the eastern section of the District will, according to prewar estimates, result in a $1,500,000 saving.

The land acquired through condemnation proceedings involved 63 parcels of one or more lots, or parts of lots, according to Col. V. E. Stack, land acquisitions officer.

Watts Branch, a tributary of the Anacostia River, enters the District near the east corner, flows in a westerly direction to a Pennsylvania Railroad underpass near Deane ave., and from there flows through Anacostia Park to the river. It sometimes overflows its banks during heavy rains, inundating neighboring streets and dwellings.

To Straighten Stream Bed

The commission's plan, developed with the District Department of Sanitary Engineering, is to straighten the stream bed, eliminate erosion through paving, and thus secure run-off of flood waters. Adjacent ground acquired for the parkway would be landscaped. The roadway would have a minimum of cross-street intersections.

The estimate of $1,500,000 savings is based on the assumption that the only other solution would be to enclose the stream in a storm water sewer. The land cost $194,517.

Commission Chairman William N. Wurster, presiding at the two-day meetings which began yesterday, disclosed that the first volume of the much-discussed comprehensive plan for the District has gone to the printer.

About 50 pages long, the summary will give interested persons something concrete to study, Wurster said, and provide an opportunity for "corrections" in the following five monographs developing the comprehensive plan.

Land Bought for Logan Play Area

In other actions the commission approved acquisition of seven houses and lots along the east side of 2d st. ne., facing part of the Union Station railroad yards. The land will be added to the park and playground system and provide needed play area for Logan School pupils.

The commission also announced a purchase contract, previously approved by the Maryland Park and Planning Commission, covering a frontage along the C. & O. Canal from Cabin John Gardens, a Federal housing project, to Lock No. 8 and containing about 3½ acres. Colonel Stack said the land was an important link in the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

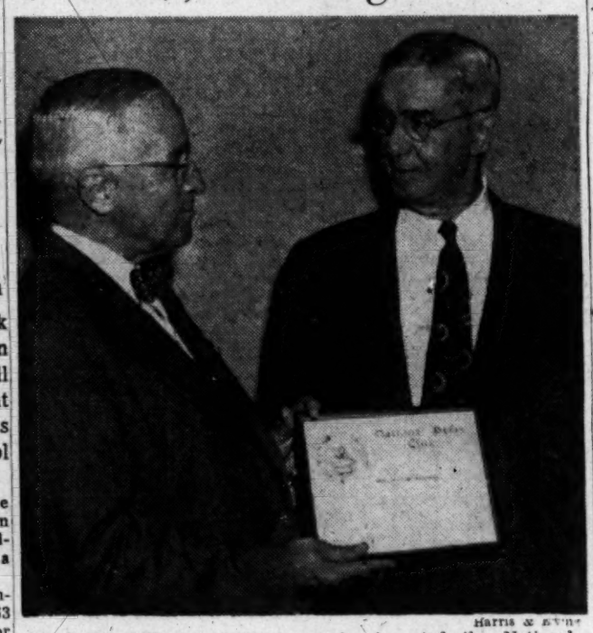
Also approved was a contract for purchase of a corner lot at 12th pl. and Jasper rd. se., to be added to the right of way for the proposed Fort Drive.

To Study Suitland Proposal

The commission decided to study sites for a Federal Deposit Corporation building and a building for the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Bureau, money for both of which is said to be available. It has been proposed that the FDC building be located in the Federal rectangle west of 17th st. and south of Virginia ave., and the building for the Social Security Agency's bureau in Suitland, Md. The commission reaffirmed its previous stand that the number of Federal workers at Suitland be limited to about 10,000, and since almost this number is already there, it questioned the wisdom of another building.

In another action the commission approved plans for a dental building at Howard University next to the medical school building.

Truman Gives Awards to 9 Newsmen, Including Hassett



Harris & Ewing

HONORED—President Truman, who is rated the National Press Club's top member, presents one of the nine certificates for "longevity and meritorius service" to his own secretary, William D. (Bill) Hassett at the club's Founders Day observance

The National Press Club's No. 1 member, Harry S. Truman, last night presented certificates of honor to nine newspapermen in Founder's Day ceremonies at the club.

Four certificates went to the correspondents with the longest service in the Congressional press galleries. They are Hal Harrison Smith, New York Times; Gould Lincoln, Washington Star; Arthur Sears Henning, Chicago Tribune, and James Lloyd Wright, Buffalo News.

Other certificates were awarded to four of the newest and youngest members of the Press Club, in an effort to encourage new members. They are Nathaniel M. McKitterick, McGraw-Hill Publications; Maurice Palmer, International News Service; Neil MacNeil, United Press and Wallace E. Clayton, Washington Star.

Chief of Naval Operations Admiral Forrest C. Sherman presented a memorial plaque honoring the 25 allied correspondents and photographers who died in the Pacific theater of war.

"Every one died doing his duty," Admiral Sherman said, "and no man can do more."

Go-Slow Plan Urged in Slum Condemnation

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Troubled District Welfare Department officials yesterday declared a vigorous slum dwelling condemnation program here could mean:

1. Eviction of 2000 to 5000 bottom-income families in the coming year, and

2. A further across-the-board slash in public assistance grants to help in resettling these homeless families.

Such a reduction in assistance to the city's indigents would be added to a 12 percent cut which goes into effect May 1.

Shea Praises Board

Welfare Director Gerard M. Shea praised the stepped-up program of the Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings to order substandard housing either fixed-up or closed-up.

But he made clear the resulting increased burden on the Welfare Department can be solved by bigger public assistance appropriations "or by going back to double-deckers in our already crowded institutions," or by reduced relief grants all along the line.

Basis of the Welfare Department warning was a report submitted to Shea by Miss Doris Wilkins, District landlord-tenant consultant, in which she said Washington is "facing a new housing shortage."

"The day of reckoning has come," she reported. "We are now faced with the planned removal of the temporary housing and the condemnation of hundreds of dwellings which, because of years of neglect, are now beyond salvage."

500 Dwellings Affected

She said the Condemnation Board is expected to condemn as "unfit for occupancy" an additional 500 dwellings within the year.

Should actions be taken against this number, Miss Wilkins estimated between 2000 and 5000 persons might find themselves looking for new quarters.

In recent years the Condemnation Board has handled an average of about 83 substandard houses annually, but Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young has announced he does not expect the reinvigorated board will reach the 500-a-year rate until June, 1951.

The 4000-unit public housing program of National Capital Housing Authority, Miss Wilkins reported, will offer no relief in low-cost housing for another two or three years.

"Somehow or other we will have to take care of these evicted persons, already coming to us in larger numbers, but right now I just don't know how," Shea said.

The top welfare department rent assistance payment is presently $38, while $40 for one room and cooking facilities in a private home is the cheapest rental listed today at the War Housing Center, Mrs. Wilkins said.

Survey Chief

Capt. Studds Named Head Of Geodetic

President Truman yesterday nominated Capt. Robert F. A. Studds, Washington native and veteran of World War I, to be director of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Capt. Studds

Captain Studds, who has served with the CGS for 31 years, will take the rank of rear admiral on confirmation of his appointment. He would succeed Rear Admiral Lee Otis Colbert, who retired April 7 after 42 years in the survey.

Studds, who is 53, attended public and parochial schools here, and received a B.S. in civil engineering from Catholic University in 1917.

During World War I he served with the 472d Engineers, after brief service with the District Government in an engineering capacity.

Joining the Coast and Geodetic Survey after World War I, Captain Studds commanded half a dozen ships for the bureau. He has aided in the survey of waters in the Atlantic Ocean, Gulf Stream, Pacific Coast, West Indies, Alaska and in the Philippine Islands.

His latest command was the Pathfinder, one of the survey's newest vessels, which he took into eastern Alaskan waters.

During this field experience, Captain Studds was endangered in 1936 when the Fathomer, which he commanded, was tossed on a coral reef by a typhoon.

Road Dumps In Fairfax Under Fire

Roadside dumping of trash is "almost out of hand" in Fairfax County, where the law is "flagrantly violated," the State Highway Department said yesterday.

Highway Resident Engineer J. H. Phillips estimated it will cost at least $37,000 just to clean up trash already dumped along primary and secondary roads.

The department's complaint from Richmond came as a result of surveys throughout Virginia, which disclosed that Fairfax has one of the most critical problems in the State. There are an estimated 10,000 small dumps along the 635 miles of Fairfax highways, the department said.

Phillips said he expects the situation will be improved when a proposed Fairfax ordinance, authorizing zoning of private property for sanitary dumps, becomes effective.

Dumping on State rights of way is illegal, but "the law is flagrantly violated in Fairfax," according to the department.

To clean up trash on secondary roads will cost about $25,000, Phillips estimated. On primary roads it would amount to $12,000, he said.

District Law Enforcement Fund Halved

Davis Group Now Asks Only $20,000 To Conduct Probe Into Crime Here

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) yesterday asked the House Accounts Committee to approve use of about $20,000 in House funds to continue investigation of District law enforcement.

Davis' request was made in a morning executive session, and was disclosed by Thomas B. Stanley (D., Va.), accounts chairman. The $20,000 would be half the amount originally proposed by Davis.

Stanley said the accounts committee probably will reach a decision in two weeks. The group is a subcommittee of the House Administration Committee, whose next regular meeting is May 10.

Stanley said he hopes by then to present the accounts group's decision on Davis' request.

The $40,000 fund would have let the House District crime investigating committee launch a special probe of gambling, but Davis announced some time ago that idea had been set aside for the present, to see what would be the result of a proposed Senate investigation.

Instead, the Davis group has ordered its staff to work at perfecting a program for tightening up loopholes in the Washington law enforcement machinery.

Man Reports Robbery Of $96 After Drink

A 33-year-old Washingtonian told police he was beaten and robbed of $96 and his watch early yesterday by a man he invited to his home for a drink.

Winfred D. Warner of 86 Elmira st. sw., said his assailant, whom he knew only as "Tom," was accompanied by a woman. He had met both during the evening, he said. Warner was treated for face cuts at Casualty Hospital.

In a robbery four hours earlier, two men forced William Klaff, manager of the Central Frozen Custard Store, 4920½ Central ave. ne., and a clerk to lie on the floor while they took a bag containing about $100 in cash.

Klaff said he was checking the cash register when the two men, whom he said were Negroes, entered. One had a .32-caliber revolver and the second had a knife.

2 Charged With Gaming After Raids

Vice squad detectives in separate raids yesterday arrested two men and charged them with setting up a gaming table, operating a lottery, and possession of numbers slips.

Lieut. Roy Blick said his men—acting on a complaint—found a door open on the second floor of 2131 Georgia ave. nw., investigated, and found the room fixed as a "racing establishment."

Arrested was Nathan Samuel Kaden, 36, of 1317 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Blick said his men found racing forms and numbers slips. One detective, answering the telephone, took 12 numbers bets, Blick reported.

In the second arrest, police said they watched from an areaway near a newsstand at 821 S st. ne., while a man answered a telephone call and wrote on paper.

Arrested was William Brooks, 45, of 725 9th st. ne.

Police said they found racing forms and a quantity of numbers and horse bets on scratch pads.

Both men were released under $2500 bond for appearances today in Municipal Court.

Two Men Arrested In Narcotics Actions

Two men were arrested and charged with violations of the narcotics act yesterday in separate actions by the police narcotics squad.

Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the squad, and Thomas Andrews, chief of the Washington office of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Narcotics, led a raid on a rooming house at 1025 8th st. nw., where cocaine, heroin and marihuana were seized. Arrested was Ivory E. Canady, 18, of 916 3d st. nw., who gave his occupation as a painter.

In the other arrest, Valentine McLaughlin, 21, of 1512 8th st. nw., was picked up near Thomas Circle nw. on a warrant charging violation of the Harrison Act.

Ecuadorean Teachers Give Thanks for Aid

Teachers of Ecuador, injured or made homeless by last year's earthquake, yesterday expressed their appreciation to teachers of this country who sent them aid.

Alfonso Moscoso, Ecuadorean representative to the Pan American Union, presented a scroll to Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the NEA, in a ceremony at NEA headquarters, 1201 16th st. nw. The scroll was signed by Ecuadorean teachers who received financial help from the NEA's welfare fund.

Crowds Flock to Winchester For Apple Blossom Festival

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Winchester, Va., April 26.—Queen Anne established royal court here today and lovely lips said a prayer for fair skies to bless the Old Dominion's renowned Apple Blossom Festival opening Thursday.

The weatherman cowered behind a "some cloudiness and moderate temperatures" forecast. But the defiant princesses set their noble hearts to hex the old prophet into a second edition of the perfect day that beamed down on the pageant rehearsal this afternoon.

They were led by as spirited a queen as ever wore the purple—Anne Hadley, stepdaughter of Vice President Alben Barkley.

That celebrated crowner of feminine blue-bloods, the Veep himself, will place the royal diadem on the dark tresses of his stepdaughter at 3 p. m. Thursday and proclaim her Queen Shenandoah XXIII, absolute monarch of this apple capital of Virginia.

Senators Harry F. Byrd and Willis Robertson of Virginia and Gov. John S. Battle will be on hand to see Miss Hadley crowned in Handley School bowl.

This town of 15,000, refulgent with history and set like a vine-decked jewel in the heart of the Shenandoah Valley, was filled to its ancient crevices today.

The van of a crowd of 200,000 due from all over the East to honor the apple and its fair blossoms ambled in holiday mood along the streets of the town which George Washington helped lay out as a surveyor and helped defend as major.

Parades, a pageant, concerts, fireworks, service exhibits, name-band blossom balls and square dances assured that the Blue Ridges would shortly reverberate with the sounds of holiday joy and that by Friday night all hands will be ready to drop from exhaustion.

Miss Hadley was due to welcome movie star Van Johnson, idol of the bobby-soxers, to her kingdom Thursday night and to knight him Friday.

Van will ride at the head of the grand feature parade at 2 p. m. Friday leading floats, band and marching units along the "trail of pink and white petals."

Aside from the coronation, the pageant on the same program in Handley Bowl will be Thursday's headliner. The pageant will show again at 10 a. m. Friday.

Thursday night a colorful firemen's parade will roll down the streets, with visiting companies from four States.

The city armory will be the scene of two festive dances: The Princesses' Ball at 10 p. m. Thursday, with Tony Pastor's orchestra, and the Queen's Ball at the same time Friday with Tommy Tucker's orchestra supplying the dance tunes.

Howard U. To End Pact With UPWA

Howard University will terminate its collective bargaining agreement with Local 30 of the United Public Workers of America on June 30.

This action was voted yesterday by the university trustees, according to Dr. James M. Nabrit, jr., secretary of the university.

The UPWA was one of the unions expelled from the CIO last February because of alleged Communist domination. Howard University's pact with Local 30 covered teaching and nonteaching employes.

Dr. Nabrit also announced the election of two new trustees, both District residents. They are George E. C. Hayes, prominent attorney who is the university's legal adviser and who has taught at Howard Law School for 21 years, and Dr. Dorothy Fosdick, foreign affairs expert.

Hayes will fill a vacancy created by the retirement of Dr. C. C. Spaulding of Durham, N. C., president of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Co. Dr. Fosdick succeeds to a vacancy created by the death of Dr. Thomas Jesse Jones of New York.

The Board of Trustees also re-elected six of its members for new three-year terms that expire in 1953. Re-elected were Harry J. Capehart, Welch, W. Va., attorney; Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of the university; Lorimer D. Milton of Atlanta, chairman of the board of trustees; Dr. Peter Marshall Murray of New York, Dr. Channing H. Tobias of New York, and Mrs. Juanita Howard Thomas of Washington, alumni trustees.

The Board of Trustees also voted to accept the retirements of Dean William B. West, dean of men for 28 years, and Dr. Franz Rapp, professor of art at the university for more than four years.

Dr. Walker to Speak

Dr. Egbert H. Walker, associate curator of the botany department, National Museum, will speak at 7:30 p. m. today on the District Audubon Society's series of lectures on field botany. The meeting, to which the public is invited, will be held at the museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

In Visit Here

D. C. Needs 'Revival,' Says Graham

Fiery Dr. Billy Graham, the North Carolina evangelist, last night prayed that "God might visit the Nation's Capital with an old-fashioned revival."

Dr. Graham, whose revival meeting on Boston Common this month drew 50,000 persons, said all the people need a religious revival, but Washington needs it more than any other city.

The evangelist is in Washington briefly after completing tours of New England and South Carolina. Today he is scheduled to speak before a breakfast group from the House of Representatives and the Senate in the Senate Restaurant.

Last night he met with a small group of religious leaders at Fellowship House, 2324 Massachusetts ave. nw. After hearing him they formed a provisional committee to bring Dr. Graham here, possibly in the fall of 1951.

Dr. Graham, who declared that "the people are hungry for a revival" said that he felt that "unless God sends a revival to us in this country we are done for."

"If the spirit of God can do it in Boston and Los Angeles, God Almighty can do it in Washington," he declared, adding that a revival in Washington "would have an impact on the entire history of the world."

Spring Cleanup Set In Montgomery

The Montgomery Fire Board has designated May 1 through May 15 as a spring cleanup period.

Each volunteer fire department will be responsible for promoting the program in its own fire area.

County Fire Marshal Charles H. Howe, jr., asked citizens cooperation with the fire units to make the program a complete success.

Address to Writers

Mrs. Helen Curtis Demary, executive director of the District Society for the Prevention of Blindness, will speak to the Society of Free Lance Writers at 8 p. m. today at the Mount Pleasant Branch of the Public Library.

Transit Firm Rejects Pass Solutions as 'Impractical'

At PUC Hearing Rules Out Coupons, Photos as Ways To Prevent Misuse

Continuation of the weekly pass was the principal point at issue yesterday as cross-examination began in the hearing on an increase in Capital Transit Co. fares.

On the other hand, five interested parties hinted at—or came right out and said it—that they were for retention of the pass. This developed during the polite sparring accompanying cross-examination of J. E. Heberle, company vice president and comptroller.

Photographs Ruled Out

Heberle said the firm had "been unable to discover any practical means" to prevent misuses and overuse of the 17-year-old pass. He quickly discarded suggestions of photographs, punching of passes or coupon passes as impractical.

The company has asked for fares of 15 cents cash, 6 tokens for 80 cents and elimination of the $1.75 weekly pass.

The official also rejected a suggestion of zone fares. Heberle said this would require all passengers to leave by the front door—after the first zone—which would be particularly "impractical in rush hours." It would also require zone collections on cross-town runs and handling of transfers—both headaches for operator-collectors.

Lloyd Harrison, PUC counsel, queried Heberle about the yield on a rate schedule of 15 cents, 6 tokens for 80 cents and a weekly pass of $2. Heberle said this would reduce the rate of return on the company's rate base from the 7.05 percent expected from the company proposal to 5.84 percent.

People's Counsel Favors Pass

Harrison then asked about the same schedule with tokens sold at 3 for 40 cents. This would reduce the rate of return to 4.74 percent, Heberle declared.

People's Counsel John O'Dea also questioned the need to eliminate the pass, later asking about it on behalf of the Citizens Committee Against Transit Fare Increase, which favors retention.

The company proposal, except for dropping the pass, was approved by J. A. Kamerow, insurance broker, on behalf of the Federation of Business Men's Associations.

Pass abuses—(1) Holders board a vehicle, then hand the pass through the window to others; (2) A man on one shift rides to work and hands the pass to someone finishing the previous shift.

$19,000 Radio Profits Seen

Transit radio—Further installations have been halted pending the outcome of court suits. About $19,000 is anticipated from this source in the 12 months ending February 28, 1951, at the rate of $6 per vehicle per month.

Fare reductions to encourage patronage—A suggestion of a 10-cent straight fare would be "disastrous" for the company revenues and would not offset the 6 percent postwar decline in customers.

Residents are using autos, which have become more readily available, not because fares are high, but for the convenience.

Executive salaries — Increases granted to three vice presidents and the addition of a vice president and his assistant were almost equalled by reductions in payroll expense through the retirement of two officials.

Fairfax County Youth Killed When Jeep Overturns

A 14-year-old Fairfax County boy was killed instantly last night when a jeep in which he was riding turned over on the Seminary dr. extension near Bailey's Crossroads.

He was identified by police as Buddy Alexander, of Route 2, Bailey's Crossroads.

Uninjured in the accident, caused when the jeep struck a small tree at the bottom of a hill after going out of control, were John Hargett, 15, also of Route 2, and an unidentified 9-year-old boy.

Police said they believe Hargett was driving the Army-style vehicle. The youngest boy rushed to a nearby farmhouse for aid.

Fairfax Approves $3,472,205 Budget

A record $3,472,205 budget was adopted for Fairfax County yesterday after a sparsely attended public hearing which brought no opposition to proposed expenditures.

The budget, approved by unanimous vote of the board of supervisors, provides for the same tax rate of $3.19 on $100 as exists in the current budget. It will mark the third consecutive year the figure has gone unchanged.

Effective July 1, the budget represents in increase of$139,171 over the current figure. Outstanding single item is $2,376,845 for operating county schools, a decrease of $123,468.

Other major items are the county levy fund, $667,281; fire levy fund, $86,256; police retirement fund, $45,664, and county school debt and capital outlay fund, $294,056.

The breakdown on the $3.19 tax rate follows: County levy fund, 39 cents; fire levy fund, 14 cents; police retirement fund, 1 cent; school operating fund, $2.20, and school debt and outlay fund 25 cents.

Less than 20 were on hand in the Circuit Court at the start of the budget hearing at 10 a. m. A few of the spectators asked occasional questions as the budget items were read off in rapid-fire order.

Although the budget brought no protests, the hearing did produce a request from the County Taxpayers' Advisory Association that the public be given wider notice of the budget and of the annual budget hearing.

George W. Kirkley, vice president of the association, cited the small attendance at yesterday's hearing as an example of what he termed "inadequate public notice concerning important budget matters."

Mrs. Meyer Cites Bars To Reporting

It has "never been more difficult than today" for journalists to "break through propaganda and appearances to the realities they conceal."

That is what Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, told journalism students at George Washington University last night. Speaking on the subject of modern newspaper crusades for social welfare, Mrs. Meyer told the students that one of a newspaper's most important tasks is "not to suppress the facts with which it does not happen to agree."

"American newspapers," Mrs. Meyer said, "must trust their readers and rely on them to see through propaganda. Reporters must be free to write what they see and as they see it."

Mrs. Meyer asserted that the "idea that American people can be happy today with tremendous migrations, not enough schools, not enough health facilities, is wrong.

"The people can't be happy unless society has some sense and form, and gives them a chance to develop their native capacities to the extent to which they can be developed. Art and literature can only come into being if they reflect the form and content of a meaningful society," Mrs. Meyer said.

"If the American people can feel solid ground here at home," Mrs. Meyer concluded, "it will give them added leverage to bring the whole world nearer to the stars."

Dog Leads Two Policemen a Chase, Lands in River

First spotted in the 1100 block of Delaware ave. sw., he outwitted two policemen and a man from the District pound by leaping from a wharf at N st. and Maine ave. into the Washington Channel.

Two harbor policemen took him out of the river, and he was sent to the pound for observation. Police said he had not bitten anyone, nor were their any signs of foaming.

Church Food Sale

Home-baked foods will be sold at Gunton-Temple Presbyterian Church, 16th and Newton sts. nw., from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. Friday and Saturday. The sale is sponsored by the Woman's Guild of the church.

Conferees Agree On Rivers, Flood Control Measure

A joint Senate House Conference Committee yesterday agreed on a compromise version of the multi-billion dollar rivers and harbors and flood control authorization bill.

The conference committee set the final figure at $1,730,000,000 —$110,000,000 below the Senate level. The committee's report must be approved by the House and Senate before it goes to the White House.

The largest single reduction was made in increases voted by the Senate for Columbia Valley projects. The conference committee set the final figure at $182,997,000. The House had voted $107,997,000 and the Senate $250,000,000.

The conferees eliminated an amendment sponsored by Senator Robert S. Kerr, (D., Okla.). It would have set up a commission to study a plan for comprehensive development of the Arkansas, White and Red Rivers.

Gov. Battle, Truman Talk On Virginia

By The Associated Press

Gov. John S. Battle of Virginia called on President Truman yesterday.

He told White House reporters it was just a "friendly call" but that he took the opportunity to talk about some northern Virginia problems.

The problems, he said, include roads, schools and utilities for some 200,000 Federal employes living on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

Battle emphasized that he "didn't ask any financial help but in a general way suggested that cooperation between the State and Federal governments would be useful" in coping with the rapid growth of the northern Virginia counties.

The Governor said he was "no Dixiecrat" but "like all other Southerners I don't go along with the President's civil rights program."

Mrs. Norton Receives Bracelet and a Kiss

Representative Mary Norton (D., N.J.) returned to the House after a long illness yesterday and got two gifts—a gold bracelet and a hearty buss on the cheek.

The bracelet was from the three Republican Women members of the House; Representative John Lesinski, (D., Mich.), provided the kiss during the presentation on the House floor.

George Daly, City Postoffice Supervisor, Dead at 41

A requiem mass for George P. Daly, 41, supervisor of the Washington City Postoffice, who died of a heart attack Tuesday at his home, 1737 Irving st. nw., will be celebrated at 9 a. m. Friday in St. Paul's Catholic Church, 15th and V sts. nw. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mr. Daly

Mr. Daly was a lifelong resident of the District, and had attended local schools and the old Columbus University School of Law, from which he received the degrees of LL.B., LL.M., and M.P.L. in 1936 and 1937.

He entered the postal service here in August, 1928, and in September, 1941, was appointed a foreman, and subsequently assistant superintendent of mails.

Mr. Daly also practiced law for some years and was a member of the United States Supreme Court and District bars, and of the Sigma Delta Kappa legal fraternity.

During World War II he served in various capacities connected with intelligence and the mails, and ended a five-year tour as a judge advocate with the Potomac River Naval Command General Court Martial Board with the rank of lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve. For a period he was in charge of the Fleet Postoffice, Washington, D. C.

In July, 1940, he married the former Louise L. Dod of Lexington, Ky., who survives him.

Citizens Ask Play Areas Shift to D. C.

A request to Congress for the transfer of all titles of local recreational facilities to the District government was made by the 16th Street Highlands Citizens Association last night.

The group, meeting at the Brightwood School, Nicholson and 14th sts. nw., also went on record as favoring a fully equipped, lighted stadium, and an indoor swimming pool for Coolidge Senior High School.

Woodside Park

Wayne Birdsell was elected president of the Woodside Park Civic Association last night at a meeting in Grace Church Parish Hall, Silver Spring, Md.

Other officers chosen were W. K. Cave, vice president; Mrs. Martin Cooley, secretary, and Nathan F. Fuller, treasurer.

Elected delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation were Harold P. Morris, Evarts J. Wagg and Willard A. Anderson. Alternates will be Birdsell, Cave and Samuel H. Horne.

Named as delegates to the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring were Lewis B. Moulton, James E. Schreider and Frank G. Beatty. Their alternates are Fuller, Charles A. Weigle and Carlos A. Greenleaf.

River Terrace

The River Terrace Citizens Association, meeting in the River Terrace Church at Clay st. and Anacostia rd. ne., last night went on record as opposed to a proposal for non-segregation in the public schools, and to any reduction in the Federal appropriation for the District.

The association, in an effort to build up its Boy Scout Troop No. 66, named a new five-man Scout committee, headed by William Cossabloon, of 3329 Baker st. ne.

Joseph Martin Dies; Retired Attorney Here

Joseph G. Martin, 54, retired Bureau of Internal Revenue attorney, died Monday in the Veterans Hospital at Columbia, S. C., it was learned here yesterday.

Mr. Martin entered Government service with the Postoffice Department in 1920, and came here in 1921 to enter the Bureau of Internal Revenue. He retired last July as an attorney in the Estate and Gift Tax Division.

Born in Monticello, S. C., he was graduated from the Columbus University School of Law here and was admitted to the District bar.

Mr. Martin leaves his wife, Mrs. Agnes S. Martin, and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Owens of Washington; his mother, Mrs. Mary Alston Martin of Monticello. Three brothers and four other sisters also survive.

Mass will be said at 10 a. m. Friday at St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Nelson Kent Dies; Ex-U. S. Photographer

Nelson Head Kent, 88, retired Biological Survey photographer, died yesterday after a long illness at the Methodist Home, 4901 Connecticut ave. nw.

A Washington resident for 54 years, Mr. Kent was born in Fairfax County. For the past five years, he had been living at the home.

He retired from the Interior Department's Biological Survey in 1932, after 27 years Government service. He was a watchmaker in Leesburg, Va., before joining the Interior Department's Geological Survey in 1905. Ten years later he shifted to the Biological Survey.

C. H. Houston Rites Held At Howard

Funeral services for Charles Hamilton Houston, Washington attorney who died Saturday, were held at 1 p. m. yesterday at the Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel at Howard University. Burial was in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery.

The eulogy was delivered by the Rev. A. F. Elmes, pastor of the Peoples Congregational Church, with the obituary read by Judge William H. Hastie, former governor of the Virgin Islands and now on the bench of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third District.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, spoke; Dr. William Stuart Nelson, dean of Howard's School of Religion, read from Scriptures, and a prayer was recited by the Rev. Daniel Hill, dean of Andrew Rankin Chapel. Also participating were the Howard University Choir and a military guard from Howard's ROTC.

Mr. Houston, a vice president of the American Council of Race Relations from 1940 until the time of his death was particularly concerned with obtaining equality for the Negro through the Nation's courts.

A native of Washington, he was 54 when he died. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Henrietta W. Houston; a son, Charles H., jr., and his father, William L. Houston.

Hobert Cavanaugh, Character Actor, Dies

Mr. Cavanaugh

Often appearing as a henpecked husband or a harried bookkeeper, his face, if not his name, was known to millions of moviegoers. Among his pictures since 1933 were "Captain Blood," "Rose of Washington Square," "Kismet," "Margie" and "Driftwood."

A native of Virginia City, Nev., he was educated at the University of California. Survivors include his wife, Florence, and a daughter.

Prince Maximilian Dies; Jack-of-All-Trades

Prince Maximilian, last surviving member of a royal house in what is now Soviet Georgia, fled to Canada after the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

In turn he became a cavalry instructor in Iran, a ballet dancer in Rome, a tennis teacher in San Remo, a chicken farmer at Nice, France; a professional gambler at Monte Carlo, a leopard trapper in Kenya, East Africa; an employe of a food distribution company in New York City, and then a mushroom salesman, a motoring school secretary, and finally a stable boy in Britain.

Give Me Your Fears

If there is anything, my love . . . That ever worries you . . . I hope that you will let me know . . . Whatever I can do . . . Because you know it hurts my heart . . . To see the slightest trace . . . Of trouble in your gentle eyes . . . Or fear upon your face . . . I want your problems to be mine . . . And always mine alone . . . For they are more important, love . . . Than any of my own . . . I want to comfort you each day . . . And hold you close at night . . . And make your every moment more . . . Enjoyable and light . . . So rest your anxious head upon . . . The shoulder of my heart . . . And in the shelter of my love . . . Let every doubt depart.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Sudden Rage at Jealous Wife's Fantastic Accusations, Man Throttles Her Momentarily; Asks for Help, to Prevent Divorce or Murder

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The next time I get mad at my wife I may kill her. I didn't marry until I was 40. Previously I had different girls, never anything serious. I was never in love and never wanted to settle down. I was the former big athlete, a fast talker, free spender, glad-hand artist, smart promoter, always good natured, made friends easily, never lost my temper.

About two years ago I was going with two women. One of them, in the guise of friendship, gave me a detective report on the other. She pointed out the other woman was an evil immoral person trying to get me and my money. She asked me to marry her and I did; and very shortly I found that she is extremely jealous. Insanely jealous, I would say.

Due to her jealousy my former friends have faded away and my professional career is ruined. I try to be with her 24 hours a day; don't even go to the corner for a newspaper without her. I am afraid to speak to any woman, even on the street, because Madge would accuse her on the spot of being one of my amours.

She Thinks He Needs Psychiatry

SHE WON'T go to psychiatrists. She has been to three, but if they don't agree with her that I need treatment, she leaves. My funds are showing the strain and so are my nerves. And just last week, after a fantastic tale by her of how I had sneaked off to a rendezvous, I became so enraged that I started to choke her. Everything went blank in my mind, but fortunately I threw her across the room after a momentary throttling.

She is extremely nervous, cries continually, nags about everything, repeats incessantly that she has nobody in the world to give her love and affection; and she berates me by the hour for my philandering. I try to reason with her and remind that she is with me 24 hours a day, almost; and then she insists that I sneak out when she is asleep! A psychiatrist tells me that she is pathologically jealous. Is there any way out for me besides divorce? J. G.

Wife Is Victim of Self Contempt

DEAR J. G.: It seems to me that pathological jealousy is a neat but noncommittal term for what ails Madge. She is very sick emotionally, an extremely dependent personality tortured by fears of rejection in intimate relationship. That's why she sticks to you like a shadow, fighting phantom rivals.

She is inaccessible to psychiatric help at this time because her unconscious concept of her worth is so low that she cannot endure personal stocktaking.

She has developed airtight defenses against such a thing, by fixedly believing and insistently maintaining that others invariably are to blame for her psychological sufferings, and that cure must consist in reforming them. That's why she is looking for a doctor who might agree that you need treatment.

The choking episode means that you feel strongly attached to Madge, unwilling to leave her if any tolerable compromise can be found; and yet absolutely helpless to assuage her psychotic suspicions; and therefore angry and despairing about your predicament as well as her misery. All this emotional pressure is beginning to explode in irrational behavior; and to avert catastrophe you actually do need specialist help; so don't be proud, obstinate or slow about getting it. And consult a psychoanalyst, not a psychiatrist.

Both Off Beam to Some Extent

IN A SERIOUSLY disturbed conjugal relationship such as yours, analytic therapy can be beneficially administered through the penalized partner if the ailing person won't cooperate with the physician.

What is chiefly important is to bring sane understanding into the core of their dealings; and when one begins to see clearly and act sensibly, the other shows improvement automatically.

An authority with whom I've discussed your letter advises you to explore one aspect of your performance thoroughly, namely, your assumption that it was necessary to tolerate 24-hour-a-day surveillance from Madge. He says a psychologically mature, emotionally sound man would have gone about his business normally, despite her bleating, thus putting her false fears in the proper light, even though looking kindly on her distress. M. H.

Garden Group Slates Louis Bromfield Talk

Louis Bromfield will be guest speaker at the annual spring luncheon of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, Capital Division, on May 4, at 1 p. m. at the Shoreham Hotel.

The celebrated author recently has devoted his writing to the cause of wise agriculture, soil and water conservation. In addition to his work as farmer, author, and lecturer, Mr. Bromfield takes an active part in the work of the Ohio State Conservation Commission, of which he is a member.

Madame Pandit, Ambassador from India, as one of the honor guests, will be on hand at the luncheon to renew an old acquaintance with Mr. Bromfield. Non-members of the association who may wish to hear the speaker may make arrangements to do so by communicating with Mrs. Carl Casey at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mrs. Theodore Shapiro Again Heading B'nai B'rith, Argo

Mrs. Theodore Shapiro was reelected president of B'nai B'rith Women, Argo, at the final meeting of the year yesterday afternoon.

Guest of honor at the luncheon and meeting was Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Secretary of the Interior. Mrs. Chapman, in a brief greeting, commended the work of B'nai B'rith and said that "organizational women have a great influence in talking up democracy."

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Shapiro are Mrs. Michael Shapiro, first vice president; Mrs. Samuel Feldman, second vice president; Mrs. Frank Fields, third vice president; Mrs. Melvyn Kraft, fourth vice president, and Mrs. Maurice Malasky, fifth vice president.

Also, Mrs. Joseph Zupnik, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Shapiro, recording secretary; Mrs. Saul Greber, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Herbert Bright, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Norman Becker, administrative corresponding secretary; Mrs. Saul Scharf, assistant administrative corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bernard Kolker, financial secretary; Mrs. Jack Carpel and Mrs. Harold Kagan, assistant financial secretaries; Mrs. Marcus Mensh and Mrs. Louis Chelec, auditors; Mrs. I. E. Levinson, parliamentarian, and Mrs. George Nathan, historian.

At the meeting the president, Mrs. Shapiro, asked the support of the B'nai B'rith Women in their two major projects: the spring installation luncheon on May 8 and the building of the Henry Monsky memorial building in Washington.

Chatham Added To Virginia Garden Week Tour List

Mrs. Robert T. Barton, jr., chairman of Historic Garden Week in Virginia, announced the inclusion of Chatham, the estate of John L. Pratt just north of Falmouth on Route 1, in the week's tour. It will be open to visitors today and Friday.

Chatham is one of the best preserved of the private colonial estates. Because of the uncertain weather Mr. Pratt delayed his decision on showing the estate, but now the gardens are a mass of blooms.

Mrs. Julius Wadsworth and Mrs. Edwin Graves of this city are among the many Washingtonians driving down Fredericksburg way to visit Chatham, Kenmore and other places of interest.

New Embassy Awaits Return of Sweden's Envoy

By Marie McNair

WHEN Swedish Ambassador Erik Boheman returns from a week or 10 days of conferences in Stockholm, he'll find his new embassy ready and waiting for him to move in. The Ambassador will leave for Sweden next week. Mme. Boheman and the children will remain here and moving day will be postponed until the envoy's return.

The new embassy, the former David Lawrence house at 3900 Nebraska ave., is long and low, with an ivy-covered doorway and a walled garden at the side. The house is surrounded by gardens and trees.

The Bohemans' fine paintings will go with them to Nebraska ave. from the house on R st. which has been the embassy for many years and which now will be turned into the chancery.

Much of the furnishing of the present embassy is the property of the Ambassador and Mme. Boheman. The Swedish government owns the rest. But all of the credit for combining the two with such great charm and effectiveness goes to the Ambassador's wife.

Blair House Invites Mrs. Mesta to Dine

President and Mrs. Truman will entertain at dinner Tuesday evening, May 2, for Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg. That afternoon Mrs. Mesta will be guest of honor at a small cocktail party to be given by Vice President and Mrs. Barkley.

Yesterday the much feted envoy, who has been away at her post for nine months, was honor guest at a luncheon given by Rhode Island's Senator Theodore Francis Green, who entertained in the Senate dining room. Mrs. Mesta's legal residence is Newport, R. I.

Senator and Mrs. Edward L. Leahy of Rhode Island and Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally were among the guests yesterday. Others were Senator Alexander Wiley, Senator Margaret Chase Smith and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon.

U. S. Diplomat's Wife Is Feted

Senora de Limon, wife of the Mexican Minister of Defense, was the guest in whose honor Mrs. Riley F. Ennis entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Shoreham. Colonel Ennis was recently appointed Military Attache of the United States Embassy in Mexico City.

Mrs. J. Lawton Collins, wife of the Chief of Staff, was in the company which also included Mrs. Alfred M. Gruenther, Mrs. S. Leroy Irwin, Mrs. Alexander R. Bolling, Mrs. R. B. Reynolds, Mrs. C. B. Magruder, Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Mrs. Robert Walsh, Mrs. W. G. Johnson, Mrs. Ruth Mason Hughes, Mrs. Enrique M. Benites.

Mrs. Ennis will accompany Senora de Limon to Mount Vernon on Thursday and from there will go to Annapolis, Md., where they will lunch at Carvel Hall and witness a midshipmen parade at 3:30 p. m.

Gives the First Of Party Series

MRS. ELDON PAUL KING entertained at the first in a series of luncheons yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club.

Mrs. Norman Makin, wife of the Australian Ambassador, was ranking guest.

Mrs. Edward Pierpont Morgan was hostess to a small group of friends at tea Tuesday in her apartment at the Marlyn. Among those there were Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. Harold Burton, Mrs. Louis Renfrow, Mrs. James Murray, Mrs. Charles Wahl, Mrs. Clare Magee and Mrs. Albert S. Woodward.

Mr. Morgan is general counsel for the Senate Investigating Committee headed by Senator Millard Tydings.

Paul Guerins Leaving for Paris

MR. and Mrs. Paul Guerin, who were married here April 10, will sail on the Ile de France May 20 for Paris to spend the remainder of the spring in their apartment there, and then will go to Antibes in the south of France for the summer season.

Mrs. Guerin, the former Mme. Simonne Nano Auffmordt of Washington, is the sister of Senora de Cardenas, whose husband, Juan de Cardenas was for many years Spanish Ambassador to the United States.

Mr. Guerin, honorary Counselor of Embassy for France, was often in Washington on official missions during the war. He was a member of the French delegation at the San Francisco Conference in 1944 and from 1945 to 1948 was assistant to E. Naggiar, French Ambassador and delegate to the Far Eastern Commission in Washington. Mr. Guerin is now writing a book on American postwar problems.

Capt. John Webster Bowman, USMC, and Mrs. Bowman announce the birth of their third child, William Cox Bowman, on April 6 at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Annapolis, Md. The baby is the grandson of Capt. Smith Hempstone, USN (ret.) and Mrs. Hempstone of Washington, and of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bowman of Sikeston, Mo. Captain Bowman is a graduate of the Naval Academy, class of 1943 and is at present attending the U. S. Naval Post-Graduate School in Annapolis.

Blair House Invites Society of Sponsors

MRS. TRUMAN will receive members of the Society of Sponsors at Blair House on May 6. The society, composed of women who have christened U.S. naval vessels, will have its annual luncheon on May 9, at which Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews will be the speaker.

Mrs. Boswell Colt of Newport and New York will arrive today to be the guest of Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould for several days. Mrs. Gould will entertain at luncheon in her honor on Friday.

Pan American Program Slated

A LATIN AMERICAN version of a television program will be put on at the Pan American Union Friday at 8 p. m. under the auspices of the Maret School, with students in colorful costumes taking part.

In addition there will be a round-table discussion of friendship between nations, particularly of the Americas.

Among those taking part in the Spanish dances, readings and [illegible] "commercials" will be Srta. Nancy de la Colina, daughter of the Mexican Ambassador; Srta. Soledad Pocaterra, daughter of the Venezuelan Ambassador; and Mlle. Anne Baube, daughter of the Counselor of the French Embassy; Catherine Barker and Rita Preisman. Mrs. Elsie Browning Berg, who was born in South America and lived for many years in Chile, inaugurated the fiesta last year.

Vice Admiral and Mrs. Arthur D. Struble, soon to leave Washington, were the guests in whose honor the Naval Attache of the Canadian Embassy, Commodore H. N. Lay and Mrs. Lay entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon at their home on Fordham rd.

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman entertained at a farewell luncheon yesterday for Mme. van Kleffens, wife of the Netherlands Ambassador, at Tuxeden, her home in Edgemoor, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Gravitt, jr., of Richmond, Va., announce the birth of a son, William Henry 3d, on April 5. Mrs. Gravitt is the former Miss Louise Lynham of Washington.

Miss Josephine Quill who has sailed for Europe to attend the Holy Year celebration in Rome, was entertained at a farewell luncheon in New York by Mrs. Robert Moynihan.

House Clerk's Granddaughter Is Married

Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church was the scene of the marriage last evening of Miss Janet Pendleton Mallorey and James Shepherd Crupper of Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown Mallorey of Washington and the granddaughter of Alney E. Chaffee, reading clerk of the House of Representatives. Mr. Crupper's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lee Crupper, jr., of Chevy Chase, Md.

Following the reception at Kenwood Golf and Country Club the newlyweds left for their wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains. On their return they will reside in Arlington, Va. Mrs. Crupper attended Dickinson Junior College. Her husband is an Army veteran.

Takes a Short Course in Anatomy Of the Pig to Buy a Ham Wisely; Butt End Usually a Thrifty Choice

DEAR ANNE:

I have never had an occasion to buy more ham at a time than just a slice. But now I would like to get a whole or a half ham and I am perplexed as to which is preferable: the precooked, the uncooked, the butt end, the shank, picnic, shoulder, and so on. Could you describe these different cuts and the features of each, please? MRS. M. B. C., Washington.

"Ready-to-eat" hams are fully precooked and can be served without further ado. They are, consequently, more expensive than uncooked or "processed" hams of equal quality.

Modern "processed" or "tenderized" hams still require further cooking, but not as much as an ordinary raw ham. They do not require any boiling before baking, can be popped in the oven immediately and baked about 20 to 22 minutes to the pound. (Follow instructions on the wrapper, if any.)

On the half ham, the butt end generally sells for more per pound than the shank end, which contains more bone and is less meaty. A butt weighing 3½ to 4 pounds yields 2½ pounds of cooked meat for serving, the same amount you get from a shank weighing 4½ to 5 pounds. A large half ham is generally a thriftier buy than a small whole ham.

"Picnics" are the shoulders of the hog, whereas real hams are the meatier hind leg. Picnics are now cured in very much the same manner as ham and the flavor is very similar. They are generally rated as a less tender and select meat, however, and sell for less.

If you'd like a booklet that gives helpful information about meat-buying generally, send 5 cents to the Consumer Education Department, Household Finance Corp., 919 North Michigan ave., Chicago 11, Ill., requesting "Better Buymanship of Meat, Fish, Poultry and Eggs."

DEAR ANNE:

My daughter, who will be 16 in June, would very much like to get a summer job as camp counselor, and I have no idea where she could start looking. She was at Scout camp for three summers, but ceased to belong to the Scouts when her school schedule became heavier, and I am pretty sure they take on girls who have been continuously at the Scout camps.

She is interested in ballet and has studied it for years, swims well, and is a dependable, responsible girl. She finds the long holidays very boring and really wants a job, even if it doesn't mean much pay. I wondered if there are any centers to which she could apply. M. D. P., Washington.

There are several agencies here which employ girls as counselors for private camps, but they aren't encouraging about prospects for girls under 18 years of age. They say it takes maturity and specific training to be a camp counselor as there is real responsibility attached to the job. One bureau suggests that a good way to prepare to be a counselor is to enroll in a camp offering a counuselor training course. These cost somewhat less than the regular fee at these private summer camps, but of course would entail an expenditure rather than recompense for the girl. If you're interested in further information about this or camps in general, call the bureau at Republic 1785. Readers, have you any further suggestions for M. D. P.?

DEAR ANNE:

I have a case of surgical instruments which I desire to sell. Can you tell me where I can take it for appraisal as to its value? J. I. B., Washington.

If you will take the case to one of the firms listed under "Surgical Instruments," in the yellow section of the telephone book, I believe you will be able to locate an experienced person who can give you an estimate of its value. These firms do not sell second-hand instruments but are familiar with the market and will know what you might be able to realize for them.

DEAR ANNE:

How can I wrap woolen clothes to keep out moths in storing them away for the summer? Will a sealed clothes bag protect them?

V. E. K., Washington.

Yes, if the clothes are clean and free of moth larvae when put away. Even a hungry moth isn't interested in eating paper, so the airtight bags do afford protection.

It's important that the wrappings be really airtight, says Helen Shelby, University of Maryland extension clothing specialist. Moths can get through very small openings when lured by wool material. A good way to seal paper bags is to put paper tape or transparent tape over all openings and seams. Pack the clothes away as soon as they come from the cleaners. Use of moth spray will give further guarantee of freedom from moths. And hang the wrapped garments in as cool a place as possible.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Zonta Club Installs New Head, Aides

Dr. Inez Edith Wilber, a practicing ophthalmologist, was installed president of the Zonta Club of Washington yesterday at a dinner at the Washington Club.

Installation ceremonies were conducted by a former president of the club, Miss Mary W. Sigman. Mrs. Nancy Poore Tufts, outgoing president, presented the gavel to Dr. Wilber.

Mrs. Bess Murray was installed vice president of the club; Mrs. Florence Warner, secretary; Mrs. Virginia Conway, treasurer, and Mrs. Dorothy Girton, Miss Irene Neikirk and Mrs. Mildred Teeguarden, the directors. Mrs. Violet Faulkner and Miss Edythe C. Barber were retained to serve another term on the board of directors.

The new Zonta president is the wife of Dr. Louis K. Alpert, chief of the Medical Service at Mount Alto Hospital and professor at George Washington University School of Medicine.

One on the Aisle—

New 'Sure-Seater' In Happy Company

By Richard L. Coe

AROUND THE TOWN: Business may be erratic at the larger palazzos, but the small sure-seaters are feeling fine . . . Today the Playhouse completes its second year on 15th st., and next week comes a new one, the Plaza, on New York ave. just off 14th . . . The Trans-Lux is hosting "The Red Shoes" into the seventh week of its comeback run, the Dupont is doing fine with a picture that boasts no actors ("The Titan") and, grandpappy of them all, the Little is rollicking along with "Tight Little Island."

THE PLAYHOUSE anniversary has its remarkable aspects; in the past year it's shown only 10 pictures, and in its first year needed only 14 to keep going . . . Both the first and second year toppers were also Oscar-toppers, "Hamlet" and "All the King's Men." . . . British and American films have been the rule, only the French Symphonie "Pastorale" using a foreign tongue in two years . . . It seems to add up to the fact that there are definite audience levels in the film world and that the plush Playhouse has quickly found its.

THE PLAZA, which Sam Roth is opening Wednesday after a Kiwanis benefit preview the night before, will undoubtedly benefit from audiences uncovered by the older sure-seaters . . . It has only 300 seats and the plan is to accent the international film . . . First will be Pietro di Donato's "Christ in Concrete," made last summer in England as "Salt to the Devil" . . . A likely second is a new, highly praised Italian recording, via the Rome opera, of "Il Trovatore" . . . Star Sam Wanamaker and Author Donato are among those who have been or will be on hand for the Plaza's first steps.

THE TRANS-LUX, after much pushing-back of the date, seems to have settled on May 5 for the opening of "The Bicycle Thief." . . . Directed by Vittorio di Sica, this picture won the New York Film Critics' award as the finest foreign film of the year and has created a Johnston Office-Breen Office problem . . . Breen has termed two sequences of the picture "not acceptable," which means that the Johnston Office seal of approval doesn't go on the picture; hence, it cannot be shown in most theaters of the country . . . The sequences show a little boy making his toilet in the street and a bordello into which the central character chases a thief . . . Importer Joseph Burstyn insists he'll make no changes, and that's the way you'll see the film at the Trans-Lux.

VAN JOHNSON pops briefly into town today (the Mayflower) on his way to king it at the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival, for which the Winchester roads should be happily jammed . . . Van's stay here will be mighty brief, for the apple blossoms and the Veep's new daughter, Queen Anne Hadley, are calling.

FRONT OF the Palace will look different Saturday morning when "Richard," WWDC's talking parrot, will do a bird-on-the-street airing to gnater about his relative in "Champagne for Caesar," opening that morning with Ronald Colman as an adult quiz kid who knows absolutely everything—except how to pay for champagne for his parrot.

BARTER THEATER courier streaks through town to reveal that this year's Barter Acre and Ham goes to Shirley Booth for her performance in "Come Back, Little Sheba." . . . This annual award, which has gone to such as Ethel Barrymore, Tallulah, Laurette Taylor and Helen Hayes, means that an acre of Bob Porterfield's mountain near Abington, Va., will be deeded to the comedienne whose performance in the Inge drama is now Broadway's finest dramatic portrait . . . She'll receive the deed at a New York Town Hall luncheon Tuesday, May 9.

MELVN DOUGLAS isn't seen around town with his wife, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, because the California Congresswoman is out home getting set for her Senate race . . . Instead of living at her Georgetown home, Douglas is at the favorite hostel of the Gayety visitors, the affable colonel's Raleigh.

TOMMY BRENT bringing excitement to McLean, Va., 5 miles off the Chain Bridge . . . He'll open his Straw Hat Players for a 12-week season of summer stock in June . . . Some local folk will be used; send your queries to Straw Hat Players, McLean, Va. . . . What with the Olney, several still talking-stage-only ideas and the Paul Green pageant (no casting news yet), it looks as though there'll be a lot of make believe around here this summer.

IT'S WATSON WHITE, not "Wilson White," as the Gayety program has it for Senator Kruger, in "Two Blind Mice" . . . The fellow who plays the puffed-up Senator has had the usual experiences TV actors have: total strangers stare at him as though they know him . . . "But it's good to be on a stage again," says White, "instead of being an electronic squizzle on a screen."

"SWINGIN' ALONG," the revue whipped up by more than 100 members of the Fairlington Players, goes on for the first time tonight at the Arlington Farms Recreation Hall, now, also nearing its closing date, July 31 . . . The Fairlington folk promise 15 new songs; more on them tomorrow.

OPENING TONIGHT: Maud Howell Smith and Vivian Barrett in the leading feminine roles of "Dodsworth," which the Masquers of Roosevelt Center are playing tonight and tomorrow night in Roosevelt High auditorium. Adapted by Sidney Howard from the Sinclair Lewis novel, the play requires 50 actors, a formidable task for Director Pauline Eaton Oak.

Receiverships Ordered for 2 Bottle Clubs

Judge Edward A. Tamm of District Court yesterday ordered the appointment of receivers to see that two after-hours clubs do not violate the law.

The jurist took the action after reading affidavits declaring the clubs had sold liquor without a license within the past two weeks.

The Turf and Grid Club, 1337 14th st. nw., and the Gold Key Club, 609 E st. nw. are the clubs involved.

In addition to seeing that the law is observed, the receivers, who will be named shortly, must see that the clubs do not violate their charters as social, benevolent, charitable or educational organizations.

The judge also issued a preliminary injunction which will prevent the two clubs from dissolving or from transferring their assets pending a trial. The Villa Bia Social Club, 2019 19th st. nw., was similarly enjoined.

The Government, which has taken action against 11 after-hours clubs here, added a twelfth yesterday when it filed a suit for dissolution of the Fin and Feathers Club, 1016 14th st. nw. Drinks were sold there within the past three months, the suit charged.

The Fin and Feathers Club was ordered to show cause by May 10 why its charter should not be revoked.

The affidavits against the Gold Key and Turf and Grid were signed by M/Sergt. Forrest N. Smith, of the Security and Intelligence Office of the Army Medical Center.

Smith swore that on April 11 he and a woman companion were served drinks for a price at the Turf and Grid. He said drinks were sold to him April 15 at the Gold Key.

Representing the Government are Assistant United States Attorneys Ross O'Donoghue and Bruce G. Sundlun, who have so far closed four of the 11 clubs as organizations operated as a subterfuge to evade local laws.

Dutch Leftists Lead

Amsterdam, Netherlands, April 26 (U.P.).—The leftist Social Democrats and the Communists were ahead in early fractional returns tonight in an election for provincial legislatures, but returns were still to come from the conservative rural areas.

Government Study Group Is Appointed

The Fairfax County Supervisors yesterday named 20 members of a proposed 21-member commission to study the advisability of changing the county's form of government.

The supervisors made their selections from a slate of more than 40 nominees submitted by a citizens' committee that requested the study three weeks ago. The committee, headed by Manning Gasch, a Washington real estate man living near Vienna, suggested formation of the "nonpartisan" commission.

The supervisors followed a suggestion by the citizens committee that the commission be composed of three members from each of the six magisterial districts and three at large. They left only one appointment open—that of the third commission member from Lee District.

The following were named:

Providence District—Carl Marshall, McLean; William West, Vienna, and former State Senator John Rust, Fairfax.

Dranesville District—Charles E. Ardner, Forestville; Lewis Travis, Herndon, and Mrs. Jean White, Hunter's Station.

Lee District—Rufus Colwell, Fairfax, and French Fleming, Lorton.

Falls Church District—Vernon Lynch, Annandale; the Rev. Milton Shepherd, Bailey's Cross Roads, and Martin T. Webb, Annandale.

At-large—Alvord Sherman, McLean; Dr. George Schnis, Vienna, and State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, Belle Haven.

Envoy Key at Rangoon

Rangoon, Burma, April 26 (AP).—David M. Key, new U. S. ambassador to Burma, presented his credentials today to President Sao Shwe Thaike.

Md. Public Health Body Is Named

Annapolis, Md., April 26 (AP).—Governor Lane today named a 64-member committee on medical care to stitch together all the parts of Maryland's public health program.

The committee will work with the State Planning Commission.

The Governor said he organized it "because of the magnitude and complexity of the State's public health program, which has more than tripled in a four-year period, and the need for coordinating and integrating its many phases."

Dr. Maurice C. Pincoffs, director of University Hospital in Baltimore, will be chairman.

Lane said one subject of committee study will be "evaluation" of "all forms of non-Governmental medical care service currently available" to Marylanders. "A number of problems" have arisen from expansion of State public health activity in the last four years, he added.

Walter Winchell In New York

Memos to the Editors

New York political insiders offer this for The Prediction Dep't . . . Truman will run in 1952 . . . The GOP will woo Eisenhower, who will continue to play "hard-to-get" until he feels he cannot deny "the mandate of the people" . . . Baruch has persuaded Jimmy Byrnes to run on the Dixiecrat ticket. Byrnes will campaign vigorously—building up to his climactic speech at the Capital of the Confederacy (Montgomery, Ala.), when he will say: "Yall know, an' Ah know thet Ah cain't become the next President. So Ah wants yall to vote for Gen. Ike Eisenhower!" . . . With the 8 Southern States in his hip pocket, Ike probably will be the new tenant at the White House . . . This story was told an editor friend (of this col'm) who got it from a Midwest Republican news great.

Int'l News Service datelined this one from Lake Success: "Egypt accuses the American press of conducting a slander campaign against King Farouk, apparently referring to stories about the King's romance with 16-year-old Narriman Sadek."

The truth is that the King used his dictator powers to break the marriage plans of a young girl to a young diplomat. Identifying a coarse and brutal minor league dictator is not slandering the punk . . . It's a public service . . . This reporter broke the story about his theft of the bride-to-be, which Egypt denied . . . When it's about The Other Fellow it is interesting. When it's about you it's slander.

The Labor Gov't in Britain (according to several letters from London) intends to devalue the pound sterling again, probably to $2.35 . . . When Bevin was last here (when the pound was devalued) he told intimates in Washington that one reason for suddenly springing the devaluation was the fact that "an international group of bankers" (working in many nations) had expected the pound to be shaved to $3.20 . . . And they were collecting millions of dollars worth of pounds to unload at about $3 . . . The decision to devaluate to $2.80 was taken on the advice of the U. S. Gov't, which also knew of this international syndicate . . . The plan to devalue again (this autumn) to $2.35 is the realization that they must meet a competitive market world-wide and that is the only way to check it . . . "The only thing," says our source, "that will save this further devaluation would be Churchill's return to power."

File this away for use next month when the International Olympic Committee meets at Copenhagen to discuss the readmittance of Germany . . . Look who are the three permanent members of the German Olympic Committee: Adolf Frederick, Duke of Mecklenburg, who served on the Committee so faithfully that Hitler kept him at the job permanently. The Duke skipped to his castle when Germany collapsed and crawled from his hole last year.

Karl Ritter von Halt . . . Member of the Nazi Party . . . Officer in the SS, an outfit pronounced "criminal" by the Int'l Tribunal in Nuernberg, and Carl Diem, who in 1940 wrote that Hitler's military victories were possible only as a result of German sports training and added: "War is the most beautiful and most original sport."

Editors desiring more detail on these sports-lovers can get it by requesting it from us . . . Our pet sport is bouncing a baseball bat on the heads of ex-Nazis, former Nazis and any kind of Nazis.

Just to Keep the Record from Scratching: The Saturday Review of Literature's next issue will include this reminder for the followers of Flagstad, who keep arguing "she merely returned to her sick husband" . . . The wealth of her Quisling-husband was confiscated . . . Look: "Wilhelm M. Morgenstierne, Norwegian Ambassador in Washington, accused Kirsten Flagstad of having connived with the Germans in 1941 to return to Nazi-occupied Norway after being refused help by Norwegian authorities here. Flagstad, he said, had to have Portuguese and German visas on her Norwegian passport to get to Norway in April, 1941, when Norway was invaded by the Nazis. We got instructions from London (the Norwegian Gov't-in-exile) not to assist her in any way."

Revenge Is Sweet, but Vindication Is Sweeter: For years this dep't has been accused of partisan views, which it has cheerfully admitted, on the ground the only man without an opinion is a dead one.

Harvard's Nieman Reports answered in full the charge leveled by rival editors and broadcasting stations: That this reporter lacks objectivity . . . "Some newspapers," says the Nieman Fellow Report, "are so obsessed by objectivity that reporters can't write a clear story. Objectivity is often carried to the point of unintelligibility."

London's conservative paper, The Daily Telegraph, gave a confirmatory explanation for its 100-year record of success: "We have succeeded in being serious without being dull and we hope we will never fall into the disastrous policy of trying to be editorially impartial" . . . In short, the only news bigger than watching a fight is to get into it yourself.

Love Letter: "Dear Mr. Winchell," writes Malcolm Forbes, vice president of Forbes Magazine of Business, "I was largely inspired for the editorial (Page 10, April issue) by your writings" . . . Mr. Forbes is no Name-Dropper—as he dropped ours from it. Looka:

"Today, the heirs of that great editorial tradition are some of our more outspoken columnists. They have tremendous influence, but it is not an influence handed to them by publishers fond of the way they part their hair; it is an influence handed up by millions of readers won over long years by trust and faith in their sincerity of purpose and belief in the honesty of their reporting.

"No man can write hundreds of words daily without sometimes being wrong, occasionally unfair, but critics for reasons of their own fail to put on the other scale the times right, the good done. The very presence of such powerful, fearless pens acts as the kind of restraint forceful editorial pages of yesteryear used to do. It is easy to carp, easy to sneer about occasional errors of fact or judgment by columnists; but their power comes from great readership, and their readership comes because millions of Americans look to their writings for the kind of comment that used to be found on editorial pages."

Navy Refutes Report Of Strange Submarine

The Navy Department said yesterday that intelligence reports have convinced it there is nothing to rumors of a strange submarine being sighted off the New England coast.

It said officers had evaluated reports of the undersea craft as "no sub."

The department's comment came after naval officers at Norfolk, Va., disclosed that an undisclosed number of ships had searched for the reported sub off the Maine coast on Monday and Tuesday without finding any trace of it.

The A-B-C of Psychiatry

Increase Is Likely In Major Mental Ills

These articles are the answer to a question thousands of Americans are asking: "What is psychiatry and what does it mean to me?"

George Thorman, a director of the Children's Bureau of Marion County, Ind., is a veteran reporter of scientific and medical subjects. He prepared these articles in close cooperation with the National Mental Health Foundation.

The articles are a condensation of "Toward Mental Health."

By George Thorman

CHAPTER FOUR

Schizophrenia (which accounts for about 20 percent of all patients admitted to our mental hospitals) and manic-depressive psychosis (10 percent of first admissions) are sometimes referred to as functional psychoses.

There is another group of mental diseases called the organic psychoses because they are known to have a definite basis in the body.

Among these are psychosis with cerebral arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries of the brain) and senile dementia. Both come with old age and are due to the breakdown of the human machine.

These two types of mental disorders account for almost 22 percent of the patients admitted to our hospitals. There are strong indications they will make up even a larger percentage of chronic cases in the future.

General paresis is caused by the attack of the syphilis germ on the brain. About 7 percent of all patients admitted to mental hospitals are victims of this disease.

Basic nerves are affected, legs and arms move in a disjointed, awkward manner, speech is difficult, and in advanced stages total mental derangement results.

Malaria treatment and artificial fever therapy are proving effective in combating neurosyphilis. Regular injections of antisyphilitic chemicals or drugs can usually stop the disease in the early stages.

Psychopathic personalities are persons who show a lack of maturity, unwillingness to take responsibility. They may be impulsive or socially antagonistic—lie, steal, and are sometimes sexually perverted. Some psychopathic personalities are addicted to drugs or alcohol.

Alcoholism, especially when it becomes chronic, is a form of personality disorder. In extreme cases, toxic effects result in delirium tremens, which is characterized by tremors, fears, and hallucinations.

Mental deficiency, or feeblemindedness, is an arrested development of the brain. Mental deficiency cannot be cured in a medical sense. It is sometimes difficult to know whether a child or adult is feebleminded, but special tests given by experts can determine his limitations. Contrary to popular opinion, most feebleminded children can be given special training and taught to do manual work. It has been estimated that there are more than 1,500,000 mentally deficient persons in the United States.

Each year serious mental illness strikes thousand of new victims and takes its toll in human suffering and misery. Translated into dollars and cents, the cost of mental illness in lost earnings amounts to almost a billion dollars each year.

The other costs of nervous and personality disorders greatly increase this burden. What can we do to prevent this terrific human and economic loss?

First of all, we can safeguard the mental health and happiness of our children. Prevention starts at birth.

A baby is a bundle of desires and wants. He wants to be fed, to be otherwise physically comfortable. When these wants go unsatisfied the baby becomes restless, begins to cry.

Feed him or change his diaper and he stops crying. If you fail to satisfy these basic desires, his whole organism is affected

Each Net Proves It Has Biggest Audience

By John Crosby

I HAVE always been helplessly captivated by research organizations. They can prove almost any proposition you care to present them—that two and two equals four, that two and two doesn't equal four, or, if pressed hard, that there are no such figures as either two or four.

Lately, I've been bewitched by a couple of full-page ads run in newspapers on successive days by NBC and CBS, each proving beyond mortal doubt that it has the largest audience in radio. NBC—according to NBC—has three million more families listening to it than the second network in the daytime, 4,870,000 more families at night. My own rather suspect arithmetic figures this as roughly 12 percent more listeners than CBS daytime, 14 percent more at night.

The day after this claim, CBS, trumpeting like an enraged elephant, charged forth with its figures. CBS—says CBS—has an audience 29 percent higher than the "second-place network" in the daytime, 32 percent higher at night. NBC quotes Broadcast Measurement Bureau as the source for its figures; CBS doesn't quote any source but, since it is one of the most research-happy organizations in America, I'm sure the network is up to its hips in surveys, polls and statistics—all of them unassailable.

Bring on the Bomb

BECAUSE I have the fullest confidence in both NBC and CBS, I spent the whole weekend trying, by theoretical physics, to prove that both were right, that CBS is bigger than NBC, that NBC is bigger than CBS—both at the same time. Well, I finally figured it out, and I'm now ready to tackle the H-bomb if anyone wants any help.

The way I figure it is this. NBC has more families listening to it. That is, the whole family gathers around, say, Phil Harris and Alice Faye. Directly after that program is over, they scatter like mice to other parts of the house—father to the kitchen, mother to the bedroom, the kids in the living room, grandma in the cellar—and listen as individuals. Father, mother and grandma listen to Edgar Bergen on CBS. Junior and Sis listen to Sam Spade on NBC.

I realize that gives CBS only a 20 percent edge, instead of the 32 per cent it claims, but, after a little thought I worked that one out, too. Sis, a restive child, scampers back and forth between the kitchen and the living room, catching a little bit more of Bergen than she does of Spade and representing that extra 12 percent of an audience.

You both happy now, NBC, CBS? You're both the biggest network. Next weekend, I propose to work out a statistical survey which proves I have a larger audience than Walter Winchell. That'll be quite a task, all right, but if I don't run out of pencils, I'll manage it somehow.

Wilson has more or less disguised himself as the biggest hayseed in New York, "a Midwest boy"—according to the announcer—"who came to the big city and made good." This feat of necromancy is accomplished primarily by using the word "shucks" which Mr. W. throws in on all conceivable occasions. "Shucks, fellows, we're just trying to give you a few smiles. No gust is allowed to speak better English than I do.")

Maj. Charles S. Coulter of 4212 37th st. nw. attended the recent ceremonies marking the 150th aniversary of the Library of Congress.

One of the paintings on exhibition depicts the burning of the Capitol. Maj. Coulter noted that British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks gave the canvas a cursory examination and moved along to the next picture.

"Who burned the Capitol?" Sir Oliver, not six feet away, went right on chatting with a member of his party and never batted a diplomatic eye. Mission accomplished, Mr. Panyushkin moved on to the next picture.

AND HOW DOES YOUR GARDEN GROW?

Here's a sample of the sort of thing these non-professionals turn out. It's by M. Dorothy Baker of 60 Randolph pl. nw.:

"Are your children the blessings they were designed to be?

"The answer lies in the gardener who cultivates the little plants. Earnest, diligent, prayerful labor is promised the desired results.

"I am reminded of the story of the man who had worked very hard in his garden. A neighbor noted the excellent results, and commented: 'God certainly gave you a wonderful garden.'

"'Yes,' answered the gardener, a little dismayed that his own efforts had been overlooked, 'but I wish you could have seen this place when the Lord was running it by Himself.'

"The weeds can also take over our little human gardens. God did not promise to do our work. He promised to help us do it.

"So, first, the gardener must cultivate himself; for our children are absorbent, and at the same time reflective.

"Then he must learn to push them without shoving them; pull them without dragging them; lift them without straining them—and mother them without smothering them. They are the seed to which God will give increase if the gardener labors wisely."

STATEMENT OF POLICY

In it, The Washington Post inadvertently decried "wreckless driving." Actually, this newspaper is foursquare in favor of wreckless driving. What we're against is reckless spelling.

ADD SIGNS

Plumber John G. Webster's service truck bears the appropriate legend: "We Keep You in Hot Water."

WELL, LOOK WHO'S HERE

We cleaned the porch and steps today
To make things look alive,
In hopes some very welcome guest
Might happen to arrive.

And we'd no sooner rearranged
The glider, swing and chair
Than Spring came walking through our gate
With flowers in her hair.

G. A. Fisher

Fewer Cars Failed '49 Inspection

Fewer District autos were rejected as "unsafe last year than anytime since 1938, when the car inspections became compulsory.

Traffic Director George Keneipp issued this record-low rejection report for the registration year ending March 31, 1950, with the word that rejections averaged 49.03 percent during that period.

Keneipp attributed last year's drop in rejections to (1) more and better conditioned new cars on the road; (2) more responsibility on the part of car owners, and (3) elimination of "trivial" causes of rejection by inspectors.

Keneipp gave a breakdown of types of vehicles and how they fared: buses—32.5 percent rejected; taxicabs—42.24 percent rejected; passenger cars—49.46 percent rejected and trucks—53.93 percent.

Principal causes for rejection during the year, he reported, were defective brakes, lights and steering. Faulty brakes led off with 21 percent of all rejections on this count.

Florida 'Dewey-Truman' Battle

By Drew Pearson

Today's column is going to make my name mud with a lot of my good friends, the newspaper publishers of Florida. For one of the the most interesting senatorial campaigns in the Nation is going on in their State, with 90 percent of the newspapers batting hard for one candidate. And when you see all the boys ganging up on one side, I can't resist the good old American custom of seeing what's to be said on the other side.

Smathers

The Florida election battle is not only a lollipaloosa, but it has all the earmarks of another Dewey-Truman campaign.

On one side, and fighting for his life, is gnarled, weather-beaten Senator Claude Pepper, with 14 years in the Senate at stake, with his chief financial support from labor, and waging an effective, tireless, whistle-stop campaign almost identical with Truman's. Like Truman's it is aimed at offsetting the solid wall of bad publicity given him by the press.

On the other side is popular, handsome Representative George Smathers, with four years in Congress, whose chief financial support has come from big-money Republicans who spend their winters in Florida and register as nominal Democrats. No mean campaigner himself, Smathers has made a lot of political hay.

The Dewey-Truman comparison is so striking that it caused the staid New York Times to comment:

"The senatoral challenger is a young and handsome man with a rich, well-trained voice, and a reporter might almost imagine he was back on the 'Victory Special' listening to a rear-platform speech by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Echoes of Dewey Train

"The content of the speeches is almost identical. Communism is the main issue . . . And like Governor Dewey, Representative Smathers is seeking election without outlining in any detail the programs and policies he would follow if elected.

"Another echo of the Dewey train," continues the Times, "is that reporters traveling with Mr. Smathers complain because he uses the same speech every day and they are finding it hard after five weeks to find a 'new lead' for the next day's papers."

But since few Floridians read the New York Times, most Florida newspaper readers get the impression that Claude Pepper is not only Stalin's closest buddy, but that he is already a gone gosling.

Just to add to his bad press, the Saturday Evening Post, long a force in Republican politics, deftly scheduled a feature story on Pepper's opponent just 10 days before the Florida primary.

Probably most of those who read it did not realize that the Saturday Evening Post averages $50,000 worth of advertising from the du Ponts and affiliated companies every issue and that one branch of the du Pont family is heavily supporting Smathers.

Straight GOP-Demo Fight

Real fact about the Pepper-Smathers fight, however, is that it's a straight, down-the-line Republican-Democratic battle. When you get away from all the dust-throwing, the issues are as clear and clean-cut as between the Truman liberals and the Republican conservatives. This is probably a healthy thing, because ordinarily an election in Florida doesn't mean much beyond a choice of personalities.

Long ago young Smathers began conferring with former Speaker Joe Martin, leading Republican in the House of Representatives. Long ago, he quietly began accumulating GOP money and GOP support.

And as that support accumulated, Smathers began swinging over to the Republican side of the congressional aisle. When he first went to Congress, Smathers was hailed as the liberal Sir Galahad of the South. But gradually he began voting the opposite.

While casting his vote against slum clearance, he simultaneously promoted the real estate lobby's idea of increasing the amount they could borrow from Uncle Sam up to $750,000. Thus Smathers voted to deny the poor man low-cost housing, but give the big real estate operator the right to use three-quarters of a million dollars of the taxpayers' money, 90 percent guaranteed by Uncle Sam.

Smathers also voted against social security for traveling salesmen and others, against the minimum wage, and, perhaps most important of all, for the bottling of bills in the Rules Committee instead of open debate on the floor of the House.

On various occasions Smathers even voted to override Truman's veto on important party policies. Pepper, on the other hand, has voted consistently for Fair Deal projects.

Stalin's Pal

Most interesting issue in the Florida battle, however, is Smathers' charge that Pepper is a pal of Joe Stalin's. He says—to quote the Saturday Evening Post—that "by the summer of 1945" he, Smathers, was convinced someone should run against Pepper; that "he couldn't get out of his craw that Pepper had become so involved with Henry Wallace."

The real fact, however, is that well after the summer of 1945—on January 16, 1946, to be exact—Smathers wrote a letter to Pepper's secretary referring to "our good friend Henry Wallace."

It was also after the summer of 1945, when he now says he decided Pepper must be defeated, that Smathers actually was writing Pepper a stream of letters asking his aid in getting him out of the Marines, in getting him a job as Assistant United States attorney, and later in helping him run for Congress.

Today at CENTER MARKET CITY
... with Pat Parker

LET'S TOUR the vegetable stands again this week—because now they're in their glory!

The Green family is amply represented by kale, spinach and collard greens. Now's the time for greens, too. Good spring tonic. By the way, if your family objects to spinach, try mixing in a can of cream of mushroom soup. If they don't eat it then, nothing will change them! The cream of mushroom soup gives spinach a delightful flavor. Personally, we didn't like spinach ourselves until we tried it this way.

• • •

WE'VE TOLD you about the new peas and Florida's new potatoes that are now on the Market, but we want you to be sure and take advantage of them—for they're real treats. The new peas are as sweet as can be, and for our money new peas with new potatoes—either with butter, or creamed—belong high on the list of all good things.

ZUCCHINI, that delightful Italian squash, is again on the Market. Huge fresh mushrooms are arriving in from the Pennsylvania mushroom farms. Speaking of mushrooms, they're delightful with new peas, too.

• • •

BANANAS are plentiful this week, and so are pineapples. The tropics are well represented. In the fruit family, South America is sending in Rubier and white grapes, now. And California navel oranges are plentiful. The Market is filled with ideas for fruit cups. And try some of these oranges with John Heitmuller's freshly ground coconut for a Spring dessert.

• • •

Since we mentioned celery earlier—let us explain that the Pascal variety is the big, green celery, and considered of the finest. We're sure you know that—but in case you didn't, we thought we'd explain.

• • •

HOW about buttered beets for dinner one of these evenings? New beets are now on the Market, and excellent they are. Pickled beets are great favorites, too, and perfect accompaniments to meat dishes.

• • •

AND LET us remind you again—Springtime is the perfect time for all-vegetable meals. And we're ready with the ingredients for such meals down at
